NIXON IGNORES PULLOUT LAW

House Rejects War Cash Halt

. . . DOVES TO TRY AGAIN

Washington (AP) — The House rejected Wednesday night a June 1 cutoff of all U.S. Indochina war money shortly after President Nixon said he would ignore Congress' call for a fixed deadline on troop withdrawal.

Backing the President's appeal to put no restrictions on his effort for a negotiated settlement, the House voted 238 to 164 against an amendment by Rep. Edward P. Boland to halt the war money. The amendment was on a defense appropriations bill.

The House passed the $71 billion defense money bill 342 to 51 and sent it to the Senate.

President Nixon announced a few hours earlier in the signing a $21.3-billion weapons authorization bill that he would not be bound by its policy amendment calling for negotiation of an end to the war "at the earliest practicable date" in return for release of American prisoners.

Promptly Challenged

Antiwar senators promptly challenged Nixon's action and planned to make another effort to cut off war funds.

Nixon strongly opposed the Boland amendment, just as he fought the amendment sponsored by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield.

The Mansfield amendment "is without binding force or effect," Nixon said, "and it does not reflect my judgment about the way in which the war should be brought to a conclusion.

"My signing of the bill that contains this section will not change the policies I have pursued and that I shall continue to pursue toward this end."

The amendment Nixon said he would ignore was a weakened version of one passed earlier by the Senate calling for total withdrawal within six months. After the House rejected that language, a compromise was passed which "urges and requests" Nixon to withdraw all troops "at a date certain" subject to release of U.S. war prisoners and an accounting for the missing in action.

Mansfield noted that the Senate has passed such an amendment, in one form or another, four times and said:

"It may be ignored but it will be in the back of his mind. They talk about a cat living nine lives. This bill will have more than nine lives if necessary."

Sen. Frank Church challenged Nixon's authority to ignore the amendment. He told a news conference:

"The Mansffield amendment is part of the law and as such is not subject to dismissal by the President.

"If he chooses to ignore it, then the Congress should enact enforcement provisions with the power of the pursestrings which belongs to Congress alone."

The procurement bill authorizes $871.4 million less than sought by the Pentagon. Actual appropriation must be voted later.

Among its major provisions:

'A continuation of construction on the Safeguard, antiballistic missile program at a level of $1.1 billion, about $160 million less than the administration requested.

—An elimination of the President's authority to ban chrome-ore imports from Rhodesia. Ziegler said this provision does not go into effect until January.

—A $72-million reduction in the controversial C5A aircraft procurement program and a $321.5-million ceiling on C5A spending this fiscal year.

—A $350-million ceiling on fiscal year 1972 military and economic aid for Laos.

Snow, Rain Pelt State

Moisture in the form of snow, rain and drizzle covered Nebraska Wednesday.

A belt of snow extended from Imperial in southwest Nebraska up to Valentine in the north. At North Platte two to three inches of snow was on the ground late Wednesday. Mullen reported two inches of snow, and Valentine received about an inch.

Highways were slippery and slushy in the snow areas.

Elsewhere in the state there were generous rains. Many towns in eastern Nebraska received over an inch of rainfall. Lincoln's moisture total stood at 1.66.

Thursday's forecast calls for the possibility of more precipitation for Nebraska.

New National Historical Site Coming Down

Blair (UPI) — The National Park Service has designated the historic Cowell Mansion here as a new national historical site in Nebraska — despite the fact the building is almost completely razed.

That word came from Washington Wednesday, just two weeks after workmen began tearing down the 87-year-old structure.

A number of Blair residents had attempted to save the building, but to no avail.

Draft Resisters Maintain Links

The following article, second of three about Nebraska draft dodgers now in Canada, was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism Depth Reporting class. The author is a senior from North Platte.

By MARY HUFFMAN

Winnipeg, Manitoba — When Jerry Tagge, football in hand, reached over the goal line for Nebraska's winning touchdown over LSU in the Orange Bowl last New Year's night, a small cheer arose in Winnipeg.

A group of Nebraska draft dodgers huddling around a television set at the North Star Inn in Winnipeg were cheering for Big Red. One of the former Nebraskans, Kirk Johnson of Lincoln, rented a hotel room for his fellow exile. Johnson is office manager of the North Star.

The group in Winnipeg probably had more in common with their native state at that moment than at any other time since their immigration to Canada.

Not that they're brooding over their alienation from Nebraska or America.

As one ex-Nebraskan now living in Waterloo, Ontario, says: "I used to go to football games and actually care who won. I used to . . ."

NU Football Games

On occasion the Nebraska group in Winnepeg can pick up NU football games on WOW in Omaha. KFAB radio in Omaha comes in at night.

The Nebraskans haven't completely severed their ties with home. There are still letters and phone calls, an occasional bundle of the Elm Creek Beacon for Mary Milander, wife of Doug Milander, and visits from friends and family.

The group gets together often. They all remember the "Love and Peace Reunion" at Kenora, Man., where friends Tom and Gloria Pluta, formerly of Lincoln, invited the Nebraska colony for a get together.

However, their everyday lives center around Canada and their jobs, not Nebraska or their hometown.

Unlike some Americans in Vancouver or Montreal who are standing in welfare lines, the Nebraskans in Winnipeg all have jobs.

Doug Milander, 24, formerly of Norfolk, says: "It hits you. Hey, here I am in Canada. Other people around me were born in another country, and here I am wanted in the states on a federal warrant."

He and his friends sort of blend in with the woodwork—and they like it that way.

Prisoners Build Tank For Escape

Raiford, Fla. (AP) — Two Raiford State Prison inmates rammed their way to freedom through a hail of bullets in a makeshift tank they fashioned in the prison furniture shop, officials said Wednesday.

Raiford Supt. Lawrence Dugger said the inmates, Rex Gyger, 26, of Richmond, Ind., and Wallace McDonald, 43, of Shreveport, La., fashioned their tank out of a fork lift truck, using 10-gauge sheet metal for armor plate.

He said Gyger and McDonald were believel headed for Louisiana or Alabama.

The men broke out of the prison in northeast Florida last Saturday. They remained at large Wednesday.

Broke In

Dugger said Gyger and McDonald broke into the closed prison furniture factory to fashion their escape vehicle.

"They enclosed a fork lift with 10-gauge sheet metal," he said, explaining that the armorers wrapped two layers of metal around the sides and placed four thicknesses atop the truck.

They cut a six-inch slit in the metal armor for forward visibility. Dugger said the men waited in the prison shop until dusk fell over the 3,000-man prison. Then they rode 200 yards to freedom.

"They crashed the gates and officers in the tower above fired on them with a 30-30 rifle," Dugger said. "The bullets didn't penetrate the steel."

Direct Shot

He said the tower guards had a direct shot from about 30 feet. Gyger and McDonald rolled into the prison motor pool area, jumped out of the tank and ran for the shelter of a nearby woods. Dugger said officers were in pursuit, but dogs lost the scent of the escapees in the woods.

"They got 24 hours a day to outfigure you, and obviously they did that," said Florida Corrections Director Louie Wainwright. "I never heard of a similar escape."

Gyger was serving two years for a Tampa prison break. McDonald was serving 10 years for a Jacksonville robbery.

Dugger said he has issued instructions that from now all fork lift trucks will be parked outside the prison fence at night and on weekends.

Historical Society Urges Preservation Of 17 Sites

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Old Bryan Home at 1625 D St., the Union Pacific Freight Depot, the Thomas Hudson cabin and Lincoln's Old City Hall — these are just four of seventeen historical sites given special recommendations for preservation by a State Historical Society Study.

The 119-page survey, which was done under the auspices of the State Planning and Programing Office, involves the 11-county area of Lancaster Cass, Otoe, Saline, Seward, Butler, Saunders, Sarpy, Douglas, Washington and Dodge.

In their recommendations the authors, Persijs Kolberg and Carl H. Jones note that it would be impossible to preserve all of the historical, archeological and archetectural treasures in the area, so they seek to save the best.

"Preservation selection must be limited to the possible, limit itself to the best buildings—to be selective instead of wholesale preservation.

"To accomplish these aims specific sites have been selected for in-depth recommendations," they say.

"Simply, we must selectively protect what remains of this heritage against the 'progress' of the bulldozer and its master, the land speculator."

Noting that in the last 20 years half of the 12,000 nationally registered historic buildings have been demolished, the authors state that the general public must become involved if historic sites are to be saved.

"State and federal agencies cannot do the job alone. The general public must be made to understand and be made aware of the fact that the past is an essential element in the future of Nebraska rather than something to be used up and thrown away in the name of progress.

"In this current age of rampantly spreading blight our cities desperately need variety and delight, not merely in the idiom of one era or moment, but the expressions of . . . different men at different times," the report says.

The survey cites the Burr residence in Lincoln and the Weaver Mansion in Falls City as examples of significant buildings which have fallen to progress.

In addition to the Lincoln sites mentioned among the seventeen, are:

—The Sheldon House in Cass County which is purportedly the birthplace of Nebraska's first native-born state governor.

—Omaha's Joslyn Castle, a structure built in 1903 costing $225,000, in the Scotch baronial tradition of architecture.

—Weber Mill in Omaha constructed by the Mormons in 1846.

—The Omaha Public Library, called "a fine example of the Italian Renaissance style."

—The Crook House in Omaha, a part of the original Fort Omaha.

—Merrill Mission in Sarpy County.

—The Union Passenger Terminal in Omaha.

—The Burlington Roundhouse in Nebraska City and also the U.S. Post Office there.

—The Stambaugh House in Saunders County.

—St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Saunders County.

—Fort Atkinson and the Crowell House in Washington County.

Gun Destroyed In No. Vietnam

Saigon (AP) — Four American supersonic fighter-bombers destroyed one antiaircraft artillery gun and damaged another in the 77th raid inside North Vietnam this year, the U.S. Command disclosed Thursday.

A communique said the attack Wednesday was carried out at the Ban Karai pass, 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone near the Laotian border, after North Vietnamese guns opened fire on the U.S. jets.

There was no damage to the U.S. aircraft," the communique said.

Mackey Wants Action In Thurston Jail Probe

State Indian Commissioner Bob Mackey said Wednesday he will take his case to the governor, if one last effort to get information concerning alleged financial improprieties at the Thurston County jail fails.

"I hope to approach the lower echelon people in the state agencies I'm trying to get the information from for one last time," Mackey said; "if that fails we're going to have to communicate directly with the governor.

"After that my only alternative would be the U.S. Justice Department."

Earlier this month, Mackey said his 2½-month-old investigation was getting nowhere due to "political interests."

The commissioner had requested information on sanitation conditions at the jail from the Health Department and information from the State Revenue Department concerning a sales tax permit and income taxes paid by Sheriff Clyde Storie and his wife.

Last summer, a group Winnebago Indians charged that Storie was unjustly incarcerating Indians, operating an unsanitary jail, selling food to the prisoners and was administering a state meal program for Indian prisoners improperly.

At an Indian Commission meeting, Sept. 1, the group agreed to spearhead an investigation of the jail.

Since then only the Fire Marshal and the Health Department Bureau of Standards have complied with Mackey's requests by supplying him with a "belated" report after his difficulties were publicized.

The report gives Thurston County 90 days to bring the jail into compliance with state sanitation and health requirements.

Mackey said he doubts the report will have much impact, although it calls the jail "a definite health hazard." He said his misgivings are based on the fact that a similar compliance order was issued to the jail 3 years ago and nothing has improved.

Butz Told He's No Farmer's Friend

Washington (AP) — President Nixon's choice for secretary of agriculture, Earl L. Butz, was told Wednesday that many senators will vote against him because of fears "your heart beats not for the family farmer but for the giant corporations."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., added at a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing on Butz's nomination that his confirmation by the Senate would be a catastrophe for the farmer.

Only twice in the 20th century has the Senate rejected a presidential Cabinet nomination.

Butz, 62, a Purdue University dean and a former assistant secretary of agriculture under Ezra Taft Benson, denied any inbred hostility toward family farmers but said:

"No longer can we justify a low farm income by the glories of the sunset."

Butz told the committee he is asking confirmation in an "absolutely clean" financial state.

He said he has resigned from the boards of four agribusiness corporations which paid him a total $29,800 yearly. And, he said, he has placed the approximately 5,000 shares he owns in three of them in a trust fund.

Butz, who said he used his position in corporate board rooms to act as a spokesman for agriculture, said that because of low stock market prices he is reluctant to dispose of his holdings of 2,000 shares in the Ralston-Purina Co., a similar amount in International Minerals and Chemical Corp., and 1,000 shares of Stokely Van-Camp. The current value of that stock totals about $119,000.

New York Times News Summary

Nixon Signs Bill, Says He'll Ignore Part Of It

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — President Nixon announced that he would disregard as not binding on him a provision of a bill he was signing setting a policy that American troops should be withdrawn promptly from Indochina as the House rejected, 238 to 164, a move to cut off funds for all military operations in or over Indochina after June 1. (More on Page 1.)

Stans On Way To Moscow

Washington — Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans and 10 aides left on a trip to Moscow for talks that many officials hope will substantially increase the level of trade between the United States and the Soviet Union.

'Vigorous Measures' Promised

London — Britain's government promised the House of Commons that it would take "vigorous measures to fight the terrorists and murderers" in Northern Ireland. The promise to hunt for members of the Irish Republican Army in Ulster was made during a Commons debate on a government report admitting "physical ill-treatment" of Catholic detainees but rejecting allegations of torture and brutality.

Thai Premier Takes All Power

Bangkok — Citing "the dangers that have been threatening Thailand," Premier Thanom Kittikachorn and a group of Thai leaders organized themselves into a "revolutionary" council, abolished the constitution, dissolved parliament, disbanded the cabinet and instituted martial law. The seizure of full power in Thailand came without violence.

Examples Refused

United Nations, N.Y. — A spokesman for the United States mission to the United Nations refused at a news conference to cite specific examples of what the chief American delegate, George Bush, called Tuesday "intemperate" language by the Chinese in their first speech to the General Assembly. A member of the Chinese delegation, asked about Bush's statement, said it was "not worth commenting on."

Price Increase Won

Washington — The Price Commission approved an immediate 2.5% price increase for 1972 models of American Motors Cars. (More on Page 2.)

Butz's Critics Unimpressed

Washington — Dr. Earl L. Butz, President Nixon's nominee for secretary of agriculture, told a Senate committee that he would be a "vigorous spokesman" for agriculture and would seek to preserve family farms and to solve the problems of rural areas. But his critics, unimpressed, charged that he was an agent of giant agribusiness. (More on Page 1.)

Muskie Sees Reversal

Washington — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on air and water pollution, asserted that the administration had originally sponsored provisions in the water pollution control bill giving federal officials the power to review and veto some state antipollution decisions that the White House was now trying "to gut."

Two Men Jailed In Attempt To Sell Girl, Boy

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — A Boy Scout master and a companion, charged with trying to sell an Oklahoma City woman's two small children for $7,000 and a used car, were held without bond Wednesday in the Duval County jail.

The men were identified as William O'Hara, 37, also known as Milford Bennett, and Robert Westenhaver, 22. They were arrested after allegedly trying to make the deal with a police informer.

The children, Theresa Ann Cox, 3, and her brother, Robert Donald Cox, 2, were in custody of a juvenile court after spending the night with the informer and his wife.

Police said the two men told them the mother, Dorothy Cox of Oklahoma City, was to receive $4,000 and they were to split $3,000 and keep the car.

In Oklahoma City, authorities said Mrs. Cox reported that

FOR SALE . . . Butch, 2, and Theresa, 3.

O'Hara and Westenhaver had planned a business trip to Tulsa, Okla., and she told them: "I'm tired. Please take the children for a little change of scenery."

Police said Theresa first identified O'Hara as her father from a small, dim picture in a Jacksonville newspaper, but later in a police lineup could identify neither man as a relative.

The FBI said O'Hara and Westenhaver and their wives had been living with Mrs. Cox and her children and the full interrelationship of the group had not been established.

The three women were being questioned by police.

Police told this story of how the deal developed:

The informer whose name was not disclosed, and his wife met O'Hara a year ago at a Duval County fair in Jacksonville and told him they were considering adopting a couple of children.

Three weeks ago, O'Hara contacted the informer and told him he expected to have two children for sale in two or three weeks.

"The agent contacted us, then called O'Hara back to argue about the price," investigator W. C. Beacham said. "Monday, O'Hara called and said he was on the way. They got into Jacksonville and called the agent to say the had both children.

"They settled on a price of $7,000 and a used car. Our big concern was to get hold of the kids, and that worked out perfectly.

"O'Hara took the kids to the agent's house, got $100 in marked bills as a binder on the deal, then left them with the agent's wife when the agent took him to dinner.

"Once we had our hands on the children, we moved in and arrested Bennett at the restaurant and got Westenhaver at a motel."

The children "were in kind of rough shape hungry and dirty." Beacham said. "The little boy had some cigaret burns on him and the little girl had some bruises."

In Oklahoma City, Mike Worley, who serves as liaison between the troop and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, said O'Hara had been working with the 22-member troop for about two months and was chosen scoutmaster a month ago.

Worley said O'Hara, a former Eagle Scout and a paratrooper in Korea, and his wife attended church regularly and helped keep the troop's financial records.

Social Security Move Dies

Washington (AP) — The Senate overwhelmingly killed an attempt to write a big Social Security increase into the $25.6-billion tax-reduction bill Wednesday.

It thus disposed of one of two key issues believed likely to tie up the legislation in battles over extraneous riders.

Still to be settled, however, is a dispute over a Democratic move to tack onto the bill a broad presidential campaign fund financing plan.

This plan could make available to each of major party nominees $20.4 million in government campaign funds next year.

The Social Security increases were contained in an amendment offered by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla.

It contained all of the new Social Security benefits included in the House welfare-reform bill passed by the House in June. Among these were a 5% general boost in payments, increases for widows.

In earlier votes, the Senate rejected 64 to 25 an amendment to continue the 7% auto excise tax after a 15-month suspension rather than repeal it outright.

It defeated 68 to 19 a proposal of Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., to bar companies from receiving tax deductions on advertising not directly related to promoting their goods and services.

Harris contended that businessmen were using deductible advertising as a business expense to promote their views on public questions and to help committees formed to re-elect President Nixon.

American Motors To Raise Prices

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission Wednesday approved a 2½% increase for 1972 American Motors cars, but it put off a decision on a Chrysler Corp. request for a 5.9% increase.

In Detroit Wednesday, American Motors reported a net profit of $10.2 million for its fiscal year ended Sept. 3. the profit came after a loss of $56.2 million in fiscal 1970. The company reported sales of $1.2 billion, compared with $1.1 billion last fiscal year.

The Price Commission said also it is studying a Ford Motor Co. request for an average 2% increase. General Motors has said it also will ask for permission to raise prices.

Meanwhile the Pay Board made its first challenge of a labor contract, the four-day-old agreement giving soft-coal miners pay raises of up to 35% over three years and doubling management's contribution to the union pension fund.

These may be rolled back if the full Pay Board finds them "unreasonably inconsistent" with its general standard that new contracts may not contain increases in pay and fringe benefits of more than 5% a year unless special circumstances warrant it.

In other developments:

—Union sources in Miami Beach said the AFL-CIO Executive Committee decided in a private session to keep its labor representatives on the Pay Board.

—The Pay Board meanwhile again rejected organized labor's demand for unconditional retroactive payment of wage increases lost during the freeze, a board source said. The vote was 9-5, with the labor members in the minority.

—It was learned that an arm of the Pay Board last Friday ordered, with no public announcement, that union workers in the construction industry may not get any pay raises until further notice. "Substantial clarification" of this situation is promised after a meeting Saturday.

The Price Commission said American Motors' request for an increase was justified under the commission's guidelines saying prices may be increased to match increased costs minus worker productivity, so long as profit margins don't increase too.

Draft Resisters Haven't Broken All Ties

Doug is assistant city editor) and the Nebraska dodgers, one of the Canadians expressed surprise that a visiting American reporter wasn't the only "Yankee" in the group.

"You can't tell the difference, really, between an American and Canadian," she said. "I wouldn't have known if you hadn't told me."

Her reaction to the Americans:

"I feel honored that we are here for their refuge. I don't think it should be compulsory to make the men go to war."

iFrst Home

Nebraskans Doug and Mary Milander, who made the trip by car in August 1969, made their first home in Morris, Man., where Milander got a job as the editor of a weekly newspaper.

Mary, 23, of Elm Creek, said her biggest problem at first was having no furniture. Their first piece of furniture was a 50-cent stove Mary bargained for at an auction. Now it sits in their living room—and Mary says "all it's good for now is a conversation piece and to put things on.

"We were so poor when we came up . . . I'm proud of everything we have now," Mary said.

While her husband was working long overtime hours at the newspaper office, Mary was commuting to Winnipeg, a 50-mile drive, to get a teaching certificate at the University of Manitoba.

When Doug wasn't working, he was a high school boys basketball coach and hockey league official, although he says he knew little about hockey.

Furniture's History

Since March 1971, they have been living in a six-room basement apartment at 195 Furby St. And there's a story behind every piece of furniture they've collected the last two years.

"We got that desk file for a quarter . . . and the tie-dyed painting in the hall entry was a result of our imagination and some purple, yellow and red dye."

Pondering over the bargains, Mary said, "Anything over 30 cents was a luxury for us at first."

Now, Mary and Doug are both working — Mary is a second grade school teacher in suburban Transcona, and Doug is at the Winnipeg Tribune.

"I don't really like Winnipeg," Doug said, "There's so much of the city to see. It's so big. But I guess I haven't really given it a chance."

It bothers Mary that the American economic influence is so prominent. Although a Safeway store is just down the alley and around the corner, she generally avoids shopping there.

First Friend

After the Milanders crossed the U.S.-Canadian border to begin making their home in Canada, their first friend, from Nebraska, was John Dietz of Omaha, who already had been in Winnipeg since March of that year when he made the trip by bus.

Dietz housed the Milanders for 11 days before they found a place to live. When Dietz came to Canada, however, he was by himself.

During his first two or three weeks, he said, he was lonely and wrote lots of letters to friends and parents and kept the telephone lines busy.

"My room was bare of furniture. I had a desk, mattress on the floor, chair, drawer, and lived out of a suitcase."

Persons entering Canada can either apply for landed immigrant status or say they're visiting and re-cross the border later to become a landed immigrant.

Dietz had decided to "visit" because he had no job offer or place to live. He thought it would be best to scout around and then apply for landed immigrant status.

Landed Immigrant

It was Easter Sunday that year when Dietz went to the port of entry at Pembina, N.D., to step on American soil for the last time before becoming a landed immigrant.

"There was no time left . . . I was nervous. During the interview I told the official I was a dodger, but he said, 'We're not allowed to talk about that'."

Dietz' first job was with the Winnipeg Free-Press as a reporter-photographer.

His next job, starting in October 1969, was a public information position with the Manitoba Centennial Corp. Now he's free-lance writing, and he says he's been getting back to religion.

"I've been going to an older church, Augustine United. It's a get-acquainted thing where you shake hands after the service, and get together and share each other's burdens."

If there's one thing he considers "stupid," it was the night he and five others poked hesitantly across the border into the States near Montreal to buy beer.

"What if I would have gotten caught?" he said.

Corresponds With Friends

Dietz corresponds with friends from the University of Nebraska, including George and Deanna Kaufman, now of Waterloo, Ontario.

Kaufman, of Hastings, deserted from the Army and he and his wife, the former Deanna Groetzinger of Grand Island, fled to Canada. Their first stop was at Peterborough, Ont., where they both landed jobs at the Peterborough Examiner.

Deanna Kaufman's reaction to Canada: "It is rather difficult now . . . to remember back to two years ago when Canada was a vague color on a map somewhere north of Michigan and North Daokta . . . Canada is not a land of perpetual forests and eskimos."

The Kaufmans graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1969, entered Canada in January of 1970 as visitors, and stayed with friends in Kitchener, Ont., while they sorted out thoughts and documents.

Political Virginity

George Kaufman said in a letter: "I lost my political virginity at the University when I realized the American government was no longer responsive to the people of America, that it had become a giant military-driven machine running out of control all over the world, controlling people's lives it had no right to."

He was drafted into the Army at Omaha, Sept. 4, 1969, and was sent to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for basic and medical training.

During Christmas leave that year, the Kaufmans flew to Omaha, visited friends in Lincoln and their families in Hastings and Grand Island and left Jan. 1 from Des Moines.

Kaufman told Dietz in a letter: "We packed our '61 Buick and along with our cat Topa we headed for Canada—not knowing any more about it than the Army."

They crossed the border Jan. 3, 1970, as visitors.

Draft Committee

Through the counsel of a draft committee in Toronto they planned their return trip to the border — reentering the U.S. at Detroit. Deanna says they drove around the block and returned to the Canadian side where they applied for landed immigrant status.

They had documents, job offers from the newspaper, and "hoped to be prepared for anything," she said.

"After a painless half-hour interview we were in — landed. All the tension and planning escape routes seemed totally ridiculous. No spies or running for the border or anything."

Their attitude now: "We don't regret leaving the U.S. but have no illusions that we have presented shining examples that will enlighten Nebraskans and Americans some day."

They said they think the U.S. deliberately makes the possibility of escape to Canada very easy to provide itself a safety valve.

No Problems

Since there were no problems at their jobs, Deanna said, they had an opportunity "to find out about Canada's diferences, for despite its superficial similarity to the States, there are profound differences, and I hope, permanent ones."

They left the paper because George wanted to go to the University of Toronto to get a teaching certificate.

They lived on a farm for awhile. "It was fun . . . but we also discovered that Ontario winters are rough, especially when a daily drive to town for a job is concerned." But it was a good experience, she said.

Now Mrs. Kaufman is working on a masters degree and her husband is production manager for the University of Waterloo student newspaper.

Another Family

Another Nebraska family near the Kaufmans, Paul and Sylvia Norton of North Platte, and their son Ezekiel, lives in Toronto, where he is a graduate student at the University of Toronto.

Norton says he was indicted without really knowing where he stood.

The Nortons had served in the Peace Corps, and he still had a job deferment. He says he notified his draft board of his change of status and was ordered to report for induction.

He then appealed to the state board and was granted a special student deferment while at the University of Toronto.

Once again he was ordered to report and again appealed. He asked for a family deferment because his wife was pregnant.

Indicted In May

Norton was indicted in May 1971 along with other Nebraskans, including Dale Fechner of Albion and Kirk Johnson of Lincoln, now living in Winnipeg.

"The uncertainty bothered us a lot at first," said Norton's wife, the former Sylvia Maline. "We kept hoping for a legal way out. But once it was final, we both felt relieved.

"We are sorry that Paul cannot visit the U.S. — especially as his parents are getting older and it gets harder for them to make the trip."

And that's another story in itself.

CANDIDATE

Richard Baumbach, 37, said he will run for mayor of Omaha during an organizational meeting of the Peace and Freedom Party in Omaha. Baumbach says he is not a party member. Mayorial candidates run on a nonpartisan basis. He is a yard clerk for the Rock Island Railroad.

Chehalis, Wash., Accident Kills Omaha Couple

Chehalis, Wash. (AP) — An Omaha, Neb., couple was killed early Wednesday when their car plowed into the back of a truck south of Chehalis in southwestern Washington, authorities said.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gibbs were on their way from the Seattle area community of Mountlake Terrace, where they had just moved, to Portland, Ore., to pick up personal belongings.

Kokes Against Diverting Water From Loup Basin

Sen. Rudolf Kokes of Ord Wednesday said it is "completely irresponsible to propose diversion of water from the Loup River Basin at this time."

Kokes, vice chairman of the legislative water study committee, was critical of the suggestion in the framework study for the proposed state water plan pointing toward possible future diversion of water among Nebraska river basins.

"I think the citizens of the Loup Basin should rise up in objection when the Soil and Water Conservation Commission proposes to divert almot a million acre feet of water out of the Loup Baisin to other parts of the State of Nebraska," he said in a prepared statement.

'Strong Testimony'

There was "a great deal of very strong testimony against water diversion" at the study committee's recent hearings in Lincoln, Kokes said.

"The testimony for diversion was mainly from those people that would like to appropriate water from someone else's area," he said.

Projects are in the works to make better use of the Loup River's water within its basin, Kokes said, but "no one from these areas now seeking Loup water has been willing to pitch in and help get these projects going."

If they are really interested in the development of Nebraska, he said, "they should come to us in the Loup Basin and say: 'How can we help you fully develop your basin so that your water needs are adequately met?'

Willing to Help

"When our needs are met, we would be willing to help them develop plans to utilize this water in Nebraska."

Kokes said "a uniform movement to resist this action must be the attitude of all people, and I pledge my effort to fulfill the will of those in my district whom I represent and who have informed me they emphatically desire Loup Basin fully developed first."

Kokes said the diversion proposal "could make a desert of the sub-irrigated Sandhills."

And, he said, "the exact effect of the removal of this stream flow in the downstream areas of the Platte Basin, including the water supply to the City of Lincoln, has not been determined."

EVENTS
IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Anyone who thought that Nebraska solved its tax problems a few years ago when it went the sales and income route didn't bother to consider that tax matters are twofold—the system and the amount it produces. Our system, on the state level, is pretty well settled, although there remain details of it still in controversy.

The amount the system produces is very unsettled and will remain so in the 1972 short session of the Legislature. Shaping up already as a major battleground is the disposition of the extra five cents a pack cigarette tax imposed by the 1971 Legislature and earmarked to finance a new university fieldhouse, a new state office building and a recreation center at the Beatrice State Home.

The latter proposal, to cost less than $1 million, will probably move ahead without too much difficulty. But the state office building and the field house are another thing.

Gov. J. James Exon is making the cigarette tax earmarking a matter of budget consideration for 1972. He says the funds should go into the general fund and be dispersed from there and he obviously feels that the majority of that income should go to support regular and capital improvement budget items.

He suggests that the senators may have a hard time living with existing sales and income tax rates without free use of the cigarette tax money. He has been accused in some quarters of blackmail, especially in connection with the university budget.

We don't see any blackmail in it at all nor have we noticed where the governor has said much of anything about the university budget in relation to the earmarked funds. He has talked about all budgets, not just the budget of the university. ty.

And he isn't blackmailing; he is simply presenting the alternatives as he sees them. Exon would probably go along with the field house if he could get agreement to forego the state office buliding.

In this connection, he may be practicing a little politics but isn't that the game he is in? If state senators objected to the practice of politics, they would have to vote themselves out of existence.

Exon may be playing the popularity of the field house against the uninspiring state office building. In other words, he may figure that by offering a threat to the future construction of the field house, he may gain a compromise that would eliminate the new state office building.

He has specifically said that some of the cigarette tax funds could be used to support a bond issue for the field house if the rest of the money were guided into the general fund. He has further suggested, with considerable validity, that a lot of office space is available in downtown Lincoln and probably at a lot less cost than a new building.

Many thoughtful and sincere people will disagree but we find little to argue about with Exon on his position regarding the cigarette taxes and the two disputed structures. If we had a choice, we would take the field house.

If Exon would go beyond that point and want to eliminate also the field house, we would come to a parting of the ways with him. Many people argue with this because they do not see the field house as a high priority item.

In essence, they consider the athletic program second in all regards to the academic program. We simply do not buy this, although we have strongly supported an improved academic program and believe Exon to be shortsighted in his overall budget recommendations for the university.

But we happen to believe that academics is not the only thing by which man lives, any more than he lives by his diligence alone. Nor do we feel that intercollegiate athletics has or threatens to detract in any way from the purposes of higher education.

We don't consider it unbecoming of President Nixon to have, as he does, an extraordinary interest in and knowledge or sports. The field house is needed for an athletic program that has just as much place in our lives as any other aspect of university life.

'Nixon Must Know What He's Doing. He Has More Facts Than We Do.'

Tax Relief Restricted

The U.S. Senate didn't go far enough Monday when it voted to give tax relief to the parents of college students. The bill would permit parents whose income is up to $25,000 a year to subtract from taxes owed the government $325 for each dependent child they send to college or trade school.

The tax reier ylan idealistically should be aimed at encouraging college or vocational training. If so, it should be widened to cover all those who pay college or trade school tuition—including the single student and married student working their way through school who at present receive no special tax break for that purpose.

The fact that it wasn't a comprehensive tax cut plan, at least as far as educational goals are congerned, leaves the motives of the Senate open to question.

At the same time the Senate rejected a proposal that would have reimbursed poor people with a chick from the Treasury for people with a check from the Treasury for what they pay in sales tax on food and for that portion of their rent which represents property tax on their homes.

The reimbursement plan would have cost the government an estimated $1.7 billion and the tuition deduction plan would cost the government an estimated $2.2 billion in revenue.

Although the two plans were not tied together, the votes indicate an intention to pass a tax relief bill for the rich and the middle class to the exclusion of the poor.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., observed that the tuition relief plan represented a subsidy from taxpayers too poor to send their children to college for those wealthy enough to do so. Obliquely, this is true.

If the Senate is talking about encouraging education, comprehensive tax relief for those who pay tuition is more to the point.

U.N. Potential Weakened

The maiden speech of China's chief delegate to the United Nations called for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina and Taiwan and asserted China's membership in the Third World community of underdeveloped nations that rejects any concept of servitude to the so-ca led super powers.

If the tone of the speech was disappointing and regrettable, which is the official U.S. reaction, it was not unexpected. China has been most consistent in expressing its positions on world affairs, as President Nixon doubtless will find when he goes to Peking. And even the most naive American supporter of mainland China's membership in the club could not have expected the representatives of the Peoples Republic to come to New York oozing sweetness and light.

Nor was China's first vote on an issue before the General Assembly any surprise. China joined the majority in a lop-sided 106-2 vote calling on the U.S. not to import chrome ore from Rhodesia. That vote points out the greatest obstacle to an effective world organization.

In 1966, the Security Council imposed mandatory economic sanctions against Rhodesia's white supremist government when it declared itself independent from Great Britain. The U.S. Congress, to comply with the sanctions, gave the President authority to ban the importing of Rhodesian chrome.

Since that time the U.S. has been importing chrome from the Soviet Union at inflated prices. Last week Congress passed a measure—as yet unsigned by the President — permitting Americans to import Rhodesian chrome in defiance of the Security Council embargo and specifying that after Jan. 1 the President may no longer ban the importing of any strategic material that is also being imported from a communist-dominated country.

The congressional position regarding chrome imports is entirely consistent with prudent national security considerations. But that position, if maintained, goes another step in downgrading the United Nations as a potent world force.

Patchwork Prairie Country

Years ago The Farmer's mother had horseradish in her garden. She would dig and grind it and mix it into a most delicious relish and somehow it would always find its way to our table. Perhaps she knew I liked it so well, especially with pork.

I planted some roots from her garden in the hopes that I could have a supply in my own garden. Only once do I remember getting enough dug to make a small amount for table use, then the plants died. This seems a bit ridiculous since a neighbor lady tells me her plants have almost taken over the garden.

However, I did not let that hinder me from eating horseradish through the years. I always bought a jar to satisfy our liking for an extra garnish to eat with meats.

But some days are filled with surprises . . . unexpected and delightful. I had such a day yesterday when a neighbor lady brought a generous supply all ready to eat ground fresh from her garden.

What did I do with my gift? I fixed myself a cheese sandwich liberally spread with the relish when the lady left. I opened the lid to sniff the delicious aroma and immediately decided I needed a dash of horseradish to satisfy the instant hunger I felt. Somehow horseradish always does this to me. It was as yummy a sandwich as I have had in a long time.

This morning the neighbor's ducks descided it would be a good day for taking a walk. They chose to go across the road at the same time I came over the hilltop. Had I been coming at a faster spead, I would have had ducks all up and down the road.

This would have been a premature Thanksgiving dinner, no doubt, although I can scarcely conceive of my neighbor's being thankful her ducks had come to such an untimly end.

Now that the chill of winter is in the air, many of the furry animals are seeking the shelter of buildings. One such animal we encountered the other night was an apossum. And where did we encounter him? Right in our garage . . . the garage built on to our house . . . so you see he was almost ready to invite himself into our own dwelling.

The car lights blinded him so he really couldn't see where he was going. He bumped into the side of the work bench, sprinkling can and lawn mower. He struggled to find the door. This was quite a problem for he seemed to have four left feet. Finally we backed the car out of the garage and let him toddle out at his own pace.

Nevertheless I had the feeling as I walked into the house that an opossum was following behind me and I turned to look to make certain the animal had gone back to the animal kingdom.

I thought if we had been living in the woods, we might have come home to a grizzly bear in our garage, instead of a small oppossum.

Or who knows? A pheasant, weary at being shot at, might very well find our garage a safe haven from the hunter. In that case I would soon have the bird plucked and cleaned and in the oven. That would truly be a bird to be thankful for.

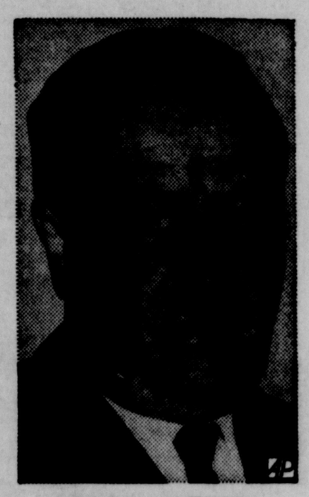
Neutral Austria Faces Up To Reality

VIENNA—The contemporary dream most mentioned nowadays in Europe is that the noncommunist and communist blocs respectively symbolized by NATO and the Warsaw Pact will melt away and that the lands thus freed from entangling ties will somehow draw closer in a convergence of political and economic theories.

Clearly the nations that would most obviously benefit would be those which belong to neither coalition, neutrals such as Sweden, Switzerland and Austria or quasi-neutrals like Finland and Yugoslavia. But here in Vienna, at any rate, there is no self-deception about the chances of this pleasing prospect.

Bruno Kreisky, Austria's Social Democratic chancellor and previously foreign minister, says: "After what happened in Czechoslovakia three years ago, I am totally convinced that there is but little room for political development inside the East European communist world."



BRUNO KREISKY
. . . theory of
'convergence' wrong . . .

"There is always some chance for more national identification inside these countries as in the cases of Hungary and Poland. But there will only be as much freedom in the real sense as there is freedom inside the Soviet Union itself. Nationalism, yes, to a degree; but political freedom is tied to Soviet developments.

"It is therefore an illusion to talk of really doing away with blocks because free democratic countries and controlled communist countries will continue to exist in Europe. And it is also an illusion to talk about ideological convergence. This means nothing.

"Instead it is more practical to face the real situation and to try to encourage lessening tensions between the two systems. Nobody can really tell today what practical coexistence will lead to because we haven't had it yet. Certainly things would not get worse. Cold war, like hot war, serves to petrify political systems. Only peace is creative."

While heartily favoring reduced tensions and continued increase of East-West contracts, Kreisky wishes to avoid basing policy on fictions. Thus he holds that the popular theory of "convergence" is wrong.

He acknowledges that the Soviet Union increasingly uses modern economic methods and marketing techniques but says this is only to make its own ideology more efficient. In no sense does it lead to political parallelism with Western methods. Moreover, he describes the kind of planned economy employed in communist lands as "a failed myth."

Kreisky concludes that the neutral position of small states like Austria and Switzerland is bound to continue indefinitely and cannot be swept up n any ideological convergence. This is admittedly a difficult position since the European Free Trade Area of which Britain was the mainstay is not condemned to die as London joins the Common Market. EFTA was the neutral's haven after the Common Market started because they could adhere without abandoning neutrality.

The outlook now, as seen by Kreisky, is based on hopes the Common Market will succeed as a modern Democratic and economic bloc. Then neutrals like Austria can broaden their cooperation — although not actually joining.

But this does not solve security problems. Austria itself has been violence recently erupt twice on its borders — Hungary 1956 and Czechoslovakia 1958. Nobody here makes any secret of anxiety that when Tito dies, there may be some similar brand of violence in Yugoslavia.

Moscow has recently sought to deny the existence of the famous "Brezhnev Doctrine" enunciated during the Czech crisis and purporting to give the USSR right to intervene forcibly in the affairs of communist lands. But the reality as seen from here is that the "doctrine" — whether explicit or implicit—continues to apply.

It is believed, however, that the Russians lost so much prestige abroad when they moved on Prague that, for political reasons, they would be reluctant to try such brutal intervention again. The basic reason, it is thought, is a fear that another crisis like that in Czechoslovakia would give China an enormous advantage in the race for communist world leadership.

Should this postulate prove wrong and should another drama unfold on Austria's borders, there is little this country could do. Although it expects to improve its small defense establishment, Kreisky believes no land that is not a superpower can devise a truly effective defense system.

His answer is that Austria must put primary emphasis on eliminating poverty and unemployment, thus reducing chances of an internal communist movement such as those which flourish on discontent. This, for him, is a more sensible answer than the kind of "comfortable nonsense" prewar France developed through its Maginot Line.

A neutral's lot in present-day Europe remains difficult. At least Kreisky doesn't compound the difficulty by confusing legend with reality or wishful thinking with fact.

Florida Ecology Threatened; Residents After Tourist Dollar

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Florida's west coast has been enjoying an endless summer of dry, luminous days and balmy, soft nights when the Gulf of Mexico whispers against white sand. Nature has been wearing its kindest this November, and it's hard to accept the hard fact that the Sunshine State has serious environmental problems.

The wave of natural and man-made disasters so far in 1971 was catalogued recently in The Floridian, Sunday magazine of the St. Petersburg Times. It starts with the fish-killing mass of microscopic organisms known as the Red Tide that last July littered shores from Tampa Bay to Marco Island with millions of stinking carcasses. Then there's a fungus called dermocystidium that has attacked oysters in Escambia Bay, described as an "industrial dump."

Add on the longest and most severe drought in the known history of South Florida that killed off wildlife and led to destruction by fire of 500,000 acres of valuable marsh and woodland. And the Miami Herald reports that, "Beach erosion and concentrated coastal development are rapidly separating residents and tourists alike from the sun-baked strips of land that are the state's leading recreational attraction."

Nearly 75 per cent of the state's coastline is now in private hands. Overzealous attempts to build close to the water's edge have hastened the natural erosion process. According to that article, critical erosion is eating away at more than 200 miles of beachfront lands.

☆ ☆ ☆

Other disasters include the appearance in 1971 of a pollution-spawned bacteria, Aeromonas liquefaciens, in Lake Apopka in Central Florida. It killed alligators, snakes, turtles and birds. Lake Okeechobee now harbors a bacteria known as perfrengens that killed egrets, herons, ducks and other waterfowl. Sea urchins have devoured lush green sea grasses on a 16-mile strip of Florida coastline. Toss in the walking catfish that have taken over fresh-water lakes in Central and South Florida, giant African snails and fire ants.

"When all these things are put together," said The Floridian, "they present a pretty strong case that Nature isn't a bit happy about what's been done to her and project a more than somewhat frightening picture of what the future might hold."

But Floridians are too busy building buildings to give much thought to the ecological dangers. Disney World is expected to bring in 10 million visitors a year alone, and the priority is on getting the tourist dollar.

Even though the federal government will pay up to 70 per cent of the cost of beach restoration projects, erosion continues because local governments haven't arranged to pay for the remainder. State government was handcuffed for 47 years by a constitutional ban on taxation of personal or corporate income. But Florida voters on Nov. 2 cleared the way for a $100 million profits tax on corporations by voting overwhelmingly to remove one of the constitutional prohibitions.

Florida's population between 1960 and 1970 increased from 4.95 million to 6.78 million, a gain of 37 per cent. In an industrial society, big population means big pollution problems.

Present Political Phase Seems 'Flat And Dull'; Important Activity Aplenty Beneath Surface

WASHINGTON—On the surface, the political atmosphere here seems flat and dull, but under the surface there is quite a lot of exciting activity, which could be important and even decisive in the voting next November.

It is in these quite periods, even before the presidential primary elections, when the hard work of organization and registration is done, and if you watch the back pages of the newspapers, you will see considerable evidence of this careful preliminary foundation building.

Almost without notice, for example, the legislatures in most of the large states have been passing bills to permit the newly enfranchised eleven million 18-21-year-olds to vote next November on campus, rather than at the place of thier parents' residence. This could make a difference of several million votes, and in a few key states, could tip the balance to one party or the other.

Also, there is a move on here in the Democratic-controlled Congress to pass legislation that would enable voters to register by mail, and this, too, would undoubtedly increase the size of the vote substantoally and probably favor the Democratic presidential nominee.

Much will depend, too, on the outcome of the current battle on Capitol Hill over campaign spending reform. The present system, by general agreement, is not only a scandal but a disgrace. The only trouble is that it will probably be decided by men who have managed to get to Congress under this outrageous system, and it is not at all sure at this moment that the reform will go through.

What is going on in these rather dull, scattered, and technical debates over election spending and registration is really the critical strategic battle of the campaign. These things are going to set the stage for the big drama later on. They are going to decide who votes, for one thing, which is not incidental in an election, and who has money for televison, which in the frenzy next October may be critical.

And the interesting paradox at the moment is that even the young people with the most education on the intricate American federal and electoral system, and with the most energy and the loudest grievances, are not really very active in these preliminary battles. Some of them are, of course, but most of them are "waiting for the election", though what is going on right now in these seemingly dreary nuts and bolts debates could actually decide the election.

The election is flat and dull on the surface precisely because the candidates are working underground on the substructure of the campaign. They are not polishing sentences, but organizing teams and gathering funds. That is what this phase of a presidential election campaign is all about, and it is far too important to be left merely to the candidates and their staffs, and the organized lobbies.

Labor's political activity these days illustrates the point. George Meany, the president of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, is very active on the propaganda front. He is denouncing the pay board's wage decisions as a "swindle" and condemining President Nixon for "romancing" Moscow and Peking, and being "nice to tyrants" who pay low wages and threaten the security of the Republican and the American worker.

But big labor is too experienced to stop there. Underneath all George Meany's hawkish and protectionist arguments, and his demands for more money for the workers, his director of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, Alexander E. Barkan, is concentrating on showing labor leaders all over the country how to get their places in the Democratic presidential nominating convention next summer, under the new rules of that convention.

The White House and the Republican National Committee are doing the same thing. They are raising funds — over $5 million this week in a series of GOP closed-circuit television dinners. They are quietly blocking legislation for campaign expenditure reform, while seeming to support it, and trying to limit the registration of the new young voters, while proclaiming in their propaganda sheet the new "Alliance of the Generations."

Against this kind of professional organizing, the young protestors and even the disenchanged Common Cause people's lobby seem woefully inadequate. The occupancy and policies of the White House are not going to be changed by demonstrations against Vietnam in front of the President's house, no matter how sincere. The battleground has changed.

The battleground is now, and for the next few months will be, on the problems of organization, registration, and campaign financial reform, and on this ground, the new rising enfranchised generation has immense potential political power. But, or so it seems here, they have misjudged the question and the time.

They are waiting for some candidate to emerge with a new philosophy for the coming age, and maybe it will happen, but probably it won't, and meanwhile, organization and money will be decisive in the end. That is why, in this flat and dull period on the surface, what is going on underneath is so important. The politicians are paying attention to the details and the rules of the election. They know the importance of timing, of money and getting the "right" delegated lined up in advance. That is what is going on now and it could decisive before the disenchanted amateurs woke up to the importance of political organization and finance.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Book Salesman, 46, Is Contemplating Inequities Of Society

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: "I'm 46 and find myself contemplating the inequities of society. Why should one person be handed wealth he never earned, while another much more worthy must toil and scrape all his life? My parents left me nothing and my family is dependent on my earnings as a book salesman. Yet the man I work for inherited the business from his dad. He's younger than I am and knows a lot less, yet the firm pays him seven times what I make—even though he's at the office only three or four hours a day and makes no effort to be courteous. Doesn't this seem unfair?"

Answer: It may seem unfair to you, but suppose your dad had left you considerable money. Wouldn't you feel it was within his democratic right to pass his possessions on to his children? If folks were no longer permitted to bequeath wealth to their descendants much individual stimulus and ambition would be dissipated. If the sight of your boss bugs you, scout up another job. Consider starting a business of your own. maybe you can create an industry worth bequeathing to your offspring.

Question: "I'm 62 and can't seem to remember a thing. Someone just asked me what I had for dinner last night and I can't remember to save my life. And two minutes after being introduced to a woman yesterday I forgot her name. Isn't this proof that forgetfulness accompanies advancing age?"

Answer: — It's true — we become more forgetful as we grow older. But much of this forgetfulness stems from failure to make a conscious effort to remember. In the instances you cite, last night's dinner and the name of the woman you met probably didn't seem worth remembering. There's evidence that people become more selective and don't bother remembering things which seem unimportant. As Cicero used to say, "Many older people complain of forgetfulness, but they don't forget where they hide their money." This suggests that mental retentiveness is associated with the importance we attach to things to be remembered.

Question: — "You stated in a recent column that you're opposed to the practice of forcing employes to retire at 65. But if you don't force them to retire how can you get rid of older employes who become inefficient and unproductive?"

Answer: — A company's retirement plan should be used for higher, nobler purposes than to get rid of inefficient employes. Management should keep employes informed of their competence through annual interview and peroformance ratings. When employes of any age become inefficient and unproductive they should be counseled, aided, put on probation or dismissed.

Question: — "Mother's mind is completely gone. She looks physically well but doesn't know who we are. She's in a church home, and the director says we shouldn't feel too bad because she's happy in her way and doesn't realize what has happened. Do most older people lose their minds if they live long enough?"

Answer: — No, many folks past 100 years of age are still mentally keen and alert. It has been estimated that less than five per cent of all older people loser their mental competence in later life. Thus, most of us can expect reasonably good mental health to the very end.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Thursday

Gemini is quick with quips. For humor and activity, it is difficult to top members of this zodiacal sign. Gemini is on the move, mentally and physically. Some famous persons born under this sign include Bob Hope, Ralph Edwards and Mickey Katz.

☆ ☆ ☆

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Hold off on travel, if practical. Reservations, directions need checking. Some ideas are subject to revision. Relatives, neighbors now tend to act in eccentric manner. Key is to maintain humor.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Delve into details, especially were finances are concerned. Stick to quality. One who offers something for nothing is not to be taken seriously. Aquarius person can aid cause. Respond accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You may be impatient to get started. But wise course now is conservative. Find out where, when and why. Older individual has your best interests at heart. Respond in manner which shows appreciaiton.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Key now is proper pacing. Gain co-operation of those who share views. Some family members could express envy. Show that you have no wish to exclude them. Message becomes increasingly clear.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Perceive needs of one who performs special services. Means go out of your way to express appreciation. Gift purchase could work wonders. Young person could act in rebellious manner.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Practical issues dominate. Leave speculation to others. Gather facts, analyze figures. Someone is trying to tell you something. Be receptive. Perceive truth when you encounter it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish what you start. Round out reports, projects. Obtain valid hint from Virgo message. See through guise of one who would sell you pig in poke. Some notes need review and revision.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You may be expending too much effort, money in wrong direction. Pull in reins. Let caution now be better part of valor. New outlook is needed. Leo indivilual can get what you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Avoid self-deception. See situations, persons as they actually exist. This will make progress easier. Otherwise, you will be taking backward steps. One who opposes you is bluffing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Forces tend to be scattered. You may be trying to do too much at once. Expand, but maintain sense of direction. Also, remember diet-health resolutions — and keep them. Key is moderation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Friendship could be tested. Allow others right to their own points of view. Be willing to change mind when — and if — presented with evidence. Some restrictions now are for your own benefit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on variety, change of scenery, ability to communicate feelings. Some in positions of authority are intent on changing policies. This could directly affect you. Be ready — and co-operative.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are able to aid those in trouble. People gravitate to you with their problems. You are drawn to law, medicine. You soon will have greater freedom of action — and gain more personal recognition, happiness.

Six Are Named To FB's Board

. . . At Annual Convention

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Delegates to the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation convention in Lincoln elected 6 directors to the organization's state board of directors. They are Mrs. Floyd Murphy of Norfolk, Harold Johnson Jr. of Ainsworth, Gene Hansen of Herman, Wayne Hansen of Dorchester, Robert Kleeb of Broken Bow and Don Harford of Haigler. Harford is the sole holdover director of the group.

The original announcement of the new directors, which was made at the close of the noon meeting, was changed just before the end of the convention session. Arland Edgren of Holdrege had been named youth at large director. However, the corrected announcement listed Harold Johnson Jr. of Ainsworth as the elected delegate. The error apparently was the result of an accidental misreading of the tellers report of the election.

In other action Wednesday, organization delegates gave state Farm Bureau President Roland Nelson of Mead an annual raise of $500, providing the government freeze on wages would allow the increase.

Resolutions Set

The remainder of the day's program was devoted to resolutions setting state farm bureau policy and the discussion of recommendations to the policy making committee of the National Farm Bureau.

The national policy questions ranged over a wide area, covering virtually every issue before the American public.

The delegates expressed opposition to reclamation projects that add to agricultural production, to the establishment of a National Food and Fiber Board as proposed by Nebraska Gov. J. J. Exon, to the concept of labor unions representing farmers, unnecessarily strict meat inspection of rural locker plants, excise taxes on farm tires and secondary boycotts by labor unions.

The delegates favored the establishment of Farm Bureau Marketing Associations, a more responsible use of agricultural chemicals by farmers, the proposed National Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining act, meat import quotas, vigorous inspection of meat imports to be sure they are equal to U.S. produced meat, and a free world-trade policy.

The delegates called for the maintenance of the present Department of Agriculture but indicated they would favor eliminating some of the consumer protection and other non-agricultural functions of the department.

Age Change Used

The delegates requested the American Farm Bureau to change the minimum age qualification for the young farmers and rancher program from 30 to 35, and recommended that representation of states in the national delegate body be based on the number of actual producer members. They also asked the national organization to follow the programs of the rural-urban coalition and support sound and worthy programs and activities that would benefit agriculture.

The delegates asked the national organization to work for modifications in the safety and health act as it relates to farmers and asked that holidays be moved back to the actual day they fall on.

On the state level, the organization was directed by the delegates to seek an extension of the state brand area to cover the entire state in an effort to curb livestock rustling. The issue was hotly debated with ranchers generally supporting the issue with many cattle feeders opposed on the ground of the extra work involved branding and sorting livestock.

The delegates voted to establish a development fund of $50,000 to be held in escrow until the fund was accumulated. At that point the directors are to hire a state director for the Nebraska Farm Bureau Marketing Association. The delegates also approved a request for the dry bean division of the marketing association to apply for authority to pool beans for sale under the provisions provided for by the commodity credit corporation.

The convention adjourned upon completion of the action on the resolutions Monday afternoon.

SHARING GRAIN . . . Burkey pours milo into Reber's bucket during dedication.

Seward County Sharing Abundance

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Goehner —A boxcar loaded with 63 tons of milo, dedicated Wednesday afternoon to the world's hungry, will leave Goehner Thursday or Friday.

Destined for the Archer-Daniels-Midland plant in Omaha, the grain will be exchanged for a quantity of ADM's soybean protein-supplement food, to be sent abroad to feed the hungry in the 32 nations served by CROP, the Christian Rural Overseas Program.

The milo represents Seward County's contribution to this year's CROP hunger drive. The county's efforts included a "Miles for the Hungry" walk from Seward to Milford last spring, in which hundreds of young hikers earned contributions from sponsors for each mile they walked, and a house-to-house, farm-to-farm canvas this fall which collected both cash and grain.

On hand for the dedication ceremony were local ministers and state and local CROP leaders. State CROP director Richard Staple announced that Seward County's contributions, totaling over $9,000 including a last-minute individual contribution of $1,000, should place it in the top five counties in the state.

Staple explained that contributions of grain go to several elevators in the county, which in turn reimburse CROP for the grain's cash value. The total cash is then used to buy a carload of milo to be sent to ADM, which accepts it in exchange for soybean food supplement to be sent on demand to CROP's hunger workers around the world.

ADM gives CROP a favorable exchange rate, Staple said, which is in effect a contribution to the hunger program.

Also on hand was elevator operator Fred Steinheider, who contributed most of the cost of loading the grain into the boxcar.

In a simple dedication ceremony, Ed Burkey of Milford, head of the county drive, emptied milo from a full bucket into an empty one held by drive captain William Reber of Seward—symbolizing "the sharing of our abundance with the poor overseas," Staple said.

Henderson Elected By Malone Center

Gerald Henderson was elected president of the Malone Community Center at their annual meeting Wednesday night.

Other officers named were Gladys McFields, first vice president; Shirlie Hutcherson, second vice president; Irma Warta, secretary; and Donald Little, treasurer.

The group also approved new board members Rev. Clifton Bullock, Carol Gourlay, Gary Hill, Donald Little and Haze Pope.

Housing Problems Noted

In other activities a panel discussion was presented on the housing problem in Lincoln.

Mrs. Peter Reilly, of the League of Women Voters, said that there is a long list of talkers in the area of housing but it is difficult to find anyone who is actually doing something.

She said that citizens are participating only irregularly in the affairs of housing. Mrs. Reilly said that when the city policies and goals committee met to draw up policies concerning housing many people were interested and present but Monday night when the group voted to remove one of the policies no one was on hand to make their desires known.

Mrs. Bea Richmond, chairman of the City-Wide Tenants Association, said that people are living in substandard housing because there is no other place for them to go.

Families Doubled Up

She said that families are doubled up in houses and that in one case there are 22 people living in a two-bedroom house. In another house the people have to sleep in shifts because of the lack of room.

Mrs. Richmond said that families face discrimination in housing in Lincoln every day not only because they are black, Indian of Chicano but because they are on ADC and low income. She said that Lincoln is one of the worst cities she has even seen in terms of low income discrimination.

Right now Lincoln needs 1,000 units of public housing, Mrs. Richmond said, adding that even this wouldn't take care of the problem completely.

City councilman, Bob Sikyta, said that one of the problems in the past has been duplication of efforts by groups working for reforms in housing and that the mayors' housing committee is eliminating much of this.

Sikyta said that he felt one way of helping to solve the problem is to put people through manpower training programs so they can get an adequate job.

The councilman said that the city has areas that need to be developed and if the city has to bend the rules and make a few exceptions to get emergency relief for families needing adequate housing that is the way it will have to be.

Sikyta said, "Everybody has the right to expect that which it takes to make their family comfortable.

Talks Planned To Explain Bond Issue

Alliance (UPI) — A full round of speaking engagements has been lined up for the remainder of the week by members of the Box Butte County hospital steering committee. The committee will explain the bond issue scheduled next Tuesday for the proposed new hospital project here. Talks will be given before all civic organizations, smaller groups at home coffees and at public events.

Fund Halt Would Interrupt NU's Colombia Plans

A cut-off of funds to the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) would "interrupt what has been planned as an orderly phase-out" of the University of Nebraska Mission in Colombia, according to NU's director of international programs.

But Clyde C. Noyes said the technical assistance program would not be affected until the start of calendar 1972.

"We're all right through December as far as money goes," Noyes siad Wednesday. "The money is in the pipeline."

"After that," he said, "depends on what happens in Washington."

The assistance program to the South American country is financed in part with funds, mostly loans, from AID, one of the agencies which has been in financial limbo while Congress has debated the merits of the foreign aid program.

AID loan funds for 1971 total $1.1 million, Noyes said.

The Nebraska mission, which has provided technical assistance in agriculture and home economics to Colombia, began in 1966.

NU has already started to wind down the program, and Noyes said "if AID goes out of the picture it will interrupt what has been planned as an orderly phase-out."

He said an amendment to the current contract has been planned to complete the project and meet loan and grant obligations to Colombian students studying in the U.S.

"If we didn't get the additional funding (about $200,000), he said, "some staff might have to be brought home" or students might have to cease their studies and return to Colombia.

"This would be real tragic, especially for the students," he said.

Virtually all of the additional $200,000 would be in the form of loans to the government of Colombia, he said.

Although most of the funding has come through AID loans, specific sectors of the project have been financed by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation and the Ford Foundation.

The Colombian government has also provided funding.

In addition to providing technical assistance to Colombian institutions responsible for teaching, research and extension, emphasis has also been on selection and training of young Colombians to assume positions of leadership in agriculture and home economics.

About 200 such students have traveled to the U.S. for such studies, said Noyes.

Housing Committee Told Some Rents Inequitable

More than half of the 134 low-income families interviewed in a housing survey conducted by Home and Neighborhood Development (HAND) and Lincoln Action Program (LAP) are paying more than 25% of their gross income for rent, it was reported Wednesday.

At a meeting of the Mayor's Committee on Housing, Sue Scott outlined the findings of the survey noting that these families "are faced with grossly inadequate housing and no workable prospect for improving their conditions."

She reported that Housing and Urban Development (HUD) standards provide that families should pay 25% of their gross income for housing if they are to adequately support their other family needs for food, clothing and other essentials.

However, she noted, 56% of the families interviewed paid more than 25% of their income for rent and other housing needs.

Of that 56%, 72% had to pay all or some of the utilities, while 54% of those paying less than 25% of their gross income for housing were paying all or some utilities, the report showed.

Mrs. Scott said that one major source of difficulty was excessive utility bills stemming from faulty housing. She cited examples of heating bills in winter ranging from $117 to $15 with the average bill being $41.

She reported that the families were primarily permanent residents of Lincoln and not transients and that only 37% of them were totally on welfare, 39% received some welfare, and 24% reported work was their only source of income.

Of those interviewed, according to the report, 70% were below Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) guidelines, with one-third of them being below guidelines as much as $1,500 or more.

Practically all of the families in the survey live in houses which do not meet Lincoln's minimum housing code, Mrs. Scott reported, noting that of the 14 Housing Authority houses in the survey group, there was an average of two conditions which did not meet the housing code.

She said, "It is clear from this survey, that even with the help of numerous agencies, the solution for Lincoln families with housing problems is not at hand."

Total State Investments Could Reach $1 Billion

Total state investments for calendar 1971 could approach the $1 billion mark, State Investment Officer Fred Kuethe said Wednesday.

Only $33 million more and the total would top the original prediction of $900 million in state funds invested.

"I think it's safe to say that we will exceed the $900 million figure by a considerable amount," Kuethe told the Investment Council.

The council was charged by the Legislature to put idle state funds to work in stocks and bonds. The funds include tax revenue, appropriations and retirement monies not immediately needed by the state for disbursement. The return on the investment would then supplement taxation as a revenue source.

The council also approved a contract with the University of Nebraska. Under its terms, the university would act as the procurement agent for the $1 million student loan program.

The contract, which has also been approved by the University Board of Regents, would mean that all students attending eligible private and public, technical and academic colleges in the state would go through the university to receive their loans.

"This will free our office from the routine paperwork involved in the state loan program. However, the vouchers will still have to be signed by this office."

The other proposed partner in the servicing arrangement, the State College Board, was also tentatively agreed to pending a servicing charge clarification.

The board will act as the follow-up agent in the loan program. After a student graduates, it will be responsible for seeing that the federally guaranteed loan is paid back.

The $1 million program is funded by the $43 million Teachers' Retirement Fund.

Goodyear Donates $57,220

The employes of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company and the members of United Rubber Workers No. 286 contributed $57,220 to the 1972 United Fund campaign, an increase over last year of 9.4%.

"This contribution represents the largest from any employe group in the city," said Walter G. Stephenson, Jr., chairman of the Lancaster County drive.

The total contributions to date are $982,391, representing 81.3% of the $1,207,640 campaign goal.

Division reports for this week are: special gifts, $130,974; unit firms, $501,242; loaned executives, $89,991; business, $75,277; government, $87,272; education, $81,672; and women's, $15,962.

Individual unit firms which have reached or are over their goals include: First Mid-America, Dana Cole, Henkle & Joyce Hardware, Sealrite, Weaver Potato Chip Company, Latsch's and Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Pretoria, South Africa (AP) — The Milk Board is promoting a white Christmas this year and urging offices planning holiday parties "to have milk available for your guests."

3-Year-Old Boy Added To State's Traffic Death Toll

Beatrice (AP) — The death of William Kirby, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Kirby of Beatrice, has been added to Nebraska's 1971 traffic death toll, the State Patrol reported Wednesday.

Authorities said the boy was struck by an unoccupied car which rolled down a driveway at his babysitter's residence and into a street. He was taken to a Lincoln hospital and died there about two hours after the accident.

Mrs. Perry Files Alienation Action

A $35,000 suit for alienation of affections was filed by Lee G. Perry in Lancaster District Court against Loree Golter. Both are Lincoln residents.

Plaintiff alleges her husband's affections were alienated by the defendant, causing him to abandon his home and children.

The Perrys were married Oct. 25, 1965, at Grand Island, according to the petition.

Planning Board Agrees To Hold Onto Property

A restaurant facility for the University Place business district, added park area for Havelock Park and the possibility of retaining as a library the Northeast Branch at 27th and Orchard were discussed Wednesday at public hearings before the City-County Planning Commission.

Up for hearing before the nine-member commission was a proposal for the sale of surplus city property where fire stations and branch libraries were located prior to their recent or scheduled relocation in new facilities.

The Planning Commission unanimously accepted the recommendation of Planning Director Douglas Brogden that the general policy of the city should be to hold these properties until adjacent lands could be accumulated to provide larger building sites for new businesses, or be used as trading stock so that land might be more easily accumulated in a portion of that particular business district.

Park Site Approved

The commission also approved the recommendations of Brogden and Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith that the site of the former Havelock Library which is adjacent to the Havelock Park be retained for park uses.

The Rev. Don Bredthauer from the University Place Community Organization (UPCO) which conducted a study on future development of the area asked the commission to consider retaining the former University Place City Hall and fire station at 2601 No. 48th, for possible use as a restaurant facility.

They contended that the survey indicated that need for a "good eating establishment" was high on the priority list and noted that Larry Price had indicated an interest in leasing the former City Hall building as a restaurant with a "Gay Nineties" atmosphere.

A spokesman for Price's restaurant operation said that Price was thinking in terms of a five-year lease rather than a long-time agreement.

George Knight of the Citizen's Bank indicated that the businessmen need a meeting place and such a restaurant facility there would meet that need.

Milton Evans of Nebraska Wesleyan University also spoke out in favor of the proposal noting that there is a definite need for more food services in the area.

The Planning Commission agreed that there was a need for added restaurant facilities in University Place and recommended that "excellent restaurant facilities" be encouraged at the location and that the city consider leasing the property for such a facility for the "further development" of University Place.

Wendall Gauger, who had made a plea last week before the Library Board to retain the Northeast Branch Library, also told the commission that there is a need for this facility since the new branch is some distance away and it is difficult for these people to have access to the new facility.

He said the area is "unique" in the city in that the number of books in the home is very low and the residents do not have the means to visit other branches which are a considerable distance from the area.

Most commission members indicated that this was a problem that should be worked out between the Library Board and City Council and made such a recommendation.

In other action:

— Approved vacation of a portion of U between 24th and 25th, and a portion of 25th between T and U.

— Approved preliminary and final plats for Debbie's Subdivision between 62nd and 63rd and Francis and Colby.

— Approved a proposed amendment relating to side and rear yards for business or industrial buildings.

Indian Grave Digging Ban Bill Readied

By United Press International

State Indian Commission Director Robert Mackey said Wednesday proposed legislation has been drafted which would stop the uncontrolled digging up of Indian graves.

At the last Indian commission meeting, Mackey was directed to investigate current state laws on the subject.

He said the attorney general's office has advised him there are control laws, but he said they do not apply to Indian graves and burial grounds.

"I just don't think outsiders can really comprehend what this means to us," Mackey said. "We call it desecration and it is in violation of the very basic philosphies of our culture."

"These graves are very sacred to us," he said, "and then to see and hear of them being opened and the bones and skulls found in them put on display is just too much."

He said his proposal would at least stop the "uncontrolled" opening of Indian graves and would also call for the discontinuance of the displaying of the remains.

A sponsor for the proposed legislation, however, has not been found, Mackey said.

Mackey also said the move is by no means limited only to Nebraska.

"We are as an Indian people, going to try and change this whole thing on a national level, all at once, or go about it state by state," he said.

Mackey said it has been conceded the "professionals" in the field of anthoropology probably could not be stopped from searching through the history of the American Indian, but the "non-professionals and just plain curiosity seekers" could be.

It has been suggested, he said, that a national burial grounds be established somewhere in middle America and all of the bones now on display across the nation be reburied there.

Abortion Loan Plan Proposed

A proposal to establish a loan fund for "women who want or need an abortion" was offered Wednesday at a meeting of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln student senate.

The motion was sponsored by Bill Behmer, a student senator, who suggested the senate set aside $1,000 of other than student fee monies to be used for abortion loans not to exceed $150.

"This bill is for women who want or need an abortion," said Behmer, "but due to private reasons, cannot afford an abortion out of state."

His proposal called for loan of the funds for transportation or medical costs.

It would provide ofr an interest-free loan for six months, but calls for an interest charge of 6% thereafter.

Among requirements, he said, would be proof that the borrower is of legal age.

Funds, according to the proposal, would not come from student fee monies, but rather from monies received from an insurance company which won the right to include a letter from the student government organization in a mailing to students, or from the student record store.

There was no discussion on the motion, since rules call for action at the next meeting following introduction. That meeting will come after the holiday break.

Study Urges New Boost For Voc Ag

Members of the Nebraska Advisory Council for Vocational and Technical Education Wednesday outlined their 1971 evaluation of Nebraska's vocational education program.

The evaluation proposes a "new emphasis" on vocational education in the state schools, an emphasis which the council suggests be "placed on both academic and vocational education in terms of the philosophy of career education."

The evaluation was outlined by council members Wednesday at a public hearing at the Capitol.

Guidance and counseling for students should become the top state priority, the report says because "the educational needs of students cannot be adequately met unless the student has set challenging life goals, including goals related to the 'world of work.'"

Suggesting that vocational and technical education has been bypassed by school counselors, the report says, "a greater combined effort on the part of all educators is needed to assist students in making wise occupational decisions, continuing their education, and developing their full human resource potential."

The evaluation also suggested the "comprehensive high school is the most feasible secondary school structure for meeting the needs of all youths."

"The most critical need for a broad occupational offering is found in the inner-city ghetto and rural poverty areas," the evaluation said.

Kissack Hopes Inspection Changes OKd By First Of Year

State Motor Vehicles Director John Kissack said Wednesday he hopes to have legislative approval of Nebraska's new motor vehicle inspection manual before the first of the year.

A revised manual was approved by the department earlier in the day following a public hearing at the Statehouse at which only one person appeared and he was there only for informational purposes and not to protest any of the revisions.

Kissack said the revisions are not drastic but are aimed at strengthening standards by inclusion of more detail on how the inspections are to be conducted.

Among the major revisions are:

—Break checks must include the pulling of at least one wheel for visual inspection of the brake drum and lining.

—Every vehicle must have at least two windshield wipers if they were included in the vehicle's original design.

—Exhaust pipes must extend to the rear or side edge of vehicles.

—All fenders must extend out and down from the side of vehicles.

—Inspection stations must be located in a permanent type building with at least two permanent walls and a permanent roof.

—Any corrective work needed as a result of an inspection may be done at a station of the motorist's choosing and need not be performed by the station or garage that conducted the inspection.

Professor To Work On Reapportionment

Dr. Adam C. Breckenridge, professor of political science at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been appointed by a federal judge panel to serve as a master in developing a new plan for apportionment of both houses of the Minnesota Legislature.

Dr. Adam Breckenridge

Prof. Breckenridge was asked to serve in this capacity following determination that the present Minnesota apportionment plan is unconstitutional. Breckenridge will carry out the assignment between the first and second semesters.

A member of the NU faculty since 1946, Breckenridge is the author of five books including "Readings in American State Government" and "One House For Two: A Study of Nebraska's Unicameral Legislature."

He is a former member of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Planning Commission and the Lincoln Zoning Board of Appeals.

Breckenridge holds an A.B. from Northwest Missouri State College, an M.A. from the University of Missouri, and a Ph. D. from Princeton University.

Becker Recipient Of Riekes Grant

Bart M. Becker Jr., of Schuyler, a junior majoring in English, at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, is the 1971-72 recipient of the John M. Riekes Memorial Scholarship for the Arts.

Each year, the John M. Riekes Foundation of Omaha supports a full-tuition scholarship ($535) for an NU student who is engaged in creative writing.

Watershed Defers Position On NRD

The Salt Valley Watershed District's board of directors Wednesday deferred taking a position on six "carryover" bills, pending before the 1972 Legislature, regarding the state's natural resources districts (NRD).

The board's executive committee recommended postponement until "positions" on the pending legislation are announced by the State Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts and the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission later this month.

The pending bills would require NRD's to have six-year plans, reduce the maximum permissible levy to one mill from two mills, change the membership to the state commission to one representative from each NRD and eliminate the mandatory requirement that soil conservation districts be merged into the NRD's.

One bill proposes repeal of the NRD law. The state commission has created 24 NRD's, which will become effective July 1 under present law.

The directors also marked during their meeting the 10th anniversary of ground-breaking ceremonies for the Antelope Creek Dam, now known as Holmes Lake Park, on the southeast edge of Lincoln as the first of the flood control structures built by the Corps of Engineers in the watershed.

The board was also advised of the proposed election of officers on Nov. 24 for the interim board of directors for the Lower Loup South NRD, of which the Salt Valley district is a party.

No Charges Will Be Filed In Fatal Traffic Accident

No state charges will be filed in connection with the death of 18-year-old Paul E. Gibson, who was killed Nov. 11 in a two-car accident at 84th and A, according to the Lancaster County Attorney's office Wednesday.

Young Gibson and Charles S. Clough, 18, of 501 Cottonwood, were occupants of a car which was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Helen A. Rosborough, 64, of Omaha.

Clough, who received multiple fractures in the accident, is listed in serious condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center.

Deputy County Atty. William Blue said no official determination was made as to who was driving the car in which the two youths, both East High School students, were riding.

Clough and young Gibson, who lived at 1635 So. 56th, had been working on the car in the school's automotive shop and were to have returned it to a student parking lot.

Farmer Stripped

Cherbourg, France (AP) — The power takeoff on a machine ripped the clothes off farmer Francois Lebarbanchon and left him standing in his beet field in just his boots. A passing motorist took the naked farmer to a hospital where he was treated for shock.

Pilger Is Chosen As New Editor Of Daily Nebraskan

Barry Pilger, senior education major from Lincoln, has been chosen editor of the Daily Nebraskan, student newspaper at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Pilger was named to the second semester position by the publications board, a standing committee of the Council on Student Life.

First semester editor is Gary Seacrest.

Written Briefs Ordered In Pay Dispute

The Lancaster District Court directed Wednesday that written briefs be filed in connection with a suit which claims Nebraska State Patrol troopers are entitled to overtime pay.

The suit was brought by former Patrolman Tom Roth, who contends the state owes him $3,049 for 148 hours of overtime compiled during his five years with the Patrol.

His claim for overtime pay was denied last June by State Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske.

During hearing testimony Wednesday, Patrol Supt. James E. Kruger said he has never approved overtime pay because the Legislature has never provided funds for this purpose.

Kruger said he thought it was "general knowledge" within the law enforcement organization that troopers would not get overtime pay.

The State of Nebraska has asked the suit be dismissed on grounds that overtime pay has never geen granted or promised to Patrol members.

In taking the suit under advestment, the court granted four weeks for the submission of all briefs.

Football games and holidays rarely fail to bring many visitors into Lincoln — and this year suburban residents are bracing themselves for the not-too-distant day when those two happy events are merged—meaning Thanksgiving, that special day when the NU Cornhuskers will meet the OU Sooners on the field—and on television.

All eyes will be glued to the set in most homes that day, including the Martin Heights residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hansen—and there will be about 24 eyes keeping track of the game.

You see, Mr. and Mrs. Hansen will be host and hostess at a family dinner that day—and also will be giving thanks that the entire family can be together.

Joining in the family fun and feast, which will include a turkey, a goose, and a hen, will be Mr. and Mrs. Hansen's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gary T. Hansen, and their children Jeffrey and Kimberly; another son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Alan M. Hansen and their children, daughter, Lisa Renee and son, Scott Alan Blaine Hansen, and a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tegley, and son Tommy.

Thanksgiving dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen E. Beach of Wedgewood Manor will be Mr. Beech's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Beach who, undoubtedly, will be bubbling over with talk of their recent trip to Pittsbuurgh, Pa.

During the trip to the east, made by the travelers, they spent 10 days visiting with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beach and their sons, Mike, David, and Matthew.

Not to be forgotten are Mr. and Mrs. Owen Beach's children, Candy, Susan, Toby, and Jimmy, who also will share in the family dinner—and Jimmy will be congratulated on his 13th birthday which will be on Wednesday, Nov. 24, just one day before Turkey Day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Carmichael left their Trendwood home recently and motored to Fremont where they visited with some very special guests at the home of Mrs. Carmichael's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stratton, Sr.

The honored visitors were Mrs. Carmichael's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stratton, Jr., who make their home in Puerto Rico where he is manager of the Goodyear Western Hemisphere Co.

Also journeying from Lincoln for the visit were Mrs. Carmichael's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Matoush.

On another recent weekend Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael were host and hostess to guests at their home—Dr. and Mrs. Jim Thayer of Sidney who were in Lincoln for an NU football game which just happend to coincide with the date of a medical reunion for Dr. Thayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor of Wellington Greens will be going to grandmother's house for Thanksgiving dinner. All of the turkey and trimmings this year will be at the home of Mrs. Taylor's grandmother, Mrs. Albert Speier. Mrs. Speier also will be entertaining the Taylor's daughter and her great granddaughter, Miss Heather Marie Taylor, as well as a special guest from New York City, a son, Paul Speier. Sharing in the festivities will be Mrs. Taylor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Silverman, also of Wellington Greens.

A New President

Mrs. Donna Brummer has been named president-elect of the Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

The announcement was made at the group's monthly dinner meeting on Wednesday evening, Nov. 17.

Other officers who will assume their positions on Jan. 1, 1972, are Mrs. Marjorie Bartels, first vice president; Miss Georgi Ann Maixner, second vice president; Mrs. Beryl Arnold, third vice president; and Mrs. Evelyn O'Connor, treasurer.

The president-elect has resided in Lincoln for 21 years and has been a member of the Women's Division since 1959. She is employed with the Lincoln Public Schools.

Mrs. Brummer has served the group in several other capacities, including the Women's Division Board of Directors, Youth, Activities, Ways and Means, and Health and Education Committees. She is the past second vice president.

Talk

The other day we were talking about Miss Jill Guenzel, whose marriage to Ron Nelson will be solemnized on Saturday morning, and we mentioned the fact that she was busy. That is a masterpiece of understatement.

Let's take a look at last Saturday, for instance.

For Miss Guenzel the day began with a breakfast when Mrs. Gilbert Sechrist was a hostess at her home, and when the guest list included members of the family.

* * *

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Scott Dvorak and Miss Sandy Campbell complimented the bride-elect with an afternoon party and miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Dvorak.

* * *

Then came Saturday evening — This time Miss Guenzel and her fiance shared honors at a dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. Dean Forke and Miss Janis Forke were host and hostesses at their home.

* * *

That doesn't complete the courtesy picture, however.

On Sunday, Nov. 14, Miss Guenzel and Mr. Nelson were out and about again — The affair was a family brunch and the hosts and hostesses included Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Rebensdorf, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guenzel, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Tim Cox.

The last party will be on Friday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guenzel pay prenuptial courtesy to the bride-elect and her fiance, when they entertain at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guenzel.

* * *

Saturday, Nov. 20, not only has its quota of weddings, it also has dinner dances.

The one we have in mind at the moment is dining and dancing at Hotel Lincoln and, as you may have surmised, it is a dancing club.

The Charada Club will begin its merrymaking in the Terrace Room at 7 o'clock, and we might add that it is guest night.

An incomplete list of those guest couples includes Mr. and Mrs. Don Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ackley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ware. And also to be introduced at the party are three new member couples — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Starr.

Planning the details of the dinner dance is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Broer, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hand.

Dessert Luncheon Planned

The members of the American Association of University Women Current Literature division will be treated to a dessert luncheon on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 18.

The 12:30 o'clock affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd E. Chapman, 3340 Grimsby Lane.

The discussion of James Houston's "White Dawn," will be led by Mrs. Ed W. Ruehle.

BOOKS—"The Tenants"

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

In his most recent book, Bernard Malamud writes of a number of things—of the frustrating and, at times, frightening complexity of interracial relationships; of loneliness; of the anguish and torment endured by an author struggling to bring to a conclusion a book that defies completion. Most of all, he writes about the alienation that begins when one cannot come to grips with himself; and that is manifested in an inability to establish viable interpersonal relationships.

"The Tenants" (Farrar, Straus and Giroux) is filled with characters suffering from the aforementioned problems. As Malamud brings them together within the format of his book, the stage is set for some chilling confrontations.

In the beginning, there is Harry Lesser, 36-year-old Jewish author living alone on the upper floor of a crumbling New York City tenement, where he agonizes daily over the conclusion of a book that has been nine and one-half years in the writing. Refusing to leave the place where his book had its inception, he frustrates the landlord's every attempt to entice him to leave so that the building might be demolished.

One day, there appears in the same building one Willie Spearmint—a Black writer struggling to complete his first book. At first Lesser sees Spearmint as an uninvited intruder whose very presence threatens his ability to finish his book. However, soon, a rather strained, always mutually-suspicious camaraderie develops between the two; and ultimately Spearmint invites Lesser to criticize his manuscript. It is from the beginning, a turbulent relationship, complicated by racial hang-ups on both sides; and it ends in a symbolic death-struggle in which both are destroyed.

Other characters appear (e.g., Irene, Spearmint's white girlfriend who later takes up with Lesser; and who seeks her identity through acting and psycho-analysis, never quite getting the job done); however their presence serves merely to enhance the conflict between the two writers.

All of the author's characters are, in a significant sense, unable to cope with themselves. In the case of Lesser, Malamud adeptly portrays the writer's attempt to identify himself through his book. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said for his analysis of Spearmint's struggle to affirm his blackness through his writing. Despite a compelling story-line and some truly penetrating passages, Malamud does not delve deeply enough into the complexity that is Spearmint; and the book suffers for that.

Abby: resign and leave town

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can help me figure something out. I can't, and I'm about to lose my mind.

Seven years ago I fell in love with my boss. Yes, I knew he had a wife and grown children, but he told me he loved me and that his sex life at home was nil. Soon my love for him became the most important thing in my life. We managed to get together often. I even rented an apartment near his home to be more accessible.

Suddenly his wife tells him she has known about our affair from the beginning, but she said nothing, hoping to ride it out. I asked why he didn't let her divorce him, and he said he didn't want a divorce, that he and his wife are "working things out now."

Where does that leave me? He ignores me at the office now. I gave him seven years of my life. My questions:

1. How could any wife stand by, knowing her husband had another woman, and just "ride it out," as she says?

2. If his sex life at home really was nil, why is he sticking with her and trying to work things out?

3. Is there any way I can get him back?

4 Could it be that he really loves her after all?

I am almost 40 and I'm afraid life is passing me by. Please help me. I can't even get him to talk to me about it.

THREE TIME LOSER

DEAR LOSER: 1. She loved him.

2. Maybe his sex life WAS nil, but it's better now.

3. I doubt it.

4. Could be.

Hand in your resignation and relocate as far away as possible. For a going away present he should give you excellent references.

Rose Society Plans Party

The Lincoln Rose Society installed new officers at its monthly dinner on Monday evening. C. V. Henkle was installed as the president, and other officers are: James Hewitt, vice president; Mrs. M. O. Phelps, secretary; Mrs. Larry Zeiler, treasurer.

The new directors are: Dr. J. R. Loudon, Mrs. Ed Hammond, Robert Frisch, Luke Bartek and Mrs. John Tomlinson.

Wayne Whitney, a panel member of Backyard Farmers, conducted a question and answer discussion on roses at the meeting.

The Rose Society is planning its gala Christmas dinner and party for Wednesday evening, December 8, at the Elks Club where the festivities will begin at 7 o'clock.

Mrs. Maurice Paulson is program chairman for the event, and Mrs. D. R. Smith is chairman of the decorating committee.

Opening lead — Two of hearts.

It is generally conceded that defense is the most difficult part of the game. True, some players have a particular aptitude for it, but by and large the Achilles' heel of most players is defense.

One reason is that it is difficult to formulate general rules to govern defense. A player has to do his own thinking as play progresses, and cannot, as he does in bidding, rely on such everyday yardsticks as point count, Blackwood, Stayman, and so on.

Take this hand where East is defending against four spades. He cashes the A-K of hearts, which is certainly simple enough, but what should he do next?

It is a virtual certainty that South has the king of spades and ace of diamonds for his bids. The only real chance to stop the contract must therefore lie in West's being able to take a second trump trick with either the ten or nine of spades.

In line with this, East plays another heart at trick three. He knows he is conceding a ruff and discard, but he also knows it will do declarer no good and might, conceivably, do him some harm.

South ruffs in his hand and can do no better than lead a trump to the jack. Pursuing his scheme of defense. East permits the jack to win the trick.

Declarer must now go down whatever he does next. If he continues with a trump, East takes the ace and plays the fourth round of hearts.

West is by now out of hearts and declarer cannot prevent him from scoring the ten of spades as the setting trick. East's decision at trick three to hand declarer a ruff and discard — a play ordinarily frowned upon — bears very good fruit.

Parents Of Retarded Children Upset Over Change

More than 50 mothers, fathers and teachers of retarded children packed a basement room of Bethany Christian Church Wednesday night in emotional disagreement over the recent demotions of two supervisors.

Facing the parents were John W. Luebs, who became director of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) Aug. 31, and Mrs. Pat Adams, director of LOMR's child development programs, PEP and TRY.

Several parents confronted Luebs with the fear that more demotions or firings may follow, upsetting delicate teacher-child relationships. A mother who said she has a two-year-old child enrolled in the TRY (Training of Retarded Youngsters) pre-school program, said, "I love the teachers. They're great. I don't know why all the confusion."

'Well Pleased'

Another parent said, "I'm very well pleased with what we have now. Why should we be subject to all these changes?"

In reply, Luebs said, "You say you're satisfied. Well, we (the LOMR board) are not." He said as director of LOMR he must see that child development programs meet state standards. He said the supervisors were demoted to teacher roles, with the same pay, because they lacked the necessary education.

"You're not going to lose what you have," he said. "No children will be denied services in this program. As a matter of fact, services will improve."

Understands Fears

Mrs. Adams said she understands the fears brought about by the personnel changes. She told the group her main concern is for the children and they are in no danger of losing any beneficial programs.

In an opening statement, Luebs said LOMR has no funds to replace the school's building which he said has been ordered vacated by the Lincoln Fire Department. He said LOMR will not provide services that should be the responsibility of the Lincoln School Board.

A parent said she will not "feel comfortable" about Luebs remarks until Superintendent of Schools John Prasch pledges that the Lincoln school system will assume responsibility for the education of retarded children.

Little Progress

David Blume, who became director of CARC Sept. 1, said discussion of the school board's role is being held with Prasch. He said that the talks have not progressed enough to be made public, but indicated the school board eventually will assume responsibility for education of the retarded children.

"The situation is unfortunate as it stands — I hate to see all the hostility," he said, referring to the frequency of heated words. "I'm standing here shaking and I'm not even on the firing line."

A parent said she feels "We (parents) don't know where we're at" because of lack of funds for a new building and the fear of losing more staff and perhaps some programs. Luebs said there is "no shortage of funds to carry on the necessary aspects of the program."

Rabid Dog May Have Bit Attackers

Schuyler (AP) — A dog believed to be responsible for chasing away three persons involved in the beating of two rural Schuyler women has died of what may be rabies, Colfax County Sheriff Richard Kruse said Wednesday.

Kruse said although no tests had been taken on the dog, it was believed the dog was rabid.

Kruse said there was a possibility that the dog had bitten one of the trio and he urged them to contact a doctor.

The two women, Mrs. Mary Helus and her daughter Rosela, were hospitalized following the beating.

Safety Group Tabs Collins As Director

Thomas H. Collins of Lincoln was selected chairman Wednesday of the advisory committee of the Nebraska Alcohol and Highway Safety Project, a state-wide education program on alcohol abuse.

The project, backed by a $63,554 federal grant through the Nebraska Highway Safety Program, ultimately calls for two-day workshops next year in about 25 Nebraska communities identified as having significant alcohol-related traffic problems. The workshops, designed for each specific community, will also be conducted in populations centers of Nebraska, excluding Omaha and Lincoln.

In preparation for the workshops, the committee plans to collect statistics on alcohol-related accidents in the communities and train 25 local teams of lawmen, lawyers, doctors, teachers and clergymen to implement local programs.

1925 Mistake Corrected

Thanks to Max Roper a mistake concerning the record of the 1925 Nebraska Wesleyan football team has been corrected.

A review of past NWU football teams revealed that the 1925 Plainsmen club was 6-2. But Max, who played on the 1925 team, was sure the squad didn't lose any games.

A check with current NWU records credited the 1925 club with a 6-2 mark which was correct in a way.

Wesleyan sports information director Jack Andersen got out some old football records which cleared up the matter. It seems the old football records were kept in a different manner and this has caused the confusion.

The 1925 club was listed as having six wins and two ties. No mention was given to whether the team lost any games or not.

The 1925 squad didn't lose any games but this wasn't mentioned in the records.

Andersen theorizes the inevitable happened sometime when the old records were changed to newer ones. Someone got in a hurry in looking up the records and just saw the figures six and two.

That quick glance told the person the 1925 team was 6-2 and not 6-0-2 which is correct.

So for quite a few years the NWU football press book and other sources show the 1925 team was 6-2. Andersen checked other old records to make sure the mistake wasn't repeated in any other years.

Officials All Lawyers

During the past Wesleyan football season coach Harold Chaffee found out all four officials in one home game were lawyers from Omaha.

When he heard this Chaffee is reported to have replied, "We should get some real good explanations on any disputed calls."

However there weren't any disputed calls and NWU won the game over Huron College, 28-7.

A few of the Plainsmen football players, mainly defensive tackle Dennis Erickson, chew tobacco and so does assistant coach Ron Bachman. It seems Dennis' chewing of the stuff helped ready the offense at the Bethel, Kan. game.

With a controversy over protective mouthpieces almost causing a forfeit, Wesleyan managed to gather up 11 between the entire team.

With Dennis chewing as usual, Chaffee didn't have any trouble getting the offensive unit ready to go onto the field when the ball changed hands. It seems the last offensive player on the field was stuck with Erickson's mouthpiece.

Place For Eight-Man Player

Andersen pointed out one NWU game that eight of the players on the kickoff unit for Wesleyan played eight-man football in high school.

The Plainsmen, along with some other colleges notably Hastings, have quite a few players from eight-man schools. The leading rusher in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference this season was Gary Filipi, who played eight-man at Milligan.

With many of the state college teams short on personnel this year Andersen says it appears players from high schools with eight-man will be able to play college ball.

Two players from the state college ranks are being strongly recommended for all-American honors. Chadron has sent out a letter on defensive tackle Mike Parks and NWU is promoting end John McLaughlin.

Parks was a stalwart in the defensive line and holds many records while McLaughlin holds every passing record on the NWU books.

Husker Fortunes Not Pinned To Superstars

. . . BALANCE, TEAMWORK, DEPTH CHARACTERISTICS OF DEVANEY TEAMS

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

Coach Bob Devaney, whose Nebraska Cornhuskers are in pursuit of a second straight national football title, is not one to pin his fortunes on one or two superstar players.

"I think the success of the Nebraska program is the fact it is built around a team of fine football players who feel they depend on each other," Devaney said in an interview.

Not that there are no standouts on the top-ranked Cornhusker team, headed for a Thanksgiving Day showdown with second-ranked Oklahoma.

"We think we have some great football players," says Devaney.

"We have players on our team we wouldn't trade for any in the country. Certainly, I think we have players who are candidates for all-American, and the Heisman Trophy, for that matter.

But I hesitate as a coach to single out one player and say he is the player on our team.

"I don't think it's up to the coach to give certain players a buildup. I think a player's ability is very evident to all who see the games, write about them and talk about them."

Balance, teamwork and reasonable depth have been characteristics of the 1971 Cornhuskers, who will be playing for the Big Eight title and a possible national crown Nov. 25.

Devaney, who owns a career record of 124 wins, 28 losses and six ties, says he sees no particular psychological advantage or disadvantage to being in defense of a No. 1 ranking as opposed to being No. 2 and shooting for the top spot, as in the case with Oklahoma.

But, he said, "I'd rather be number one and try to stay there."

Assistant Coach James Walden suggests the biggest problem may be to keep the Huskers from getting too emotionally charged for the game. On the other hand, Devaney says he would not like his team to be as relaxed as was the 1968 team, which went to Norman, Okla., and was blanked 47-0.

"We want to go down there as ready to play as we were in 1969," he said, referring to a game won by Nebraska 44-14. "We were ready to play that day."

ALI WINS DECISION

. . . Mathis Defeated At Houston Astrodome

Houston (UPI) — Utterly weary Buster Mathis, who climbed off the canvas four tortuous times in his 12-round defeat by Muhammad Ali, offered a simple explanation Wednesday night why he wanted so much to finish on his feet against the former heavyweight king.

"You guys," Mathis told reporters, "You guys have been saying I was a yellow dog — that I had no heart, that I was a pussycat."

Mathis was the picture of weariness as he sat on a chair on a raised platform in his dressing room to answer the questions of newsmen at the end of the Astrodome fight in which he made an unsuccessful return to the ring after an absence of 2½ years.

Big Buster made two points in his answer — that Ali never hurt him, but also that Ali is a "better fighter than Joe Frazier."

Mathis moved forward during most of the early fight, trying to get inside Ali's stabbing left. Then, at one point in the middle rounds, when Ali taunted him by going into a fit of fancy footwork (the double clutch shuffle), Mathis responded by imitating him. Virtually the same thing happened in the next round.

"I let my feelings run away from me. I don't know why. I was worried about getting tired than anything. I gave it all I got."

Ali said he deliberately toyed with the staggering Mathis "Because he obviously was out and I didn't want to kill him."

Ali, who denied he was slow at his career-high weight of 227 said he hit his hulking opponent with a "linger-on-punch — just like I did with (Jimmy) Ellis."

Ali announced he would fight Jurgen Blin of Germany Dec. 18 in Zurich. He said he was ready anytime, anywhere to fight heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, who won a 15-round decision over Ali last March.

Jordan scored the fight 116-105 for Ali on the point system used in Texas, which awards 10 points to the winner of a round. Judge Ernie Taylor agreed 118-104 and Judge Earl Keel saw it 119-108. UPI scored it 120-108 for Ali.

In another bout carried by closed circuit TV overseas, Joe Bugner, 220½ of England, scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Mike Boswell, 196, Youngstown, Ohio.

In a second 10-rounder, George Chuvalo, 227, Toronto, gained a unanimous decision over Cleveland Williams, 229½, Houston.

AP Says Irish Nix Bowl Bids

New York (AP) — The Notre Dame football team has decided not to play in a post-season bowl game this year and the announcement will be made Thursday, The Associated Press learned Wednesday night.

The feeling of the team was that there is no sense in going to a bowl unless they could play a team ranked higher in the polls. Notre Dame is ranked seventh this week.

Champs Tangle

A clash of defending champions had the crowd sitting on the edge of their seats Wednesday night during the second Lincoln Golden Gloves Boxing Smoker as Mike Wilson stepped up a class to fight John Brown in the seventh bout.

Wilson, the 1971 Southeast District and Midwest Golden Gloves champion at 132 lbs., scored a TKO victory over John Brown, 1971 Southeast champion at 139 lbs.

Wilson, fighting for Branding Iron, boxing club knocked Brown down in the second round once before connecting with a hard right to daze the heavier fighter and force referee Larry Emory to stop the fight.

"He's won most of his fights by KO's," Wilson said about Brown following his victory. "I knew it would be a good fight.

"When I first went in, I knew that I had to move on him. I didn't want to stand and slug it out. He has a real hard right."

Wilson said he didn't try to rush it in the second as he thought he had it won on points.

"I just tried to move real slow and when he tried to come in, I threw up a good offense." He paused then added: "The best defense is a good offense. It's hard to get through a maze of punches."

Wilson opened the fight by carrying the attack to Brown, forcing the heavier fighter back into the ropes, slipping punches and throwing salvos at Brown's face and stomach. Only once did Brown connect with his patented overhand right that has chilled many previous opponents, but that punch before 348 fans was partially cushioned by Wilson's shoulder.

"I felt one of his punches when he had me in a corner," Wilson said. "That one had me hurt for a second, but I got away."

The ex-Marine indicated that he really wanted the fight to help sharpen him up for the Golden Gloves.

"You don't gain anything by fighting guys who've only had one or two fights. Since I knew that he was strong, I thought there would be a knockout. And since I've never been knocked out, I thought it would be him," Wilson explained.

Another Southeast District Golden lovesG champion, Randy Nelsen, scored a third round TKO in :45 over Eloy Honojosa, 163.

Nelsen, boxing-coach of the Saylor Boxing Club, entered the ring five pounds heavier than the Fairbury fighter and proved to any doubters that he can take a punch when Hinojosa forced Nelsen to abandon his boxing style for a brawling, slugging fight.

Huskers Seek Way To Stop Wishbone

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Arkansas football coach Frank Broyles claimed earlier in the season there's no scheme that can be devised to stop the wishbone-T offense and Nebraska coach Bob Devaney agrees that "perhaps no one has yet come up with the most effective way of stopping it."

But the Husker coach also believes, "Some day they'll come up with the most effective way of stopping it." And he and his coaching staff are working nights this week trying to do just that.

"The formation certainly presents a defense with problems," he admits. "One of the things about it is that it lets a team spend a lot of time working on its running game because they never get in a long yardage situation where they're forced to pass.

"But Oklahoma has been able to pass when it wanted to and that's made them even tougher to defense. One of the big things in their success is that they've passed in situations where you didn't know if they would run or pass."

Devaney cited the Colorado game as an example. "Against Colorado, they ran for their first score and they got their second to go ahead by 14-0 by passing on first down," he pointed out.

Another part of the problem for the Husker defense is that Oklahoma is the first team they've faced this year to use the wishbone-T offense.

"We haven't seen it since we played Oklahoma a year ago," Devaney noted. "And we didn't do a very good job of defensing it then."

In trying to defense it better this year the Husker coaches are spending countless hours looking at films of OU games against Southern Cal, Pittsburgh, Kansas State, Colorado and Missouri.

The team that defensed the Sooners the best this season was Missouri and Devaney admits, "There have been a lot of times when I would have liked to have played the Missouri defense.

"But you have to play it all the time to be effective. And just to pattern yourself exactly after someone else generally doesn't work.

"One of the things you can't do is change too radically from what you've been doing."

The Husker coach said it was the Missouri ends, who made the Tiger defense work against the Sooners.

"Missouri's ends did a great job," he said. "They knocked over the blocker and still made the tackle. Oklahoma doesn't think anyone can do that, but Missouri did it."

But aside from trying to stop the wishbone-T, Devaney points out, "We've got to score some points ourselves. I think both the Oklahoma defense and our offense are being underrated."

And another thought on the wishbone. "There are a lot of teams running the wishbone that are losing," Devaney points out.

SI Gives Edge To OU

Sports Illustrated, featuring Nebraska and Oklahoma on its cover this week, gives the edge to the Sooners in the Thanksgiving Day game.

Writer Dan Jenkins says, "The answer to the enigma lies in faster, more deceptive Oklahoma's ability to operate the most devastating attack in football today.

"Nobody really stops the triple option, because it has the enemy outnumbered. It stops itself.

"If the Sooners do not stop themselves, then they will win something that might be called —hey, gang, why not call it the Game of the Decade?"

Signing For Library

The Nebraska football team will lend itself on Dec. 13 to the drive to make the University's Love Library No. 1.

The Husker footballers will gather at the NU Coliseum at 4 p.m. that day for an autograph session. Admission to the Coliseum will be $2 with proceeds going to the Love Library Fund.

Four Juniors Make All-State Class D Eleven

. . . GUARDS, TACKLES AVERAGE MORE THAN 217 POUNDS PER MAN

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Four juniors and a quartet of guards and tackles who average over 217 pounds highlight the 1971 Lincoln Star Class D high school all-state football team.

The results of the ballot tabulation, after each coach in the state was invited to vote, placed end Stan Eilers of Nelson, Callaway tackle Gene McCleary and backs Scott Albrecht of Davenport and Sumner's Dave Jones on the dream team despite the fact that each has another year of competition remaining.

McCleary is also one of the mammouth interior linemen. At 215 pounds he's matched by senior guard Mike Essay of Alliance St. Agnes.

The king of the group is Clay Center tackle Jim Kounovsky at 235 pounds, while the lightweight of the foursome is Niobrara guard David Theirolf at "just" 205.

Alliance St. Agnes, which captured the No. 1 place in the Class D ratings this fall, was the only school to grab more than one spot on the mythical eleven. Crusader quarterback Pat Powers joins Albrecht, Jones and hard-charging Falls City Sacred Heart fullback Bill Simon to form the backfield.

The all-star aggregation is completed by Dix center Roy Wurdeman and Lexington St. Ann back Barry Schuckman, who is shifted to end because of his pass catching abilities, to team with Eilers.

The Class D all-state backfield has everything. Powers completed 68 passes this fall for 1,066 yards, including ten touchdowns and six double extra points.

But the impressive figure is the fact that each and every one of his completions averaged a 15.8 yard gain.

The junior halfbacks are elusive yet powerful runners. Jones handled the ball 171 times this fall — punt and kickoff returns, pass receptions and scrimmage carries — and came up with a total yardage figure of 1,454.

That meant eight and a half yards every time the Sumner scooter touched the ball. In a game that allows four downs to make ten yards, that's bad news for the opposition.

Albrecht was another 1,000 plus yardage gainer for the season as he zipped for 11 touchdowns. The shortest player on the team at 5-8, Albrecht would be hard to find behind that big line, and even harder to bring down.

Simon is the perfect fullback for this all-state club. If Powers' passing or the running of Jones and Albrecht hadn't already gained the first down, just give it to the Falls City Sacred Heart bruiser.

Though his five-yard average attests to the fact that he also broke some long ones, Simon was good for three yards when everybody in the place knew he was going to carry.

As all of the interior linemen piled up the votes from opposing coaches, there was one phrase that came out over and over again. "He's quick off the ball and a great blocker. When they needed yardage, he cleared the path."

The quotes apply to all five of the unsung heroes in the line who were also cited for their outstanding defensive play. "Big and strong," the coaches kept saying in reference to the entire group.

And the all-state team adds another offensive weapon with a pair of fine ends.

Eilers, a standout on both offense and defense, snared 34 passes this fall, including seven TD grabs and seven more for extra points.

That made him the leading scorer on a team that averaged 26 points a game. The "good hands" required of an end belong to the Nelson flanker. He nabbed two deflected passes for crucial TD's this season.

Schuckman, though a fine halfback, is recruited to play end on the all-state team because of his speed and pass catching abilities.

For St. Ann's this fall he averaged over 16 yards on each aerial reception while tallying 11 touchdowns.

NU, OU Top Stat Charts, Too

New York — In addition to ranking 1-2 in the national polls, Nebraska and Oklahoma also between them hold down either the first or second spot in six of the eight national statistical categories.

The Sooners are No. 1 in total offense, rushing offense and scoring.

Nebraska is No. 1 in total defense and No. 2 in rushing defense and defense against scoring. In addition, the Huskers are fourth in scoring, eighth in total offense and 15th in passing offense.

Kirshen Elected New President

Omaha (AP) — Cal Kirshen of KMTV was elected president of the Omaha Sportscasters Wednesday.

Fred Girardi, sports information director at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, was elected vice president at the groups's session here.

Walt Gibbs of KRCB-Radio, Council Bluffs, Iowa, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The new officers will be installed at the annual meeting Jan. 19 at Peony Park.

Pinder Regains Title

New York (UPI) — Lightning quick Enrique Pinder of Panama, beating Davey Vasquez to the punch consistently for 12 rounds, regained his North American Bantamweight Title with a unanimous decision Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden.

Husker, Sooner Stars Dominate Big 8 Stats

. . . LEAD IN ALL BUT TWO CATEGORIES

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The skilled positions on the Nebraska and Oklahoma football teams are well-manned.

So dominant have the two teams been in the Big Eight Conference that either a Cornhusker or Sooner leads every individual statistical category except two.

Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and John Carroll and Nebraska's Jerry Tagge and Johnny Rodgers are the pace-setters. Pruitt leads in rushing, Carroll in kick scoring, Tagge in passing and total offense and Rodgers in pass receiving, punt and kickoff returning.

Pruitt and Rodgers are tied for the scoring lead with 90 points, each scoring 15 touchdowns.

Pruitt, though he played less than a half last week, has rushed for 1,423 yards on 150 carries for 9.5 yards per try. He has a 158.1-yard per game average.

Tagge has completed 61.9 per cent of his passes for 1,706 yards and 14 touchdowns. He needs only four more to equal the Big Eight record of 18 set by Terry McMillan of Missouri in 1969. Running and passing, Tagge has 1,926 yards.

Rodgers has caught 10 touchdown passes, a Big Eight record. For the season, he has 45 receptions for 729 yards. The shifty junior is averaging 15.9 yards per punt return and 32.6 yards per kickoff return.

Carroll has kicked for 63 points. He's converted 42 of 50 points after touchdowns and hit 7 of 10 field goal attempts.

Only categories not dominated by players on the nation's No. 1 and 2-ranked teams are punting and pass interceptions and Oklahoma's John Shelley is one of five players tied for the pass interception lead with five.

Oklahoma State's Jim Benien is far and away the league's best punter. He averaging 46.5 yards on 66 kicks.

The league's statistics make it obvious the Big Eight's most skilled players will be on the field Thanksgiving Day in Norman.

Douglas Defeats Adams For Title At Peru State

Peru (UPI) — Douglas High School defeated Adams High 15-8 and 14-7 Wednesday night to win the championship in the 26th annual Peru State College High School Girls Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

Johnson-Brock downed Dawson-Verdon 9-12, 15-5 and 15-7 to take consolation honors. In earlier semi-final play Wednesday, Adams defeated Dawson-Verdon 13-15, 15-10 and 15-6, while Douglas topped Johnson-Brock 15-10 and 15-12.

The All-Tourney Team: Sue Schulze, Dawson-Verdon; Diane Rapp, Adams; Mary Steinkuhler, Syracuse; Rita Steinkuhler, Douglas; Barb Haack, Johnson-Brock, Carol Spitznogle, Odell. The Second Team: Janice Schmidt, Adams; Vanee Hinderks, Anselmo-Merna; Susan Remmers, Filley; Vicky Seeba, Nemaha Valley; Glenda Dejonge, Dawson-Verdon, Amy Barr, Barneston.

Hunting Clock

The following applies to any point in Nebraska that is due north or due south of each of the cities and towns. For each 9 miles west of any designated city, add one minute. For each 9 miles east, subtract one minute. All times listed are Central Daylight Time, except for Scottsbluff, which is on Mountain Daylight Time.

Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset for big-game, sunrise to sunset for wild turkey, and one-half hour before sunrise for all other species.

Sabin Quits As Coach

Denver (UPI) — When Lou Saban signed a 10-year contract in December of 1966 as head coach and general manager of the Denver Broncos, he said he would "develop a winning football team." On Wednesday, four losing seasons later, Saban quit as head coach.

He will remain general manager. The resignation is effective immediately and offensive line coach Jerry Smith was named acting head coach for the Broncos.

Blue Becomes Youngest, First A's Player Ever To Win AL's MVP

Mansfield, La. (AP) — Vida Blue's selection as the American League's Most Valuable Player Wednesday came at an opportune time for the Oakland Star—just as the wage-price freeze expired.

The 22-year-old lefthander from this tiny northwest Louisiana town is acknowledged as one of baseball's most underpaid stars and he's capitalized on the fact by mentioning it in a television commercial.

In addition, at the White House last summer, President Nixon called Blue "the most underpaid player in baseball." Blue earned an estimated $14,000 this year.

In an interview at his home Wednesday, Blue said he had more television commercials lined up and expected to huddle with the Oakland Athletics soon to sign a contract for the next baseball season.

He observed that the Most Valuable Player award coming close on the heels of the Cy Young Award for being the league's outstanding pitcher would not hurt his bargaining position.

"Now that the wage-price freeze is over, I think it's just a matter of time," said Blue. "I'm not saying that we're going to sign within the next day or two, but now that the freeze is over it makes it legal for everyone to negotiate to get a raise or a new contract or whatever they're negotiating for."

It was suggested the Federal Pay Board probably would be willing to exempt Blue from the 5.5 per cent pay raise ceiling.

"They're going to have to," Blue said with a grin. "Because I'm going to be begging, man."

Blue earned 14 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 268 points from the Baseball Writers Association of America committee.

Sal Bando, Blue's Oakland teammate, drew four first place votes and 182 points to finish second.

"I thought either Reggie Jackson or Bando would get it from our team," said Blue.

"They really helped our team. It wasn't a super year for either one of them compared to other years they've had in the majors, but they were really valuable to us."

Underclassmen Top State College Statistics

If the 1971 state college football season is any indication, 1972 should be even better.

Eight of the top 10 passers and rushers from this season's state college ranks are underclassmen.

Additionally, eight of the top 12 pass receivers and nine of the top 13 scorers are underclassmen.

So if the same players produce as well or better next season, battles for individual honors should become even more intense than they already appear to be this season.

Doane's Floyd Guillory and Charlie McWorther of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, however, were the only underclassmen to win one of the four individual categories, based on state-wide competition among Nebraska's 12 football-playing schools.

And neither McWhorter, who won the rushing title, or Guillory, who won the scoring derby, gained leadership of their respective divisions until last Saturday.

McWhorter, who had ranked behind Hastings' Gary Filipi and Kearney's Tom Kropp all season, rushed for a season-high 183 yards in 35 carries Saturday in UNO's 30-17 win over Washburn University.

The effort pushed his season total to 1,018 yards, giving McWhorter the only 100-yard per game rushing average in the state. His total fell only 128 yards short of the UNO school record set last season by Phil Wise, now a New York Jets' rookie.

Doane's Guillory dislodged Nebraska Wesleyan's John McLaughlin from the scoring leadership for the first time this season by scoring eight points Saturday in the Tigers' 24-14 loss at Dana.

The effort gave him 53 points, five ahead of McLaughlin and Chadron's Mike Dority.

Hastings' Gary Bendinger and McLaughlin, both seniors, held their leads from last week to win respective 1971 passing and pass receiving titles.

Bendinger finished with 1,353 yards for a 169.1 per game average. McLaughlin, although not the leader in total pass reception yardage, snagged 41 tosses for 520 yards and eight touchdowns.

The top three pass receivers were seniors. Peru junior John Winkle was fourth and finished with a season-high 637 reception yards.

Only graduate-bound players to crack final tabulations included: passing — Bendinger and Dave McGrane, Neb. Wesleyan; rushing — Phil Allen, Fairbury Junior College and Mel Tarpley, Wayne; pass receiving — McLaughlin; Dan Danielcyzk, Concordia; George Watson, Hastings and Phil Whitworth, Fairbury; scoring — McLaughlin; Greg Cheng, Kearney; and Allen and Ken Hudson, Fairbury.

POSTCARD by Stan Kleinsasser

Night comes early now in Paris. The boulevards light up. At the end of the broad Champs Elysees, the Arc de Triomphe glows in floodlights.

The posh restaurants make window squares of golden light. The white cloths. The silver gleaming on the tables. The waiters starched into snowy shirts framed in black tuxedoes.

It's an expensive city: A fairly simple lunch for three nudged us $45. French wine in France costs about the same as in the U.S.

The elegant night clubs are out of sight. The house expects you to pop a $20 bottle of champagne before you unfold the napkin.

The famed bare brisket shows no longer makes the tourist eyes pop.

(How you gonna keep 'em down in Paree, when they can see the same thing down on the farm?)

Gay Paree! The black and white couples strolling the boulevards hardly raise an eye from the tourists parked at the sidewalk cafe.

France has been the most relaxed country in Europe to mixed relationships. Black students from French Africa dated freely with French students. Paris drew a lot of American blacks who found the climate more relaxed.

They used to cause a little flurry when they passed the crowded tables of the Cafe de la Paix. No more. Peace, brother.

☆ ☆ ☆

A paddy wagon went rushing down the street, playing the French siren that goes "oom-pah, oom-pah." (The "salad basket" the French call them.)

The police sign and get out their white batons. "Into the wagon, you stupid cow."

The Parisian gendarme is a dapper chap. Pill box cap. Blue uniform. A small pistol in a polished leather holster. Often a trimmed moustache.

He wears a cape. The skirt is weighted with lead. And if he slaps you across the chops with this, you become ready, willing and disabled.

The French slang for them is "flic". But if he is looking you over for a parking ticket, you should address him as "M'sieu l'Agent."

☆ ☆ ☆

Paris at night. The taxis park in the middle of the boulevards. The Paris hackie is an individual as the philosopher hackies of New York.

You approach him at his parking station. Immediately he puts a protective hand over the back door so you can't jump in.

"Which way are you going?"

No matter which way you say, he usually says: "I am going in the other direction."

☆ ☆ ☆

If the gendarme on the corner sees this (and is feeling surly himself) he comes over and gives the taxi driver a little hell.

"Who do you think you are: Take this gentleman where he wants to go."

The driver will then take you sullenly. Muttering in the front seat about "fascists."

You must tip him. No matter how surly and sullen. A 10% tip is considered a right, not a reward. An untipped taxi driver followed me right into the lobby of the George V to point out I hadn't tipped him.

The doorman translated. He agreed completely. (So I tipped him. No courage.)

The World's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska Medical Association:

Approximately 12,000 Nebraskans have diabetes and do not know it.

Diabetes is most likely to develop in someone who is overweight, who is over 45, or who has a family history of diabetes. When someone meets two or all three of these conditions, the chances of developing diabetes become even greater.

The earlier diabetes is detected, the easier it usually is to control. Essentially, diabetes is a condition in which the body cannot make use of some foods, primarily sugars and starches.

Men and women with diabetes can be found working in every profession and business, in government, industry, and in the highest ranks in the arts and sports. The key to "life as usual" is early detection, followed by proper treatment and control of the condition.

Preserve Planned

Salisbury, Rhodesia (AP) — The government announced plans to form what it called the world's largest wildlife preserve by joining the Wankie and Victoria Falls game parks and adding other land for a total area of 6,176,500 acres.

Opening Planned

Paris (AP) — French military archives from World War II will be opened to researchers in 1975.

Vigil Wants Plea Withdrawn

Antonio S. Vigil, 28, of Lincoln has asked the Lancaster District Court for permission to withdraw his plea of guilty to a charge of first-degree murder.

Vigil had pleaded guilty in connection with the slaying last December of his wife, Carol, 23.

In his motion, Vigil said he felt he was guilty of murder, but not in the first degree and contended he should not be punished for first-degree murder.

Sentencing of Vigil has been deferred by Judge William Hastings pending a presentence investigation. There was no immediate ruling on Vigil's request.

Mrs. Vigil's decapitated body was discovered New Year's Eve in a gully about 10 miles west of Lincoln and an autopsy indicated she died of multiple stab wounds.

200 Fight Fire

Lisbon, Portugal (AP) — More than 200 firemen were called out to fight a blaze that destroyed parts of the roof and top floor of the headquarters of the military governor of Lisbon.

Blue Chips Drift Back And Forth

New York (AP)—Bluechip stock prices traced a zig-zag pattern in Wednesday's moderate trading, finally closing higher after drifting back and forth throughout the session.

The 3:30 p.m. EST Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 3.43 to 822.14. It opened somewhat higher but at one point had lost about 3½ points.

However, declines led advances 730 out of 1,689 issues traded on the Big Board.

"The stock market is confused by the lack of authoritative announcements as to the progress being made in the worldwide monetary area and the state of Phase 2 economic policy, especially labor's part in it," said John Smith, an analyst at Fahnestock & Co.

Smith noted Tuesday the market rose on the basis of rumors and anticipation of some possible settlement of international monetary problems.

"Today the market is churning with confusion because it doesn't know if these rumors have any basis," he added.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,500 common stocks rose .04 to 51.17.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced .3 to 300.7 with industrials up 1.4, rails off .2. and utilities off .2.

Big Board volume was 12.84 million shares compared with 13.29 million shares Tuesday. The market had 4 new yearly highs and 87 new yearly lows.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed .14 to 92.85.

Ninety-six big blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the New York Stock Exchange, compared with 94 Tuesday. The biggest was 200,000 shares of American General Insurance at 23¾ up ¼.

Volume leader on the Big Board was Texaco, off ⅛ at 30⅞.

American Stock Exchange prices slipped. The Amex price-change index fell .02 to 24.10. Volume was 2.84 million shares compared with 3.00 million shares Tuesday. There were 351 advances and 497 declines out of 1,130 issues traded.

Corporate bonds were mixed, and governments were lower.

Beef Steers, Heifers Up

Omaha, Neb. (AP) —A scramble for numbers kept the fed cattle price pot boiling on the front burner Wednesday.

Beef steers shot 25-50 cents higher, and heifers advanced fully 25 cents in active trading.

Heifers hit the highest level since June, 1969, with some two loads of high choice TV prime 1,000-1,051 lb. offerings at 34.35.

Hog prices tended mixed. Butchers under 240 lb. rated a steady to weak not, some 25 lower; heavier weights sold steady to 25 higher, advance on 240-270 lb. offerings generally. Sows sold steady to instances 25 higher.

A limited run of fed lambs sold little changed.

Lee Enterprises Has Record Year

Davenport, Iowa (AP) — Lee Enterprises Wednesday reported record operating revenues and earnings for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1971.

David K. Gottlieb, Lee president, said net earnings for fiscal 1971 totaled $3,410,326 or $1.16 per share, compared with fiscal 1970 income before extraordinary items of $3,028,868 or $1.03 per share, representing a 13% increase.

In fiscal 1970 the company had extraordinary income of $1,355,047 resulting in an additional 46 cents per share.

Gottlieb said operating revenues totaled $37,705,504 compared with $34,639,383 in 1970, the previous record high.

Lee operates 14 newpapers, four television and five radio stations in Iowa, Nebraska (The Lincoln Star), Illinois, Wisconsin, West Virginia, Oregon and Montana.

AAUP, AFT Agree To Cooperate On Studies

Two organizations representing faculty members at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have agreed to cooperate to study a number of campus issues, their presidents said Wednesday.

The statements came after a meeting of officers of the local chapters of both the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the American Federation of Teachers (AFT)

"We found we had a lot of common interests," said Geology Prof. Sam Treves, AAUP president. And he added that the officers found they shared "basically the same" attitudes on a number of issues.

Agree To Cooperate

Treves and Economics Prof. George Rejda, local AFT president, said the executives of both groups had "agreed to cooperate" by forming joint committees to study academic due process, salary inequities and fringe benefits, and employment discrimination against women.

The apparently cordial meeting, called at the request of Treves, lasted about 1½ hours.

Participants included members of the local AAUP executive committee and AFT's executive council. Also attending the meeting the NU Law Prof. James Lake, state AAUP president and president of the faculty senate on the Lincoln campuses.

The local AAUP chapter is part of a long-established association which has relied largely on persuasion over the years in attempts to protect faculty interests.

The local AFT chapter, affiliated with the AFL-CIO national federation, has said it believes the UNL faculty should organize to bargain collectively with the Board of Regents.

The local chapter, known as the University of Nebraska Federation of Teachers, was formed last spring, largely in response to concerns over the regents' decision not to rehire former Prof. Stephen Rozman.

Contract Not Renewed

The board voted in February not to renew Rozman's contract, citing alleged inappropriate actions in May 1970 antiwar activities.

A ruling on a federal civil rights suit brought by Rozman is expected this week from the U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

The case brought on a good deal of discussion on academic due process, one of the issues which both organizations said they had agreed to study.

Another, salary inequities and fringe benefits, has long been a concern of faculty members.

The third issue mentioned, sexual discrimination, has come to the fore more recently.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.

NIXON IGNORES PULLOUT LAW

House Rejects War Cash Halt

. . . DOVES TO TRY AGAIN

Washington (AP) — The House rejected Wednesday night a June 1 cutoff of all U.S. Indochina war money shortly after President Nixon said he would ignore Congress' call for a fixed deadline on troop withdrawal.

Backing the President's appeal to put no restrictions on his effort for a negotiated settlement, the House voted 238 to 164 against an amendment by Rep. Edward P. Boland to halt the war money. The amendment was on a defense appropriations bill.

The House passed the $71 billion defense money bill 342 to 51 and sent it to the Senate

President Nixon announced a few hours earlier in the signing a $21.3-billion weapons authorization bill that he would not be bound by its policy amendment calling for negotiation of an end to the war "at the earliest practicable date" in return for release of American prisoners

Promptly Challenged

Antiwar senators promptly challenged Nixon's action and planned to make another effort to cut off war funds.

Nixon strongly opposed the Boland amendment, just as he fought the amendment sponsored by Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield.

The Mansfield amendment "is without binding force or effect," Nixon said, "and it does not reflect my judgment about the way in which the war should be brought to a conclusion

"My signing of the bill that contains this section will not change the policies I have pursued and that I shall continue to pursue toward this end."

The amendment Nixon said he would ignore was a weakened version of one passed earlier by the Senate calling for total withdrawal within six months After the House rejected that language, a compromise was passed which "urges and requests" Nixon to withdraw all troops "at a date certain" subject to release of U S war prisoners and an accounting for the missing in action

Mansfield noted that the Senate has passed such an amendment, in one form or another, four times and said:

"It may be ignored but it will be in the back of his mind They talk about a cat living nine lives. This bill will have more than nine lives if necessary."

Sen. Frank Church challenged Nixon's authority to ignore the amendment. He told a news conference:

"The Mansfield amendment is part of the law and as such is not subject to dismissal by the President.

"If he chooses to ignore it, then the Congress should enact enforcement provisions with the power of the pursestrings which belongs to Congress alone."

The procurement bill authorizes $871.4 million less than sought by the Pentagon. Actual appropriation must be voted later.

Among its major provisions:

'A continuation of construction on the Safeguard, antiballistic missile program at a level of $1.1 billion, about $160 million less than the administration requested.

—An elimination of the President's authority to ban chrome-ore imports from Rhodesia. Ziegler said this provision does not go into effect until January.

—A $72-million reduction in the controversial C5A aircraft procurement program and a $321.5-million ceiling on C5A spending this fiscal year.

—A $350-million ceiling on fiscal year 1972 military and economic aid for Laos.

Snow, Rain Pelt State

Moisture in the form of snow rain and drizzle covered Nebraska Wednesday.

A belt of snow extended from Imperial in southwest Nebraska up to Valentine in the north. At North Platte two to three inches of snow was on the ground late Wednesday. Mullen reported two inches of snow, and Valentine received about an inch.

Highways were slippery and slushy in the snow areas.

Elsewhere in the state there were generous rains. Many towns in eastern Nebraska received over an inch of rainfall. Lincoln's moisture total stood at 1 66

New National Historical Site Coming Down

Blair (UPI) — The National Park Service has designated the historic Cowell Mansion here as a new national historical site in Nebraska — despite the fact the building is almost completely razed.

That word came from Washington Wednesday, just two weeks after workmen began tearing down the 87-year-old structure.

A number of Blair residents had attempted to save the building, but to no avail.

Draft Resisters Maintain Links

The following article, second of three about Nebraska draft dodgers now in Canada, was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism Depth Reporting class. The author is a senior from North Platte.

By MARY HUFFMAN

Winnipeg, Manitoba — When Jerry Tagge, football in hand, reached over the goal line for Nebraska's winning touchdown over LSU in the Orange Bowl last New Year's night, a small cheer arose in Winnipeg.

A group of Nebraska draft dodgers huddling around a television set at the North Star Inn in Winnipeg were cheering for Big Red. One of the former Nebraskans, Kirk Johnson of Lincoln, rented a hotel room for his fellow exile Johnson is office manager of the North Star

The group in Winnipeg probably had more in common with their native state at that moment than at any other time since their immigration to Canada.

Not that they're brooding over their alienation from Nebraska or America.

As one ex-Nebraskan now living in Waterloo, Ontario, says: "I used to go to football games and actually care who won I used to . . ."

NU Football Games

On occasion the Nebraska group in Winnepeg can pick up NU football games on WOW in Omaha. KFAB radio in Omaha comes in at night

The Nebraskans haven't completely severed their ties with home. There are still letters and phone calls, an occasional bundle of the Elm Creek Beacon for Mary Milander, wife of Doug Milander, and visits from friends and family.

The group gets together often. They all remember the "Love and Peace Reunion" at Kenora, Man., where friends Tom and Gloria Pluta, formerly of Lincoln, invited the Nebraska colony for a get together.

However, their everyday lives center around Canada and their jobs, not Nebraska or their hometown

Unlike some Americans in Vancouver or Montreal who are standing in welfare lines, the Nebraskans in Winnipeg all have jobs

Doug Milander, 24, formerly of Norfolk, says: "It hits you. Hey, here I am in Canada. Other people around me were born in another country, and here I am wanted in the states on a federal warrant."

He and his friends sort of blend in with the woodwork—and they like it that way.

At a party at the Milander apartment for staff members of the Winnipeg Tribune (where

Prisoners Build Tank For Escape

Raiford, Fla (AP) — Two Raiford State Prison inmates rammed their way to freedom through a hail of bullets in a makeshift tank they fashioned in the prison furniture shop, officials said Wednesday.

Raiford Supt. Lawrence Dugger said the inmates, Rex Gyger, 26, of Richmond, Ind., and Wallace McDonald, 43, of Shreveport, La., fashioned their tank out of a fork lift truck, using 10-gauge sheet metal for armor plate.

He said Gyger and McDonald were believed headed for Louisiana or Alabama.

The men broke out of the prison in northeast Florida last Saturday. They remained at large Wednesday

Broke In

Dugger said Gyger and McDonald broke into the closed prison furniture factory to fashion their escape vehicle.

"They enclosed a fork lift with 10-gauge sheet metal," he said, explaining that the armorers wrapped two layers of metal around the sides and placed four thicknesses atop the truck.

They cut a six-inch slit in the metal armor for forward visibility Dugger said the men waited in the prison shop until dusk fell over the 3,000-man prison. Then they rode 200 yards to freedom

"They crashed the gates and officers in the tower above fired on them with a 30-30 rifle," Dugger said "The bullets didn't penetrate the steel "

Direct Shot

He said the tower guards had a direct shot from about 30 feet. Gyger and McDonald rolled into the prison motor pool area, jumped out of the tank and ran for the shelter of a nearby woods. Dugger said officers were in pursuit, but dogs lost the scent of the escapees in the woods.

"They got 24 hours a day to outfigure you, and obviously they did that," said Florida Corrections Director Louie Wainwright. "I never heard of a similar escape."

Gyger was serving two years for a Tampa prison break. McDonald was serving 10 years for a Jacksonville robbery.

Dugger said he has issued instructions that from now all fork lift trucks will be parked outside the prison fence at night and on weekends.

Historical Society Urges Preservation Of 17 Sites

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Old Bryan Home at 1625 D St, the Union Pacific Freight Depot, the Thomas Hudson cabin and Lincoln's Old City Hall — these are just four of seventeen historical sites given special recommendations for preservation by a State Historical Society Study.

The 119-page survey, which was done under the auspices of the State Planning and Programing Office, involves the 11-county area of Lancaster Cass, Otoe, Saline, Seward, Butler, Saunders, Sarpy, Douglas, Washington and Dodge.

In their recommendations the authors, Persijs Kolberg and Carl H. Jones note that it would be impossible to preserve all of the historical, archeological and archetectural treasures in the area, so they seek to save the best.

"Preservation selection must be limited to the possible, limit itself to the best buildings—to be selective instead of wholesale preservation.

"To accomplish these aims specific sites have been selected for in-depth recommendations," they say.

"Simply, we must selectively protect what remains of this heritage against the 'progress' of the bulldozer and its master, the land speculator."

Noting that in the last 20 years half of the 12,000 nationally registered historic buildings have been demolished, the authors state that the general public must become involved if historic sites are to be saved.

"State and federal agencies cannot do the job alone. The general public must be made to understand and be made aware of the fact that the past is an essential element in the future of Nebraska rather than something to be used up and thrown away in the name of progress.

"In this current age of rampantly spreading blight our cities desperately need variety and delight, not merely in the idiom of one era or moment, but the expressions of . . . different men at different times," the report says.

The survey cites the Burr residence in Lincoln and the Weaver Mansion in Falls City as examples of significant buildings which have fallen to progress

In addition to the Lincoln sites mentioned among the seventeen, are.

—The Sheldon House in Cass County which is purportedly the birthplace of Nebraska's first native-born state governor.

—Omaha's Joslyn Castle, a structure built in 1903 costing $225,000, in the Scotch baronial tradition of architecture.

—Weber Mill in Omaha constructed by the Mormons in 1846.

—The Omaha Public Library, called "a fine example of the Italian Renaissance style."

—The Crook House in Omaha, a part of the original Fort Omaha.

—Merrill Mission in Sarpy County.

—The Union Passenger Terminal in Omaha.

—The Burlington Roundhouse in Nebraska City and also the U.S. Post Office there.

—The Stambaugh House in Saunders County.

—St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in Saunders County.

Gun Destroyed In No. Vietnam

Saigon (AP) — Four American supersonic fighter-bombers destroyed one antiaircraft artillery gun and damaged another in the 77th raid inside North Vietnam this year, the U.S. Command disclosed Thursday.

A communique said the attack Wednesday was carried out at the Ban Karai pass, 40 miles north of the demilitarized zone near the Laotian border, after North Vietnamese guns opened fire on the U.S. jets.

There was no damage to the U.S. aircraft," the communique said.

Mackey Wants Action In Thurston Jail Probe

State Indian Commissioner Bob Mackey said Wednesday he will take his case to the governor, if one last effort to get information concerning alleged financial improprieties at the Thurston County jail fails.

"I hope to approach the lower echelon people in the state agencies I'm trying to get the information from for one last time," Mackey said; "if that fails we're going to have to communicate directly with the governor.

"After that my only alternative would be the U.S. Justice Department."

Earlier this month, Mackey said his 2½-month-old investigation was getting nowhere due to "political interests."

The commissioner had requested information on sanitation conditions at the jail from the Health Department and information from the State Revenue Department concerning a sales tax permit and income taxes paid by Sheriff Clyde Storie and his wife.

Last summer, a group Winnebago Indians charged that Storie was unjustly incarcerating Indians, operating an unsanitary jail, selling food to the prisoners and was administering a state meal program for Indian prisoners improperly

At an Indian Commission meeting, Sept. 1, the group agreed to spearhead an investigation of the jail.

Since then only the Fire Marshal and the Health Department Bureau of Standards have complied with Mackey's requests by supplying him with a 'belated report after his difficulties were publicized.

The report gives Thurston County 90 days to bring the jail into compliance with state sanitation and health requirements.

Mackey said he doubts the report will have much impact although it calls the jail "a definite health hazard." He said his misgivings are based on the fact that a similar compliance order was issued to the jail 3 years ago and nothing has improved.

Butz Told He's No Farmer's Friend

Washington (AP) — President Nixon's choice for secretary of agriculture, Earl L. Butz, was told Wednesday that many senators will vote against him because of fears "your heart beats not for the family farmer but for the giant corporations."

Sen. George McGovern, D-S D, added at a Senate Agriculture Committee hearing on Butz's nomination that his confirmation by the Senate would be a catastrophe for the farmer.

Only twice in the 20th century has the Senate rejected a presidential Cabinet nomination.

Butz, 62, a Purdue University dean and a former assistant secretary of agriculture under Ezra Taft Benson, denied any inbred hostility toward family farmers but said:

"No longer can we justify a low farm income by the glories of the sunset "

Butz told the committee he is asking confirmation in an "absolutely clean" financial state.

He said he has resigned from the boards of four agribusiness corporations which paid him a total $29,800 yearly. And, he said, he has placed the approximately 5,000 shares he owns in three of them in a trust fund

Butz, who said he used his position in corporate boardrooms to act as a spokesman for agriculture, said that because of low stock market prices he is reluctant to dispose of his holdings of 2,000 shares in the Ralston-Purina Co., a similar amount in International Minerals and Chemical Corp and 1,000 shares of Stokely Van-Camp. The current value of that stock totals about $119,000.

Draft Resisters Haven't Broken All Ties

Doug is assistant city editor) and the Nebraska dodgers, one of the Canadians expressed surprise that a visiting American reporter wasn't the only "Yankee" in the group.

"You can't tell the difference, really, between an American and Canadian," she said. "I wouldn't have known if you hadn't told me."

Her reaction to the Americans:

"I feel honored that we are here for their refuge. I don't think it should be compulsory to make the men go to war."

iFrst Home

Nebraskans Doug and Mary Milander, who made the trip by car in August 1969, made their first home in Morris, Man., where Milander got a job as the editor of a weekly newspaper.

Mary, 23, of Elm Creek, said her biggest problem at first was having no furniture. Their first piece of furniture was a 50-cent stove Mary bargained for at an auction. Now it sits in their living room—and Mary says "all it's good for now is a conversation piece and to put things on.

"We were so poor when we came up . . . I'm proud of everything we have now," Mary said.

While her husband was working long overtime hours at the newspaper office, Mary was commuting to Winnipeg, a 50-mile drive, to get a teaching certificate at the University of Manitoba.

When Doug wasn't working, he was a high school boys basketball coach and hockey league official, although he says he knew little about hockey.

Furniture's History

Since March 1971, they have been living in a six-room basement apartment at 195 Furby St And there's a story behind every piece of furniture they've collected the last two years.

"We got that desk file for a quarter and the tie-dyed painting in the hall entry was a result of our imagination and some purple, yellow and red dye."

Pondering over the bargains, Mary said, "Anything over 30 cents was a luxury for us at first."

Now, Mary and Doug are both working — Mary is a second grade school teacher in suburban Transcona, and Doug is at the Winnipeg Tribune

"I don t really like Winnipeg " Doug said, "There's so much of the city to see It's so big But I guess I haven't really given it a chance "

It bothers Mary that the American economic influence is so prominent Although a Safeway store is just down the alley and around the corner she generally avoids shopping there.

First Friend

After the Milanders crossed the U.S.-Canadian border to begin making their home in Canada, their first friend, from Nebraska, was John Dietz of Omaha, who already had been in Winnipeg since March of that year when he made the trip by bus.

Dietz housed the Milanders for 11 days before they found a place to live. When Dietz came to Canada, however, he was by himself.

During his first two or three weeks, he said, he was lonely and wrote lots of letters to friends and parents and kept the telephone lines busy.

"My room was bare of furniture. I had a desk, mattress on the floor, chair, drawer, and lived out of a suitcase."

Persons entering Canada can either apply for landed immigrant status or say they're visiting and re-cross the border later to become a landed immigrant.

Dietz had decided to "visit" because he had no job offer or place to live. He thought it would be best to scout around and then apply for landed immigrant status.

Landed Immigrant

It was Easter Sunday that year when Dietz went to the port of entry at Pembina, N.D., to step on American soil for the last time before becoming a landed immigrant

"There was no time left . . . I was nervous During the interview I told the official I was a dodger, but he said 'We're not allowed to talk about that' "

Dietz' first job was with the Winnipeg Free-Press as a reporter-photographer

His next job, starting in October 1969, was a public information position with the Manitoba Centennial Corp. Now he's free-lance writing, and he says he's been getting back to religion.

"I've been going to an older church, Augustine United It's a get-acquainted thing where you shake hands after the service, and get together and share each other's burdens "

If there's one thing he considers "stupid," it was the night he and five others poked hesitantly across the border into the States near Montreal to buy beer

"What if I would have gotten caught?" he said

Corresponds With Friends

Dietz corresponds with friends from the University of Nebraska, including George and Deanna Kaufman, now of Waterloo, Ontario.

Kaufman, of Hastings, deserted from the Army and he and his wife, the former Deanna Groetzinger of Grand Island, fled to Canada. Their first stop was at Peterborough, Ont., where they both landed jobs at the Peterborough Examiner.

Deanna Kaufman's reaction to Canada: "It is rather difficult now . . . to remember back to two years ago when Canada was a vague color on a map somewhere north of Michigan and North Daokta . . . Canada is not a land of perpetual forests and eskimos."

The Kaufmans graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1969, entered Canada in January of 1970 as visitors, and stayed with friends in Kitchener, Ont., while they sorted out thoughts and documents.

Political Virginity

George Kaufman said in a letter· "I lost my political virginity at the University when I realized the American government was no longer responsive to the people of America, that it had become a giant military-driven machine running out of control all over the world, controlling people's lives it had no right to."

He was drafted into the Army at Omaha, Sept. 4, 1969, and was sent to Fort Sam Houston, Texas, for basic and medical training

During Christmas leave that year, the Kaufmans flew to Omaha, visited friends in Lincoln and their families in Hastings and Grand Island and left Jan. 1 from Des Moines.

Kaufman told Dietz in a letter. "We packed our '61 Buick and along with our cat Topa we headed for Canada—not knowing any more about it than the Army "

They crossed the border Jan. 3, 1970, as visitors.

Draft Committee

Through the counsel of a draft committee in Toronto they planned their return trip to the border — reentering the U S at Detroit Deanna says they drove around the block and returned to the Canadian side where they applied for landed immigrant status.

They had documents, job offers from the newspaper, and "hoped to be prepared for anything," she said.

"After a painless half-hour interview we were in — landed. All the tension and planning escape routes seemed totally ridiculous. No spies or running for the border or anything."

Their attitude now: "We don't regret leaving the U.S. but have no illusions that we have presented shining examples that will enlighten Nebraskans and Americans some day."

They said they think the U.S. deliberately makes the possibility of escape to Canada very easy to provide itself a safety valve.

No Problems

Since there were no problems at their jobs, Deanna said, they had an opportunity "to find out about Canada's diferences, for despite its superficial similarity to the States, there are profound differences, and I hope, permanent ones."

They left the paper because George wanted to go to the University of Toronto to get a teaching certificate.

They lived on a farm for awhile. "It was fun . . . but we also discovered that Ontario winters are rough, especially when a daily drive to town for a job is concerned." But it was a good experience, she said.

Now Mrs. Kaufman is working on a masters degree and her husband is production manager for the University of Waterloo student newspaper

Another Family

Another Nebraska family near the Kaufmans, Paul and Sylvia Norton of North Platte, and their son Ezekiel, lives in Toronto, where he is a graduate student at the University of Toronto.

Norton says he was indicted without really knowing where he stood.

The Nortons had served in the Peace Corps, and he still had a job deferment. He says he notified his draft board of his change of status and was ordered to report for induction.

He then appealed to the state board and was granted a special student deferment while at the University of Toronto.

Once again he was ordered to report and again appealed. He asked for a family deferment because his wife was pregnant.

Indicted In May

Norton was indicted in May 1971 along with other Nebraskans, including Dale Fechner of Albion and Kirk Johnson of Lincoln, now living in Winnipeg.

"The uncertainty bothered us a lot at first," said Norton's wife, the former Sylvia Maline. "We kept hoping for a legal way out. But once it was final, we both felt relieved.

"We are sorry that Paul cannot visit the U.S. — especially as his parents are getting older and it gets harder for them to make the trip "

And that's another story in itself

Next: Their feelings about returning to America and their parents' reactions to their exile.

Kokes Against Diverting Water From Loup Basin

Sen. Rudolf Kokes of Ord Wednesday said it is "completely irresponsible to propose diversion of water from the Loup River Basin at this time."

Kokes, vice chairman of the legislative water study committee, was critical of the suggestion in the framework study for the proposed state water plan pointing toward possible future diversion of water among Nebraska river basins.

"I think the citizens of the Loup Basin should rise up in objection when the Soil and Water Conservation Commission proposes to divert almot a million acre feet of water out of the Loup Baisin to other parts of the State of Nebraska," he said in a prepared statement.

'Strong Testimony'

There was "a great deal of very strong testimony against water diversion" at the study committee's recent hearings in Lincoln, Kokes said.

"The testimony for diversion was mainly from those people that would like to appropriate water from someone else's area," he said.

Projects are in the works to make better use of the Loup River's water within its basin, Kokes said, but "no one from these areas now seeking Loup water has been willing to pitch in and help get these projects going."

If they are really interested in the development of Nebraska, he said, "they should come to us in the Loup Basin and say: 'How can we help you fully develop your basin so that your water needs are adequately met?'

Willing to Help

"When our needs are met, we would be willing to help them develop plans to utilize this water in Nebraska."

Kokes said "a uniform movement to resist this action must be the attitude of all people, and I pledge my effort to fulfill the will of those in my district whom I represent and who have informed me they emphatically desire Loup Basin fully developed first."

Kokes said the diversion proposal "could make a desert of the sub-irrigated Sandhills."

And, he said, "the exact effect of the removal of this stream flow in the downstream areas of the Platte Basin, including the water supply to the City of Lincoln, has not been determined."

No Mail Delivery On Thanksgiving

There will be no rural or city mail deliveries, and the main post office and all stations will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, according to the Office of the Postmaster. The regular holiday mail collections will be made, and all special delivery mail will be delivered.

Nixon Signs Bill, Says He'll Ignore Part Of

(c) New York Times News Service

Washington — President Nixon announced that he would disregard as not binding on him a provision of a bill he was signing setting a policy that American troops should be withdrawn promptly from Indochina as the House rejected, 238 to 164, a move to cut off funds for all military operations in or over Indochina after June 1. (More on Page 1.)

Stans On Way To Moscow

Washington — Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans and 10 aides left on a trip to Moscow for talks that many officials hope will substantially increase the level of trade between the United States and the Soviet Union.

'Vigorous Measures' Promised

London — Britain's government promised the House of Commons that it would take "vigorous measures to fight the terrorists and murderers" in Northern Ireland. The promise to hunt for members of the Irish Republican Army in Ulster was made during a Commons debate on a government report admitting "physical ill-treatment" of Catholic detainees but rejecting allegations of torture and brutality.

Thai Premier Takes All Power

Bangkok — Citing "the dangers that have been threatening Thailand," Premier Thanom Kittikachorn and a group of Thai leaders organized themselves into a "revolutionary" council, abolished the constitution, dissolved parliament, disbanded the cabinet and instituted martial law. The seizure of full power in Thailand came without violence.

Examples Refused

United Nations, N.Y. — A spokesman for the United States mission to the United Nations refused at a news conference to cite specific examples of what the chief American delegate, George Bush, called Tuesday "intemperate" language by the Chinese in their first speech to the General Assembly. A member of the Chinese delegation, asked about Bush's statement, said it was "not worth commenting on."

Price Increase Won

Washington — The Price Commission approved an immediate 2.5% price increase for 1972 models of American Motors Cars. (More on Page 2.)

Butz's Critics Unimpressed

Washington — Dr. Earl L. Butz, President Nixon's nominee for secretary of agriculture, told a Senate committee that he would be a "vigorous spokesman" for ag would seek to preserve family f solve the problems of rural ar critics, unimpressed, charged tha agent of giant agribusiness. (Mor

Two Men Jailed In Attempt To Sell Girl, Boy

Jacksonville, Fla. (AP) — A Boy Scout master and a companion, charged with trying to sell an Oklahoma City woman's two small children for $7,000 and a used car, were held without bond Wednesday in the Duval County jail.

The men were identified as William O'Hara, 37, also known as Milford Bennett, and Robert Westenhaver, 22. They were arrested after allegedly trying to make the deal with a police informer.

The children, Theresa Ann Cox, 3, and her brother, Robert Donald Cox, 2, were in custody of a juvenile court after spending the night with the informer and his wife.

Police said the two men told them the mother, Dorothy Cox of Oklahoma City, was to receive $4,000 and they were to split $3,000 and keep the car.

In Oklahoma City, authorities said Mrs. Cox reported that

FOR SALE . . . Butch, 2, and Theresa, 3.

O'Hara and Westenhaver had planned a business trip to Tulsa, Okla., and she told them: "I'm tired. Please take the children for a little change of scenery."

Police said Theresa first identified O'Hara as her father from a small, dim picture in a Jacksonville newspaper, but later in a police lineup could identify neither man as a relative.

The FBI said O'Hara and Westenhaver and their wives had been living with Mrs. Cox and her children and the full interrelationship of the group had not been established.

The three women were being questioned by police.

Police told this story of how the deal developed:

The informer whose name was not disclosed, and his wife met O'Hara a year ago at a Duval County fair in Jacksonville and told him they were considering adopting a couple of children

Three weeks ago, O'Hara contacted the informer and told him he expected to have two children for sale in two or three weeks.

"The agent contacted us, then called O'Hara back to argue about the price," investigator W. C Beacham said. "Monday, O'Hara called and said he was on the way. They got into Jacksonville and called the agent to say the had both children.

"They settled on a price of $7,000 and a used car. Our big concern was to get hold of the kids, and that worked out perfectly.

"O'Hara took the kids to the agent's house, got $100 in marked bills as a binder on the deal, then left them with the agent's wife when the agent took him to dinner.

"Once we had our hands on the children, we moved in and arrested Bennett at the restaurant and got Westenhaver at a motel."

The children "were in kind of rough shape hungry and dirty," Beacham said. "The little boy had some cigaret burns on him and the little girl had some bruises."

In Oklahoma City, Mike Worley, who serves as liaison between the troop and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, said O'Hara had been working with the 22-member troop for about two months and was chosen scoutmaster a month ago.

Worley said O'Hara, a former Eagle Scout and a paratrooper in Korea, and his wife attended church regularly and helped keep the troop's financial records.

American Motors To Raise Pr

Washington (AP) — The Price Commission Wednesday approved a 2½% increase for 1972 American Motors cars, but it put off a decision on a Chrysler Corp. request for a 5.9% increase.

In Detroit Wednesday, American Motors reported a net profit of $10.2 million for its fiscal year ended Sept. 3. the profit came after a loss of $56.2 million in fiscal 1970. The company reported sales of $1.2 billion. compared with $1.1 billion last fiscal year.

The Price Commission said also it is studying a Ford Motor Co. request for an average 2% increase. General Motors has said it also will ask for permission to raise prices.

Meanwhile the Pay Board made its first challenge of a labor contract, the four-day-old agreement giving soft-coal miners pay raises of up to 35% over three years and doubling management's contribution to the union pension fund.

These may be rolled back if the full Pay Board finds them "unreasonably inconsistent" with its general standard that new contracts may not contain increases in pay and fringe benefits of more than 5% a year unless special circumstances warrant it.

In other developments:

—Union sources in Miami Beach said the AFL-CIO Executive Committee decided in a private session to keep its labor representatives Board.

—The Pay Boa again rejected labor's demand tional retroactiv wage increases freeze, a board The vote was 9-5, members in the n

Social Security Move Dies

Washington (AP) — The Senate overwhelmingly killed an attempt to write a big Social Security increase into the $25.6-billion tax-reduction bill Wednesday.

It thus disposed of one of two key issues believed likely to tie up the legislation in battles over extraneous riders.

Still to be settled, however, is a dispute over a Democratic move to tack onto the bill a broad presidential campaign fund financing plan.

This plan could make available to each of major party nominees $20.4 million in government campaign funds next year.

The Social Security increases were contained in an amendment offered by Sen Edward J Gurney, R-Fla.

It contained all of the new Social Security benefits included in the House welfare-reform bill passed by the House in June. Among these were a 5% general boost in payments, increases for widows.

In earlier votes, the Senate rejected 64 to 25 an amendment to continue the 7% auto excise tax after a 15-month suspension rather than repeal it outright.

It defeated 68 to 19 a proposal of Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., to bar companies from receiving tax deductions on advertising not directly related to promoting their goods and services

Harris contended that businessmen were using deductible advertising as a business expense to promote their views on public questions and to help committees formed to re-elect President Nixon.

LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY:

Book Salesman, 46, Is Contemplating Inequities Of Society

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: "I'm 46 and find myself contemplating the inequities of society. Why should one person be handed wealth he never earned, while another much more worthy must toil and scrape all his life? My parents left me nothing and my family is dependent on my earnings as a book salesman. Yet the man I work for inherited the business from his dad He's younger than I am and knows a lot less, yet the firm pays him seven times what I make—even though he's at the office only three or four hours a day and makes no effort to be courteous. Doesn't this seem unfair?"

Answer: It may seem unfair to you, but suppose your dad had left you considerable money. Wouldn't you feel it was within his democratic right to pass his possessions on to his children? If folks were no longer permitted to bequeath wealth to their descendants much individual stimulus and ambition would be dissipated. If the sight of your boss bugs you, scout up another job. Consider starting a business of your own. maybe you can create an industry worth bequeathing to your offspring.

Question: "I'm 62 and can't seem to remember a thing Someone just asked me what I had for dinner last night and I can't remember to save my life. And two minutes after being introduced to a woman yesterday I forgot her name Isn't this proof that forgetfulness accompanies advancing age?"

Answer: — It's true — we become more forgetful as we grow older. But much of this forgetfulness stems from failure to make a conscious effort to remember. In the instances you cite, last night's dinner and the name of the woman you met probably didn't seem worth remembering. There's evidence that people become more selective and don't bother remembering things which seem unimportant. As Cicero used to say, "Many older people complain of forgetfulness, but they don't forget where they hide their money." This suggests that mental retentiveness is associated with the importance we attach to things to be remembered.

Question: — "You stated in a recent column that you're opposed to the practice of forcing employes to retire at 65. But if you don't force them to retire how can you get rid of older employes who become inefficient and unproductive?"

Answer: — A company's retirement plan should be used for higher, nobler purposes than to get rid of inefficient employes. Management should keep employes informed of their competence through annual interview and peroformance ratings. When employes of any age become inefficient and unproductive they should be counseled, aided, put on probation or dismissed.

Question: — "Mother's mind is completely gone. She looks physically well but doesn't know who we are. She's in a church home, and the director says we shouldn't feel too bad because she's happy in her way and doesn't realize what has happened. Do most older people lose their minds if they live long enough?"

Answer: — No, many folks past 100 years of age are still mentally keen and alert. It has been estimated that less than five per cent of all older people loser their mental competence in later life. Thus, most of us can expect reasonably good mental health to the very end.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Anyone who thought that Nebraska solved its tax problems a few years ago when it went the sales and income route didn't bother to consider that tax matters are twofold—the system and the amount it produces. Our system, on the state level, is pretty well settled, although there remain details of it still in controversy.

The amount the system produces is very unsettled and will remain so in the 1972 short session of the Legislature. Shaping up already as a major battleground is the disposition of the extra five cents a pack cigarette tax imposed by the 1971 Legislature and earmarked to finance a new university fieldhouse, a new state office building and a recreation center at the Beatrice State Home.

The latter proposal, to cost less than $1 million, will probably move ahead without too much difficulty But the state office building and the field house are another thing.

Gov. J. James Exon is making the cigarette tax earmarking a matter of budget consideration for 1972. He says the funds should go into the general fund and be dispersed from there and he obviously feels that the majority of that income should go to support regular and capital improvement budget items.

He suggests that the senators may have a hard time living with existing sales and income tax rates without free use of the cigarette tax money. He has been accused in some quarters of blackmail, especially in connection with the university budget.

We don't see any blackmail in it at all nor have we noticed where the governor has said much of anything about the university budget in relation to the earmarked funds. He has talked about all budgets, not just the budget of the university. ty.

And he isn't blackmailing; he is simply presenting the alternatives as he sees them. Exon would probably go along with the field house if he could get agreement to forego the state office buliding.

In this connection, he may be practicing a little politics but isn't that the game he is in? If state senators objected to the practice of politics. they would have to vote themselves out of existence.

Exon may be playing the popularity of the field house against the uninspiring state office building. In other words, he may figure that by offering a threat to the future construction of the field house, he may gain a compromise that would eliminate the new state office building.

He has specifically said that some of the cigarette tax funds could be used to support a bond issue for the field house if the rest of the money were guided into the general fund. He has further suggested, with considerable validity, that a lot of office space is available in downtown Lincoln and probably at a lot less cost than a new building.

Many thoughtful and sincere people will disagree but we find little to argue about with Exon on his position regarding the cigarette taxes and the two disputed structures. If we had a choice, we would take the field house.

If Exon would go beyond that point and want to eliminate also the field house, we would come to a parting of the ways with him. Many people argue with this because they do not see the field house as a high priority item.

In essence, they consider the athletic program second in all regards to the academic program. We simply do not buy this, although we have strongly supported an improved academic program and believe Exon to be shortsighted in his overall budget recommendations for the university.

But we happen to believe that academics is not the only thing by which man lives, any more than he lives by his diligence alone. Nor do we feel that intercollegiate athletics has or threatens to detract in any way from the purposes of higher education.

We don't consider it unbecoming of President Nixon to have, as he does. an extraordinary interest in and knowledge or sports. The field house is needed for an athletic program that has just as much place in our lives as any other aspect of university life.

'Nixon Must Know What He's Doing. He Has More Facts Than We Do.'

Tax Relief Restricted

The U.S. Senate didn't go far enough Monday when it voted to give tax relief to the parents of college students. The bill would permit parents whose income is up to $25,000 a year to subtract from taxes owed the government $325 for each dependent child they send to college or trade school.

The tax reier ylan idealistically should be aimed at encouraging college or vocational training. If so, it should be widened to cover all those who pay college or trade school tuition—including the single student and married student working their way through school who at present receive no special tax break for that purpose.

The fact that it wasn't a comprehensive tax cut plan. at least as far as educational goals are congerned, leaves the motives of the Senate open to question.

At the same time the Senate rejected a proposal that would have reimbursed poor people with a chick from the Treasury for people with a check from the Treasury for what they pay in sales tax on food and for that portion of their rent which represents property tax on their homes.

The reimbursement plan would have cost the government an estimated $1.7 billion and the tuition deduction plan would cost the government an estimated $2.2 billion in revenue.

Although the two plans were not tied together, the votes indicate an intention to pass a tax relief bill for the rich and the middle class to the exclusion of the poor.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., observed that the tuition relief plan represented a subsidy from taxpayers too poor to send their children to college for those wealthy enough to do so. Obliquely, this is true.

If the Senate is talking about encouraging education. comprehensive tax relief for those who pay tuition is more to the point.

U.N. Potential Weakened

The maiden speech of China's chief delegate to the United Nations called for U.S. withdrawal from Indochina and Taiwan and asserted China's membership in the Third World community of underdeveloped nations that rejects any concept of servitude to the so-ca led super powers.

If the tone of the speech was disappointing and regrettable, which is the official U.S. reaction, it was not unexpected. China has been most consistent in expressing its positions on world affairs, as President Nixon doubtless will find when he goes to Peking. And even the most naive American supporter of mainland China's membership in the club could not have expected the representatives of the Peoples Republic to come to New York oozing sweetness and light.

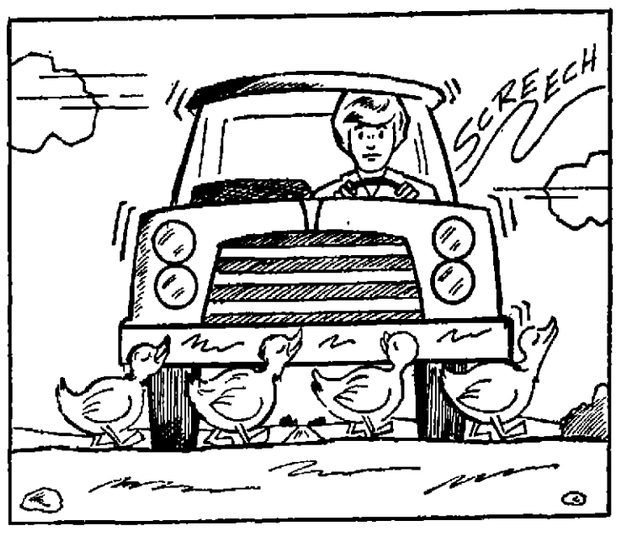
Nor was China's first vote on an issue before the General Assembly any surprise. China joined the majority in a lop-sided 106-2 vote calling on the U.S. not to import chrome ore from Rhodesia. That vote points out the greatest obstacle to an effective world organization.

In 1966, the Security Council imposed mandatory economic sanctions against Rhodesia's white supremist government when it declared itself independent from Great Britain. The U.S. Congress, to comply with the sanctions, gave the President authority to ban the importing of Rhodesian chrome.

Since that time the U.S. has been importing chrome from the Soviet Union at inflated prices. Last week Congress passed a measure—as yet unsigned by the President — permitting Americans to import Rhodesian chrome in defiance of the Security Council embargo and specifying that after Jan. 1 the President may no longer ban the importing of any strategic material that is also being imported from a communist-dominated country.

The congressional position regarding chrome imports is entirely consistent with prudent national security considerations. But that position, if maintained, goes another step in downgrading the United Nations as a potent world force.

LA VERNA HASSLER
Patchwork Prairie Country



Years ago The Farmer's mother had horseradish in her garden. She would dig and grind it and mix it into a most delicious relish and somehow it would always find its way to our table. Perhaps she knew I liked it so well, especially with pork.

I planted some roots from her garden in the hopes that I could have a supply in my own garden. Only once do I remember getting enough dug to make a small amount for table use, then the plants died. This seems a bit ridiculous since a neighbor lady tells me her plants have almost taken over the garden.

However, I did not let that hinder me from eating horseradish through the years. I always bought a jar to satisfy our liking for an extra garnish to eat with meats.

But some days are filled with surprises . . . unexpected and delightful. I had such a day yesterday when a neighbor lady brought a generous supply all ready to eat ground fresh from her garden.

What did I do with my gift? I fixed myself a cheese sandwich liberally spread with the relish when the lady left. I opened the lid to sniff the delicious aroma and immediately decided I needed a dash of horseradish to satisfy the instant hunger I felt. Somehow horseradish always does this to me. It was as yummy a sandwich as I have had in a long time.

☆ ☆ ☆

This morning the neighbor's ducks descided it would be a good day for taking a walk. They chose to go across the road at the same time I came over the hilltop. Had I been coming at a faster spead, I would have had ducks all up and down the road.

This would have been a premature Thanksgiving dinner, no doubt, although I can scarcely conceive of my neighbor's being thankful her ducks had come to such an untimly end.

Now that the chill of winter is in the air, many of the furry animals are seeking the shelter of buildings. One such animal we encountered the other night was an apossum. And where did we encounter him? Right in our garage . . . the garage built on to our house . . . so you see he was almost ready to invite himself into our own dwelling.

The car lights blinded him so he really couldn't see where he was going He bumped into the side of the work bench, sprinkling can and lawn mower. He struggled to find the door. This was quite a problem for he seemed to have four left feet. Finally we backed the car out of the garage and let him toddle out at his own pace.

Nevertheless I had the feeling as I walked into the house that an opossum was following behind me and I turned to look to make certain the animal had gone back to the animal kingdom.

I thought if we had been living in the woods, we might have come home to a grizzly bear in our garage, instead of a small oppossum.

Or who knows? A pheasant, weary at being shot at, might very well find our garage a safe haven from the hunter. In that case I would soon have the bird plucked and cleaned and in the oven. That would truly be a bird to be thankful for.

Neutral Austria Faces Up To Reality

VIENNA—The contemporary dream most mentioned nowadays in Europe is that the noncommunist and communist blocs respectively symbolized by NATO and the Warsaw Pact will melt away and that the lands thus freed from entangling ties will somehow draw closer in a convergence of political and economic theories.

Clearly the nations that would most obviously benefit would be those which belong to neither coalition, neutrals such as Sweden, Switzerland and Austria or quasi-neutrals like Finland and Yugoslavia. But here in Vienna, at any rate, there is no self-deception about the chances of this pleasing prospect.

Bruno Kreisky, Austria's Social Democratic chancellor and previously foreign minister, says: "After what happened in Czechoslovakia three years ago, I am totally convinced that there is but little room for political development inside the East European communist world."

BRUNO KREISKY
. . . theory of
'convergence' wrong . . .

"There is always some chance for more national identification inside these countries as in the cases of Hungary and Poland. But there will only be as much freedom in the real sense as there is freedom inside the Soviet Union itself. Nationalism, yes, to a degree; but political freedom is tied to Soviet developments.

"It is therefore an illusion to talk of really doing away with blocks because free democratic countries and controlled communist countries will continue to exist in Europe. And it is also an illusion to talk about ideological convergence. This means nothing.

"Instead it is more practical to face the real situation and to try to encourage lessening tensions between the two systems Nobody can really tell today what practical coexistence will lead to because we haven't had it yet. Certainly things would not get worse. Cold war, like hot war, serves to petrify political systems. Only peace is creative."

☆ ☆ ☆

While heartily favoring reduced tensions and continued increase of East-West contracts, Kreisky wishes to avoid basing policy on fictions. Thus he holds that the popular theory of "convergence" is wrong.

He acknowledges that the Soviet Union increasingly uses modern economic methods and marketing techniques but says this is only to make its own ideology more efficient. In no sense does it lead to political parallelism with Western methods. Moreover, he describes the kind of planned economy employed in communist lands as "a failed myth."

Kreisky concludes that the neutral position of small states like Austria and Switzerland is bound to continue indefinitely and cannot be swept up n any ideological convergence. This is admittedly a difficult position since the European Free Trade Area of which Britain was the mainstay is not condemned to die as London joins the Common Market EFTA was the neutral's haven after the Common Market started because they could adhere without abandoning neutrality.

The outlook now, as seen by Kreisky, is based on hopes the Common Market will succeed as a modern Democratic and economic bloc. Then neutrals like Austria can broaden their cooperation — although not actually joining.

But this does not solve security problems. Austria itself has been violence recently erupt twice on its borders — Hungary 1956 and Czechoslovakia 1968. Nobody here makes any secret of anxiety that when Tito dies. there may be some similar brand of violence in Yugoslavia

Moscow has recently sought to deny the existence of the famous "Brezhnev Doctrine" enunciated during the Czech crisis and purporting to give the USSR right to intervene forcibly in the affairs of communist lands. But the reality as seen from here is that the "doctrine" — whether explicit or implicit—continues to apply.

It is believed, however, that the Russians lost so much prestige abroad when they moved on Prague that. for political reasons, they would be reluctant to try such brutal intervention again. The basic reason, it is thought, is a fear that another crisis like that in Czechoslovakia would give China an enormous advantage in the race for communist world leadership.

Should this postulate prove wrong and should another drama unfold on Austria's borders, there is little this country could do. Although it expects to improve its small defense establishment, Kreisky believes no land that is not a superpower can devise a truly effective defense system.

His answer is that Austria must put primary emphasis on eliminating poverty and unemployment, thus reducing chances of an internal communist movement such as those which flourish on discontent. This, for him, is a more sensible answer than the kind of "comfortable nonsense" prewar France developed through its Maginot Line.

A neutral's lot in present-day Europe remains difficult. At least Kreisky doesn't compound the difficulty by confusing legend with reality or wishful thinking with fact.

WM. B. DICKINSON, JR.
Florida Ecology Threatened; Residents After Tourist Dollar

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Florida's west coast has been enjoying an endless summer of dry, luminous days and balmy, soft nights when the Gulf of Mexico whispers against white sand. Nature has been wearing its kindest this November, and it's hard to accept the hard fact that the Sunshine State has serious environmental problems.

The wave of natural and man-made disasters so far in 1971 was catalogued recently in The Floridian, Sunday magazine of the St. Petersburg Times. It starts with the fish-killing mass of microscopic organisms known as the Red Tide that last July littered shores from Tampa Bay to Marco Island with millions of stinking carcasses. Then there's a fungus called dermocystidium that has attacked oysters in Escambia Bay, described as an "industrial dump."

Add on the longest and most severe drought in the known history of South Florida that killed off wildlife and led to destruction by fire of 500,000 acres of valuable marsh and woodland. And the Miami Herald reports that, "Beach erosion and concentrated coastal development are rapidly separating residents and tourists alike from the sun-baked strips of land that are the state's leading recreational attraction."

Nearly 75 per cent of the state's coastline is now in private hands. Overzealous attempts to build close to the water's edge have hastened the natural erosion process. According to that article, critical erosion is eating away at more than 200 miles of beachfront lands.

☆ ☆ ☆

Other disasters include the appearance in 1971 of a pollution-spawned bacteria, Aeromonas liquefaciens, in Lake Apopka in Central Florida. It killed alligators, snakes, turtles and birds. Lake Okeechobee now harbors a bacteria known as perfrengens that killed egrets, herons, ducks and other waterfowl. Sea urchins have devoured lush green sea grasses on a 16-mile strip of Florida coastline. Toss in the walking catfish that have taken over fresh-water lakes in Central and South Florida, giant African snails and fire ants.

"When all these things are put together," said The Floridian, "they present a pretty strong case that Nature isn't a bit happy about what's been done to her and project a more than somewhat frightening picture of what the future might hold."

But Floridians are too busy building buildings to give much thought to the ecological dangers. Disney World is expected to bring in 10 million visitors a year alone, and the priority is on getting the tourist dollar.

Even though the federal government will pay up to 70 per cent of the cost of beach restoration projects, erosion continues because local governments haven't arranged to pay for the remainder. State government was handcuffed for 47 years by a constitutional ban on taxation of personal or corporate income. But Florida voters on Nov. 2 cleared the way for a $100 million profits tax on corporations by voting overwhelmingly to remove one of the constitutional prohibitions.

Florida's population between 1960 and 1970 increased from 4.95 million to 6.78 million, a gain of 37 per cent. In an industrial society, big population means big pollution problems.

JAMES RESTON
Present Political Phase Seems 'Flat And Dull'; Important Activity Aplenty Beneath Surface

WASHINGTON—On the surface, the political atmosphere here seems flat and dull, but under the surface there is quite a lot of exciting activity, which could be important and even decisive in the voting next November.

It is in these quite periods, even before the presidential primary elections. when the hard work of organization and registration is done. and if you watch the back pages of the newspapers. you will see considerable evidence of this careful preliminary foundation building.

Almost without notice, for example, the legislatures in most of the large states have been passing bills to permit the newly enfranchised eleven million 18-21-year-olds to vote next November on campus, rather than at the place of thier parents' residence. This could make a difference of several million votes, and in a few key states, could tip the balance to one party or the other.

Also, there is a move on here in the Democratic-controlled Congress to pass legislation that would enable voters to register by mail, and this, too, would undoubtedly increase the size of the vote substantoally and probably favor the Democratic presidential nominee.

Much will depend, too, on the outcome of the current battle on Capitol Hill over campaign spending reform. The present system, by general agreement, is not only a scandal but a disgrace. The only trouble is that it will probably be decided by men who have managed to get to Congress under this outrageous system, and it is not at all sure at this moment that the reform will go through.

What is going on in these rather dull. scattered, and technical debates over election spending and registration is really the critical strategic battle of the campaign. These things are going to set the stage for the big drama later on They are going to decide who votes, for one thing, which is not incidental in an election, and who has money for televison, which in the frenzy next October may be critical.

And the interesting paradox at the moment is that even the young people with the most education on the intricate American federal and electoral system, and with the most energy and the loudest grievances, are not really very active in these preliminary battles. Some of them are, of course, but most of them are "waiting for the election", though what is going on right now in these seemingly dreary nuts and bolts debates could actually decide the election.

The election is flat and dull on the surface precisely because the candidates are working underground on the substructure of the campaign. They are not polishing sentences, but organizing teams and gathering funds. That is what this phase of a presidential election campaign is all about, and it is far too important to be left merely to the candidates and their staffs, and the organized lobbies.

Labor's political activity these days illustrates the point. George Meany, the president of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, is very active on the propaganda front. He is denouncing the pay board's wage decisions as a "swindle" and condemining President Nixon for "romancing" Moscow and Peking, and being "nice to tyrants" who pay low wages and threaten the security of the Republican and the American worker.

But big labor is too experienced to stop there. Underneath all George Meany's hawkish and protectionist arguments, and his demands for more money for the workers, his director of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, Alexander E. Barkan, is concentrating on showing labor leaders all over the country how to get their places in the Democratic presidential nominating convention next summer, under the new rules of that convention.

The White House and the Republican National Committee are doing the same thing. They are raising funds — over $5 million this week in a series of GOP closed-circuit television dinners. They are quietly blocking legislation for campaign expenditure reform, while seeming to support it, and trying to limit the registration of the new young voters, while proclaiming in their propaganda sheet the new "Alliance of the Generations."

Against this kind of professional organizing, the young protestors and even the disenchanged Common Cause people's lobby seem woefully inadequate. The occupancy and policies of the White House are not going to be changed by demonstrations against Vietnam in front of the President's house, no matter how sincere. The battleground has changed.

The battleground is now, and for the next few months will be. on the problems of organization, registration, and campaign financial reform, and on this ground, the new rising enfranchised generation has immense potential political power. But, or so it seems here, they have misjudged the question and the time.

They are waiting for some candidate to emerge with a new philosophy for the coming age, and maybe it will happen, but probably it won't, and meanwhile, organization and money will be decisive in the end. That is why, in this flat and dull period on the surface, what is going on underneath is so important. The politicians are paying attention to the details and the rules of the election. They know the importance of timing, of money and getting the "right" delegated lined up in advance. That is what is going on now and it could decisive before the disenchanted amateurs woke up to the importance of political organization and finance.

Indian Grave Digging Ban Bill Readied

By United Press International

State Indian Commission Director Robert Mackey said Wednesday proposed legislation has been drafted which would stop the uncontrolled digging up of Indian graves.

At the last Indian commission meeting, Mackey was directed to investigate current state laws on the subject.

He said the attorney general's office has advised him there are control laws, but he said they do not apply to Indian graves and burial grounds.

"I just don't think outsiders can really comprehend what this means to us," Mackey said. "We call it desecration and it is in violation of the very basic philosphies of our culture."

"These graves are very sacred to us," he said, "and then to see and hear of them being opened and the bones and skulls found in them put on display is just too much."

He said his proposal would at least stop the "uncontrolled" opening of Indian graves and would also call for the discontinuance of the displaying of the remains.

A sponsor for the proposed legislation, however, has not been found, Mackey said.

Mackey also said the move is by no means limited only to Nebraska.

"We are as an Indian people, going to try and change this whole thing on a national level, all at once, or go about it state by state," he said.

Mackey said it has been conceded the "professionals" in the field of anthoropology probably could not be stopped from searching through the history of the American Indian, but the "non-professionals and just plain curiosity seekers" could be.

It has been suggested, he said, that a national burial grounds be established somewhere in middle America and all of the bones now on display across the nation be reburied there.

Six Are Named To FB's Board

. . . At Annual Convention

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Delegates to the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation convention in Lincoln elected 6 directors to the organization's state board of directors. They are Mrs. Floyd Murphy of Norfolk, Harold Johnson Jr. of Ainsworth, Gene Hansen of Herman, Wayne Hansen of Dorchester, Robert Kleeb of Broken Bow and Don Harford of Haigler. Harford is the sole holdover director of the group.

The original announcement of the new directors, which was made at the close of the noon meeting, was changed just before the end of the convention session. Arland Edgren of Holdrege had been named youth at large director. However, the corrected announcement listed Harold Johnson Jr. of Ainsworth as the elected delegate. The error apparently was the result of an accidental misreading of the tellers report of the election.

In other action Wednesday, organization delegates gave state Farm Bureau President Roland Nelson of Mead an annual raise of $500, providing the government freeze on wages would allow the increase.

Resolutions Set

The remainder of the day's program was devoted to resolutions setting state farm bureau policy and the discussion of recommendations to the policy making committee of the National Farm Bureau.

The national policy questions ranged over a wide area, covering virtually every issue before the American public.

The delegates expressed opposition to reclamation projects that add to agricultural production, to the establishment of a National Food and Fiber Board as proposed by Nebraska Gov. J. J. Exon, to the concept of labor unions representing farmers, unnecessarily strict meat inspection of rural locker plants, excise taxes on farm tires and secondary boycotts by labor unions.

The delegates favored the establishment of Farm Bureau Marketing Associations, a more responsible use of agricultural chemicals by farmers, the proposed National Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining act, meat import quotas, vigorous inspection of meat imports to be sure they are equal to U.S. produced meat, and a free world-trade policy.

The delegates called for the maintenance of the present Department of Agriculture but indicated they would favor eliminating some of the consumer protection and other non-agricultural functions of the department.

Age Change Used

The delegates requested the American Farm Bureau to change the minimum age qualification for the young farmers and rancher program from 30 to 35, and recommended that representation of states in the national delegate body be based on the number of actual producer members. They also asked the national organization to follow the programs of the rural-urban coalition and support sound and worthy programs and activities that would benefit agriculture.

The delegates asked the national organization to work for modifications in the safety and health act as it relates to farmers and asked that holidays be moved back to the actual day they fall on.

On the state level, the organization was directed by the delegates to seek an extension of the state brand area to cover the entire state in an effort to curb livestock rustling. The issue was hotly debated with ranchers generally supporting the issue with many cattle feeders opposed on the ground of the extra work involved branding and sorting livestock.

The delegates voted to establish a development fund of $50,000 to be held in escrow until the fund was accumulated At that point the directors are to hire a state director for the Nebraska Farm Bureau Marketing Association. The delegates also approved a request for the dry bean division of the marketing association to apply for authority to pool beans for sale under the provisions provided for by the commodity credit corporation.

The convention adjourned upon completion of the action on the resolutions Monday afternoon.

SHARING GRAIN . . . Burkey pours milo into Reber's bucket during dedication.

Seward County Sharing Abundance

By SAM THORSON
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Goehner —A boxcar loaded with 53 tons of milo, dedicated Wednesday afternoon to the world's hungry, will leave Goehner Thursday or Friday.

Destined for the Archer-Daniels-Midland plant in Omaha, the grain will be exchanged for a quantity of ADM's soybean protein-supplement food, to be sent abroad to feed the hungry in the 22 nations served by CROP, the Christian Rural Overseas Program.

The milo represents Seward County's contribution to this year's CROP hunger drive. The county's efforts included a "Miles for the Hungry" walk from Seward to Milford last spring, in which hundreds of young hikers earned contributions from sponsors for each mile they walked, and a house-to-house, farm-to-farm canvas this fall which collected both cash and grain.

On hand for the dedication ceremony were local ministers and state and local CROP leaders. State CROP director Richard Staple announced that Seward County's contributions, totaling over $9,000 including a last-minute individual contribution of $1,000, should place it in the top five counties in the state.

Staple explained that contributions of grain go to several elevators in the county, which in turn reimburse CROP for the grain's cash value. The total cash is then used to buy a carload of milo to be sent to ADM, which accepts it in exchange for soybean food supplement to be sent on demand to CROP's hunger workers around the world.

ADM gives CROP a favorable exchange rate, Staple said, which is in effect a contribution to the hunger program.

Also on hand was elevator operator Fred Steinheider, who contributed most of the cost of loading the grain into the boxcar.

In a simple dedication ceremony, Ed Burkey of Milford, head of the county drive, emptied milo from a full bucket into an empty one held by drive captain William Reber of Seward—symbolizing "the sharing of our abundance with the poor overseas," Staple said

Henderson Elected By Malone Center

Gerald Henderson

Elected President

Gerald Henderson was elected president of the Malone Community Center at their annual meeting Wednesday night.

Other officers named were Gladys McFields, first vice president; Shirlie Hutcherson, second vice president; Irma Warta, secretary; and Donald Little, treasurer.

The group also approved new board members Rev. Clifton Bullock, Carol Gourlay, Gary Hill, Donald Little and Haze Pope.

Housing Problems Noted

In other activities a panel discussion was presented on the housing problem in Lincoln.

Mrs. Peter Reilly, of the League of Women Voters, said that there is a long list of talkers in the area of housing but it is difficult to find anyone who is actually doing something.

She said that citizens are participating only irregularly in the affairs of housing. Mrs. Reilly said that when the city policies and goals committee met to draw up policies concerning housing many people were interested and present but Monday night when the group voted to remove one of the policies no one was on hand to make their desires known.

Mrs Bea Richmond, chairman of the City-Wide Tenants Association, said that people are living in substandard housing because there is no other place for them to go.

Families Doubled Up

She said that families are doubled up in houses and that in one case there are 22 people living in a two-bedroom house. In another house the people have to sleep in shifts because of the lack of room.

Mrs. Richmond said that families face discrimination in housing in Lincoln every day not only because they are black, Indian of Chicano but because they are on ADC and low income. She said that Lincoln is one of the worst cities she has even seen in terms of low income discrimination.

Right now Lincoln needs 1,000 units of public housing, Mrs. Richmond said, adding that even this wouldn't take care of the problem completely.

City councilman, Bob Sikyta, said that one of the problems in the past has been duplication of efforts by groups working for reforms in housing and that the mayors' housing committee is eliminating much of this.

Sikyta said that he felt one way of helping to solve the problem is to put people through manpower training programs so they can get an adequate job

The councilman said that the city has areas that need to be developed and if the city has to bend the rules and make a few exceptions to get emergency relief for families needing adequate housing that is the way it will have to be.

Sikyta said, "Everybody has the right to expect that which it takes to make their family comfortable

Fund Halt Would Interrupt NU's Colombia Plans

A cut-off of funds to the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) would "interrupt what has been planned as an orderly phase-out" of the University of Nebraska Mission in Colombia, according to NU's director of international programs.

But Clyde C. Noyes said the technical assistance program would not be affected until the start of calendar 1972.

"We're all right through December as far as money goes," Noyes said Wednesday. "The money is in the pipeline."

"After that," he said, "depends on what happens in Washington."

The assistance program to the South American country is financed in part with funds, mostly loans, from AID, one of the agencies which has been in financial limbo while Congress has debated the merits of the foreign aid program

AID loan funds for 1971 total $1.1 million, Noyes said.

The Nebraska mission, which has provided technical assistance in agriculture and home economics to Colombia, began in 1966.

NU has already started to wind down the program, and Noyes said "if AID goes out of the picture it will interrupt what has been planned as an orderly phase-out."

He said an amendment to the current contract has been planned to complete the project and meet loan and grant obligations to Colombian students studying in the U.S

"If we didn't get the additional funding (about $200,000), he said, "some staff might have to be brought home" or students might have to cease their studies and return to Colombia.

"This would be real tragic, especially for the students," he said.

Virtually all of the additional $200,000 would be in the form of loans to the government of Colombia, he said

Although most of the funding has come through AID loans specific sectors of the project have been financed by the W. K Kellogg Foundation and the Ford Foundation

The Colombian government has also provided funding

In addition to providing technical assistance to Colombian institutions responsible for teaching, research and extension, emphasis has also been on selection and training of young Colombians to assume positions of leadership in agriculture and home economics.

About 200 such students have traveled to the U.S. for such studies, said Noyes.

Housing Committee Told Some Rents Inequitable

More than half of the 134 low-income families interviewed in a housing survey conducted by Home and Neighborhood Development (HAND) and Lincoln Action Program (LAP) are paying more than 25% of their gross income for rent, it was reported Wednesday

At a meeting of the Mayor's Committee on Housing, Sue Scott outlined the findings of the survey noting that these families "are faced with grossly inadequate housing and no workable prospect for improving their conditions."

She reported that Housing and Urban Development (HUD) standards provide that families should pay 25% of their gross income for housing if they are to adequately support their other family needs for food, clothing and other essentials.

However, she noted, 56% of the families interviewed paid more than 25% of their income for rent and other housing needs.

Of that 56%, 72% had to pay all or some of the utilities, while 54% of those paying less than 25% of their gross income for housing were paying all or some utilities, the report showed.

Mrs. Scott said that one major source of difficulty was excessive utility bills stemming from faulty housing. She cited examples of heating bills in winter ranging from $117 to $15 with the average bill being $41.

She reported that the families were primarily permanent residents of Lincoln and not transients and that only 37% of them were totally on welfare. 39% received some welfare, and 24% reported work was their only source of income.

Of those interviewed, according to the report, 70% were below Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO) guidelines, with one-third of them being below guidelines as much as $1,500 or more.

Practically all of the families in the survey live in houses which do not meet Lincoln's minimum housing code. Mrs. Scott reported, noting that of the 14 Housing Authority houses in the survey group, there was an average of two conditions which did not meet the housing code

She said, "It is clear from this survey, that even with the help of numerous agencies, the solution for Lincoln families with housing problems is not at hand."

Total State Investments Could Reach $1 Billion

Total state investments for calendar 1971 could approach the $1 billion mark, State Investment Officer Fred Kuethe said Wednesday.

Only $33 million more and the total would top the original prediction of $900 million in state funds invested.

"I think it's safe to say that we will exceed the $900 million figure by a considerable amount," Kuethe told the Investment Council.

The council was charged by the Legislature to put idle state funds to work in stocks and bonds. The funds include tax revenue, appropriations and retirement monies not immediately needed by the state for disbursement. The return on the investment would then supplement taxation as a revenue source

The council also approved a contract with the University of Nebraska. Under its terms, the university would act as the procurement agent for the $1 million student loan program.

The contract, which has also been approved by the University Board of Regents, would mean that all students attending eligible private and public, technical and academic colleges in the state would go through the university to receive their loans.

"This will free our office from the routine paperwork involved in the state loan program. However, the vouchers will still have to be signed by this office."

The other proposed partner in the servicing arrangement, the State College Board, was also tentatively agreed to pending a servicing charge clarification.

The board will act as the follow-up agent in the loan program. After a student graduates, it will be responsible for seeing that the federally guaranteed loan is paid back

The $1 million program is funded by the $43 million Teachers' Retirement Fund.

Goodyear Donates $57,220

The employes of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company and the members of United Rubber Workers No. 286 contributed $57,220 to the 1972 United Fund campaign, an increase over last year of 9.4%.

"This contribution represents the largest from any employe group in the city," said Walter G. Stephenson, Jr., chairman of the Lancaster County drive.

The total contributions to date are $982,391, representing 81.3% of the $1,207,640 campaign goal.

Division reports for this week are: special gifts, $130,974; unit firms, $501,242; loaned executives, $89,991; business, $75,277; government, $87,272; education, $81,672; and women's, $15,962.

Individual unit firms which have reached or are over their goals include: First Mid-America, Dana Cole, Henkle & Joyce Hardware, Sealrite, Weaver Potato Chip Company, Latsch's and Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company.

Pretoria, South Africa (AP) — The Milk Board is promoting a white Christmas this year and urging offices planning holiday parties "to have milk available for your guests."

3-Year-Old Boy Added To State's Traffic Death Toll

Beatrice (AP) — The death of William Kirby, 3, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Kirby of Beatrice, has been added to Nebraska's 1971 traffic death toll, the State Patrol reported Wednesday.

Authorities said the boy was struck by an unoccupied car which rolled down a driveway at his babysitter's residence and into a street. He was taken to a Lincoln hospital and died there about two hours after the accident.

Mrs. Perry Files Alienation Action

A $35,000 suit for alienation of affections was filed by Lee C Perry in Lancaster District Court against Loree Golter. Both are Lincoln residents.

Plaintiff alleges her husband's affections were alienated by the defendant, causing him to abandon his home and children.

The Perrys were married Oct. 25, 1965, at Grand Island, according to the petition.

Planning Board Agrees To Hold Onto Property

A restaurant facility for the University Place business district, added park area for Havelock Park and the possibility of retaining as a library the Northeast Branch at 27th and Orchard were discussed Wednesday at public hearings before the City-County Planning Commission.

Up for hearing before the nine-member commission was a proposal for the sale of surplus city property where fire stations and branch libraries were located prior to their recent or scheduled relocation in new facilities.

The Planning Commission unanimously accepted the recommendation of Planning Director Douglas Brogden that the general policy of the city should be to hold these properties until adjacent lands could be accumulated to provide larger building sites for new businesses, or be used as trading stock so that land might be more easily accumulated in a portion of that particular business district.

Park Site Approved

The commission also approved the recommendations of Brogden and Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith that the site of the former Havelock Library which is adjacent to the Havelock Park be retained for park uses.

The Rev. Don Bredthauer from the University Place Community Organization (UPCO) which conducted a study on future development of the area asked the commission to consider retaining the former University Place City Hall and fire station at 2601 No. 48th, for possible use as a restaurant facility.

They contended that the survey indicated that need for a "good eating establishment" was high on the priority list and noted that Larry Price had indicated an interest in leasing the former City Hall building as a restaurant with a "Gay Nineties" atmosphere.

A spokesman for Price's restaurant operation said that Price was thinking in terms of a five-year lease rather than a long-time agreement.

George Knight of the Citizen's Bank indicated that the businessmen need a meeting place and such a restaurant facility there would meet that need.

Milton Evans of Nebraska Wesleyan University also spoke out in favor of the proposal noting that there is a definite need for more food services in the area.

The Planning Commission agreed that there was a need for added restaurant facilities in University Place and recommended that "excellent restaurant facilities" be encouraged at the location and that the city consider leasing the property for such a facility for the "further development" of University Place.

Wendall Gauger, who had made a plea last week before the Library Board to retain the Northeast Branch Library, also told the commission that there is a need for this facility since the new branch is some distance away and it is difficult for these people to have access to the new facility.

He said the area is "unique" in the city in that the number of books in the home is very low and the residents do not have the means to visit other branches which are a considerable distance from the area.

Most commission members indicated that this was a problem that should be worked out between the Library Board and City Council and made such a recommendation.

In other action:

— Approved vacation of a portion of U between 24th and 25th, and a portion of 25th between T and U

— Approved preliminary and final plats for Debbie's Subdivision between 62nd and 63rd and Francis and Colby.

— Approved a proposed amendment relating to side and rear yards for business or industrial buildings.

Abortion Loan Plan Proposed

A proposal to establish a loan fund for "women who want or need an abortion" was offered Wednesday at a meeting of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln student senate

The motion was sponsored by Bill Behmer, a student senator, who suggested the senate set aside $1,000 of other than student fee monies to be used for abortion loans not to exceed $150.

"This bill is for women who want or need an abortion," said Behmer, "but due to private reasons, cannot afford an abortion out of state."

His proposal called for loan of the funds for transportation or medical costs

It would provice ofr an interest-free loan for six months but calls for an interest charge of 6% thereafter

Among requirements he said, would be proof that the borrower is of legal age

Funds, according to the proposal, would not come from student fee monies, but rather from monies received from an insurance company which won the right to include a letter from the student government organization in a mailing to students, or from the student record store.

There was no discussion on the motion, since rules call for action at the next meeting following introduction That meeting will come after the holiday break

Study Urges New Boost For Voc Ag

Members of the Nebraska Advisory Council for Vocational and Technical Education Wednesday outlined their 1971 evaluation of Nebraska's vocational education program

The evaluation proposes a "new emphasis" on vocational education in the state schools, an emphasis which the council suggests be "placed on both academic and vocational education in terms of the philosophy of career education."

The evaluation was outlined by council members Wednesday at a public hearing at the Capitol

Guidance and counseling for students should become the top state priority, the report says because "the educational needs of students cannot be adequately met unless the student has set challenging life goals, including goals related to the 'world of work'"

Suggesting that vocational and technical education has been bypassed by school counselors, the report says, "a greater combined effort on the part of all educators is needed to assist students in making wise occupational decisions, continuing their education and developing their full human resource potential"

The evaluation also suggested the "comprehensive high school is the most feasible secondary school structure for meeting the needs of all youths."

"The most critical need for a broad occupational offering is found in the inner-city ghetto and rural poverty areas," the evaluation said

Professor To Work On Reapportionment

Dr. Adam Breckenridge

Dr. Adam C. Breckenridge, professor of political science at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, has been appointed by a federal judge panel to serve as a master in developing a new plan for apportionment of both houses of the Minnesota Legislature.

Prof. Breckenridge was asked to serve in this capacity following determination that the present Minnesota apportionment plan is unconstitutional. Breckenridge will carry out the assignment between the first and second semesters.

A member of the NU faculty since 1946, Breckenridge is the author of five books including "Readings in American State Government" and "One House For Two: A Study of Nebraska's Unicameral Legislature."

He is a former member of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Planning Commission and the Lincoln Zoning Board of Appeals.

Kissack Hopes Inspection Changes OKd By First Of Year

State Motor Vehicles Director John Kissack said Wednesday he hopes to have legislative approval of Nebraska's new motor vehicle inspection manual before the first of the year.

A revised manual was approved by the department earlier in the day following a public hearing at the Statehouse at which only one person appeared and he was there only for informational purposes and not to protest any of the revisions.

Kissack said the revisions are not drastic but are aimed at strengthening standards by inclusion of more detail on how the inspections are to be conducted.

Among the major revisions are:

—Break checks must include the pulling of at least one wheel for visual inspection of the brake drum and lining.

—Every vehicle must have at least two windshield wipers if they were included in the vehicle's original design.

—Exhaust pipes must extend to the rear or side edge of vehicles

—All fenders must extend out and down from the side of vehicles.

—Inspection stations must be located in a permanent type building with at least two permanent walls and a permanent roof.

—Any corrective work needed as a result of an inspection may be done at a station of the motorist's choosing and need not be performed by the station or garage that conducted the inspection.

Watershed Defers Position On NRD

The Salt Valley Watershed District's board of directors Wednesday deferred taking a position on six "carryover" bills, pending before the 1972 Legislature, regarding the state's natural resources districts (NRD).

The board's executive committee recommended postponement until "positions" on the pending legislation are announced by the State Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts and the State Soil and Water Conservation Commission later this month.

The pending bills would require NRD's to have six-year plans, reduce the maximum permissible levy to one mill from two mills, change the membership to the state commission to one representative from each NRD and eliminate the mandatory requirement that soil conservation districts be merged into the NRD's.

One bill proposes repeal of the NRD law. The state commission has created 24 NRD's, which will become effective July 1 under present law.

The directors also marked during their meeting the 10th anniversary of ground-breaking ceremonies for the Antelope Creek Dam, now known as Holmes Lake Park, on the southeast edge of Lincoln as the first of the flood control structures built by the Corps of Engineers in the watershed.

The board was also advised of the proposed election of officers on Nov. 24 for the interim board of directors for the Lower Loup South NRD, of which the Salt Valley district is a party.

No Charges Will Be Filed In Fatal Traffic Accident

No state charges will be filed in connection with the death of 18-year-old Paul E. Gibson, who was killed Nov. 11 in a two-car accident at 84th and A, according to the Lancaster County Attorney's office Wednesday.

Young Gibson and Charles S. Clough, 18, of 501 Cottonwood, were occupants of a car which was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Helen A. Rosborough, 64, of Omaha.

Clough, who received multiple fractures in the accident, is listed in serious condition at St. Elizabeth Community Health Center.

Deputy County Atty. William Blue said no official determination was made as to who was driving the car in which the two youths, both East High School students, were riding.

Clough and young Gibson, who lived at 1635 So. 56th, had been working on the car in the school's automotive shop and were to have returned it to a student parking lot.

Farmer Stripped

Written Briefs Ordered In Pay Dispute

The Lancaster District Court directed Wednesday that written briefs be filed in connection with a suit which claims Nebraska State Patrol troopers are entitled to overtime pay.

The suit was brought by former Patrolman Tom Roth, who contends the state owes him $3,049 for 148 hours of overtime compiled during his five years with the Patrol.

His claim for overtime pay was denied last June by State Administrative Services Director Gus Lieske.

During hearing testimony Wednesday, Patrol Supt. James E. Kruger said he has never approved overtime pay because the Legislature has never provided funds for this purpose.

Kruger said he thought it was "general knowledge" within the law enforcement organization that troopers would not get overtime pay.

The State of Nebraska has asked the suit be dismissed on grounds that overtime pay has never geen granted or promised to Patrol members.

In taking the suit under advestment, the court granted four weeks for the submission of all briefs.

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON

In his most recent book, Bernard Malamud writes of a number of things—of the frustrating and, at times, frightening complexity of interracial relationships; of loneliness; of the anguish and torment endured by an author struggling to bring to a conclusion a book that defies completion. Most of all, he writes about the alienation that begins when one cannot come to grips with himself; and that is manifested in an inability to establish viable interpersonal relationships.

"The Tenants" (Farrar, Straus and Giroux) is filled with characters suffering from the aforementioned problems. As Malamud brings them together within the format of his book, the stage is set for some chilling confrontations.

In the beginning, there is Harry Lesser, 36-year-old Jewish author living alone on the upper floor of a crumbling New York City tenement, where he agonizes daily over the conclusion of a book that has been nine and one-half years in the writing. Refusing to leave the place where his book had its inception, he frustrates the landlord's every attempt to entice him to leave so that the building might be demolished.

One day, there appears in the same building one Willie Spearmint—a Black writer struggling to complete his first book. At first Lesser sees Spearmint as an uninvited intruder whose very presence threatens his ability to finish his book. However, soon, a rather strained, always mutually-suspicious camaraderie develops between the two; and ultimately Spearmint invites Lesser to criticize his manuscript. It is from the beginning, a turbulent relationship, complicated by racial hang-ups on both sides; and it ends in a symbolic death-struggle in which both are destroyed.

Other characters appear (e.g., Irene, Spearmint's white girlfriend who later takes up with Lesser; and who seeks her identity through acting and psycho-analysis, never quite getting the job done); however their presence serves merely to enhance the conflict between the two writers.

All of the author's characters are, in a significant sense, unable to cope with themselves. In the case of Lesser, Malamud adeptly portrays the writer's attempt to identify himself through his book. Unfortunately, the same cannot be said for his analysis of Spearmint's struggle to affirm his blackness through his writing. Despite a compelling story-line and some truly penetrating passages, Malamud does not delve deeply enough into the complexity that is Spearmint; and the book suffers for that.

Abby: resign and leave town

DEAR ABBY: Maybe you can help me figure something out. I can't, and I'm about to lose my mind.

Seven years ago I fell in love with my boss. Yes, I knew he had a wife and grown children, but he told me he loved me and that his sex life at home was nil. Soon my love for him became the most important thing in my life. We managed to get together often. I even rented an apartment near his home to be more accessible.

Suddenly his wife tells him she has known about our affair from the beginning, but she said nothing, hoping to ride it out. I asked why he didn't let her divorce him, and he said he didn't want a divorce, that he and his wife are "working things out now."

Where does that leave me? He ignores me at the office now. I gave him seven years of my life. My questions:

1. How could any wife stand by, knowing her husband had another woman, and just "ride it out," as she says?

2. If his sex life at home really was nil, why is he sticking with her and trying to work things out?

3. Is there any way I can get him back?

4 Could it be that he really loves her after all?

I am almost 40 and I'm afraid life is passing me by. Please help me. I can't even get him to talk to me about it.

THREE TIME LOSER

DEAR LOSER: 1. She loved him.

2. Maybe his sex life WAS nil, but it's better now.

3. I doubt it.

4. Could be.

Hand in your resignation and relocate as far away as possible. For a going away present he should give you excellent references.

Martin Heights
Wedgewood Manor
Trendwood
Wellington Greens

Football games and holidays rarely fail to bring many visitors into Lincoln — and this year suburban residents are bracing themselves for the not-too-distant day when those two happy events are merged—meaning Thanksgiving, that special day when the NU Cornhuskers will meet the OU Sooners on the field—and on television.

All eyes will be glued to the set in most homes that day, including the Martin Heights residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hansen—and there will be about 24 eyes keeping track of the game.

You see, Mr. and Mrs. Hansen will be host and hostess at a family dinner that day—and also will be giving thanks that the entire family can be together.

Joining in the family fun and feast, which will include a turkey, a goose, and a hen, will be Mr. and Mrs. Hansen's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gary T. Hansen, and their children Jeffrey and Kimberly; another son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Alan M. Hansen and their children, daughter, Lisa Renee and son, Scott Alan Blaine Hansen, and a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Tegley, and son Tommy.

Thanksgiving dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen E. Beach of Wedgewood Manor will be Mr. Beech's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Beach who, undoubtedly, will be bubbling over with talk of their recent trip to Pittsbuurgh, Pa.

During the trip to the east, made by the travelers, they spent 10 days visiting with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Beach and their sons, Mike, David, and Matthew.

Not to be forgotten are Mr. and Mrs. Owen Beach's children, Candy, Susan, Toby, and Jimmy, who also will share in the family dinner—and Jimmy will be congratulated on his 13th birthday which will be on Wednesday, Nov. 24, just one day before Turkey Day.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Carmichael left their Trendwood home recently and motored to Fremont where they visited with some very special guests at the home of Mrs. Carmichael's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stratton, Sr.

The honored visitors were Mrs. Carmichael's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stratton, Jr., who make their home in Puerto Rico where he is manager of the Goodyear Western Hemisphere Co.

Also journeying from Lincoln for the visit were Mrs. Carmichael's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Matoush.

On another recent weekend Mr. and Mrs. Carmichael were host and hostess to guests at their home—Dr. and Mrs. Jim Thayer of Sidney who were in Lincoln for an NU football game which just happend to coincide with the date of a medical reunion for Dr. Thayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Taylor of Wellington Greens will be going to grandmother's house for Thanksgiving dinner. All of the turkey and trimmings this year will be at the home of Mrs. Taylor's grandmother, Mrs. Albert Speier. Mrs. Speier also will be entertaining the Taylor's daughter and her great granddaughter, Miss Heather Marie Taylor, as well as a special guest from New York City, a son, Paul Speier. Sharing in the festivities will be Mrs. Taylor's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Silverman, also of Wellington Greens.

A New President

Mrs. Donna Brummer has been named president-elect of the Women's Division of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

The announcement was made at the group's monthly dinner meeting on Wednesday evening, Nov. 17.

Other officers who will assume their positions on Jan. 1, 1972, are Mrs. Marjorie Bartels, first vice president; Miss Georgi Ann Maixner, second vice president; Mrs. Beryl Arnold, third vice president; and Mrs. Evelyn O'Connor, treasurer.

The president-elect has resided in Lincoln for 21 years and has been a member of the Women's Division since 1959. She is employed with the Lincoln Public Schools.

Mrs. Brummer has served the group in several other capacities, including the Women's Division Board of Directors, Youth, Activities, Ways and Means, and Health and Education Committees. She is the past second vice president.

Talk

The other day we were talking about Miss Jill Guenzel, whose marriage to Ron Nelson will be solemnized on Saturday morning, and we mentioned the fact that she was busy. That is a masterpiece of understatement.

Let's take a look at last Saturday, for instance.

For Miss Guenzel the day began with a breakfast when Mrs. Gilbert Sechrist was a hostess at her home, and when the guest list included members of the family.

* * *

On Saturday afternoon Mrs. Scott Dvorak and Miss Sandy Campbell complimented the bride-elect with an afternoon party and miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Dvorak.

* * *

Then came Saturday evening — This time Miss Guenzel and her fiance shared honors at a dinner for which Mr. and Mrs. Dean Forke and Miss Janis Forke were host and hostesses at their home.

* * *

That doesn't complete the courtesy picture, however.

On Sunday, Nov. 14, Miss Guenzel and Mr. Nelson were out and about again — The affair was a family brunch and the hosts and hostesses included Mr. and Mrs. Reinhold Rebensdorf, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guenzel, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Tim Cox.

The last party will be on Friday evening when Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guenzel pay prenuptial courtesy to the bride-elect and her fiance, when they entertain at dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Guenzel.

* * *

Saturday, Nov. 20, not only has its quota of weddings, it also has dinner dances.

The one we have in mind at the moment is dining and dancing at Hotel Lincoln and, as you may have surmised, it is a dancing club.

The Charada Club will begin its merrymaking in the Terrace Room at 7 o'clock, and we might add that it is guest night.

An incomplete list of those guest couples includes Mr. and Mrs. Don Leonard, Mr. and Mrs. Duane Ackley and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ware. And also to be introduced at the party are three new member couples — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Starr.

Planning the details of the dinner dance is a committee composed of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Broer, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Walker and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hand.

Dessert Luncheon Planned

The members of the American Association of University Women Current Literature division will be treated to a dessert luncheon on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 18.

The 12:30 o'clock affair will be held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd E. Chapman, 3340 Grimsby Lane.

The discussion of James Houston's "White Dawn," will be led by Mrs. Ed W. Ruehle.

Parents Of Retarded Children Upset Over Change

More than 50 mothers, fathers and teachers of retarded children packed a basement room of Bethany Christian Church Wednesday night in emotional disagreement over the recent demotions of two supervisors.

Facing the parents were John W. Luebs, who became director of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) Aug. 31, and Mrs. Pat Adams, director of LOMR's child development programs, PEP and TRY.

Several parents confronted Luebs with the fear that more demotions or firings may follow, upsetting delicate teacher-child relationships. A mother who said she has a two-year-old child enrolled in the TRY (Training of Retarded Youngsters) pre-school program, said, "I love the teachers. They're great. I don't know why all the confusion."

'Well Pleased'

Another parent said, "I'm very well pleased with what we have now. Why should we be subject to all these changes?"

In reply, Luebs said, "You say you're satisfied. Well, we (the LOMR board) are not." He said as director of LOMR he must see that child development programs meet state standards. He said the supervisors were demoted to teacher roles, with the same pay, because they lacked the necessary education.

"You're not going to lose what you have," he said. "No children will be denied services in this program. As a matter of fact, services will improve."

Understands Fears

Mrs. Adams said she understands the fears brought about by the personnel changes. She told the group her main concern is for the children and they are in no danger of losing any beneficial programs.

In an opening statement, Luebs said LOMR has no funds to replace the school's building which he said has been ordered vacated by the Lincoln Fire Department. He said LOMR will not provide services that should be the responsibility of the Lincoln School Board.

A parent said she will not "feel comfortable" about Luebs remarks until Superintendent of Schools John Prasch pledges that the Lincoln school system will assume responsibility for the education of retarded children.

Little Progress

David Blume, who became director of CARC Sept. 1, said discussion of the school board's role is being held with Prasch. He said that the talks have not progressed enough to be made public, but indicated the school board eventually will assume responsibility for education of the retarded children.

"The situation is unfortunate as it stands — I hate to see all the hostility," he said, referring to the frequency of heated words. "I'm standing here shaking and I'm not even on the firing line."

A parent said she feels "We (parents) don't know where we're at" because of lack of funds for a new building and the fear of losing more staff and perhaps some programs. Luebs said there is "no shortage of funds to carry on the necessary aspects of the program."

Safety Group Tabs Collins As Director

Thomas H. Collins of Lincoln was selected chairman Wednesday of the advisory committee of the Nebraska Alcohol and Highway Safety Project, a state-wide education program on alcohol abuse.

The project, backed by a $63,554 federal grant through the Nebraska Highway Safety Program, ultimately calls for two-day workshops next year in about 25 Nebraska communities identified as having significant alcohol-related traffic problems. The workshops, designed for each specific community, will also be conducted in populations centers of Nebraska, excluding Omaha and Lincoln.

In preparation for the workshops, the committee plans to collect statistics on alcohol-related accidents in the communities and train 25 local teams of lawmen, lawyers, doctors, teachers and clergymen to implement local programs.

Rabid Dog May Have Bit Attackers

Schuyler (UPI) — A dog believed to be responsible for chasing away three persons involved in the beating of two rural Schuyler women has died of what may be rabies, Colfax County Sheriff Richard Kruse said Wednesday.

Kruse said although no tests had been taken on the dog, it was believed the dog was rabid.

Kruse said there was a possibility that the dog had bitten one of the trio and he urged them to contact a doctor.

The two women, Mrs Mary Helus and her daughter Rosela, were hospitalized following the beating

Opening lead — Two of hearts.

It is generally conceded that defense is the most difficult part of the game. True, some players have a particular aptitude for it, but by and large the Achilles' heel of most players is defense.

One reason is that it is difficult to formulate general rules to govern defense. A player has to do his own thinking as play progresses, and cannot, as he does in bidding, rely on such everyday yardsticks as point count, Blackwood, Stayman, and so on

Take this hand where East is defending against four spades. He cashes the A-K of hearts, which is certainly simple enough, but what should he do next?

It is a virtual certainty that South has the king of spades and ace of diamonds for his bids. The only real chance to stop the contract must therefore lie in West's being able to take a second trump trick with either the ten or nine of spades

In line with this, East plays another heart at trick three. He knows he is conceding a ruff and discard, but he also knows it will do declarer no good and might, conceivably, do him some harm.

South ruffs in his hand and can do no better than lead a trump to the jack Pursuing his scheme of defense East permits the jack to win the trick.

Declarer must now go down whatever he does next If he continues with a trump, East takes the ace and plays the fourth round of hearts

West is by now out of hearts and declarer cannot prevent him from scoring the ten of spades as the setting trick. East's decision at trick three to hand declarer a ruff and discard — a play ordinarily frowned upon — bears very good fruit

Thanks to Max Roper a mistake concerning the record of the 1925 Nebraska Wesleyan football team has been corrected.

A review of past NWU football teams revealed that the 1925 Plainsmen club was 6-2. But Max, who played on the 1925 team, was sure the squad didn't lose any games.

A check with current NWU records credited the 1925 club with a 6-2 mark which was correct in a way.

Wesleyan sports information director Jack Andersen got out some old football records which cleared up the matter. It seems the old football records were kept in a different manner and this has caused the confusion.

The 1925 club was listed as having six wins and two ties. No mention was given to whether the team lost any games or not.

The 1925 squad didn't lose any games but this wasn't mentioned in the records.

Andersen theorizes the inevitable happened sometime when the old records were changed to newer ones. Someone got in a hurry in looking up the records and just saw the figures six and two.

That quick glance told the person the 1925 team was 6-2 and not 6-0-2 which is correct.

So for quite a few years the NWU football press book and other sources show the 1925 team was 6-2. Andersen checked other old records to make sure the mistake wasn't repeated in any other years.

Officials All Lawyers

During the past Wesleyan football season coach Harold Chaffee found out all four officials in one home game were lawyers from Omaha.

When he heard this Chaffee is reported to have replied, "We should get some real good explanations on any disputed calls."

However there weren't any disputed calls and NWU won the game over Huron College, 28-7

A few of the Plainsmen football players, mainly defensive tackle Dennis Erickson, chew tobacco and so does assistant coach Ron Bachman It seems Dennis' chewing of the stuff helped ready the offense at the Bethel, Kan. game.

With a controversy over protective mouthpieces almost causing a forfeit, Wesleyan managed to gather up 11 between the entire team.

With Dennis chewing as usual, Chaffee didn't have any trouble getting the offensive unit ready to go onto the field when the ball changed hands. It seems the last offensive player on the field was stuck with Erickson's mouthpiece.

Place For Eight-Man Player

Andersen pointed out one NWU game that eight of the players on the kickoff unit for Wesleyan played eight-man football in high school.

The Plainsmen, along with some other colleges notably Hastings, have quite a few players from eight-man schools. The leading rusher in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference this season was Gary Filipi, who played eight-man at Milligan.

With many of the state college teams short on personnel this year Andersen says it appears players from high schools with eight-man will be able to play college ball.

Two players from the state college ranks are being strongly recommended for all-American honors. Chadron has sent out a letter on defensive tackle Mike Parks and NWU is promoting end John McLaughlin.

Parks was a stalwart in the defensive line and holds many records while McLaughlin holds every passing record on the NWU books.

Husker Fortunes Not Pinned To Superstars

. . . BALANCE, TEAMWORK, DEPTH CHARACTERISTICS OF DEVANEY TEAMS

By ODELL HANSON
Associated Press Writer

Coach Bob Devaney, whose Nebraska Cornhuskers are in pursuit of a second straight national football title, is not one to pin his fortunes on one or two superstar players.

"I think the success of the Nebraska program is the fact it is built around a team of fine football players who feel they depend on each other," Devaney said in an interview.

Not that there are no standouts on the top-ranked Cornhusker team, headed for a Thanksgiving Day showdown with second-ranked Oklahoma.

"We think we have some great football players," says Devaney.

"We have players on our team we wouldn't trade for any in the country. Certainly, I think we have players who are candidates for all-American, and the Heisman Trophy, for that matter.

But I hesitate as a coach to single out one player and say he is the player on our team.

"I don't think it's up to the coach to give certain players a buildup. I think a player's ability is very evident to all who see the games, write about them and talk about them."

Balance, teamwork and reasonable depth have been characteristics of the 1971 Cornhuskers, who will be playing for the Big Eight title and a possible national crown Nov. 25.

Devaney, who owns a career record of 124 wins, 28 losses and six ties, says he sees no particular psychological advantage or disadvantage to being in defense of a No. 1 ranking as opposed to being No. 2 and shooting for the top spot, as in the case with Oklahoma.

But, he said, "I'd rather be number one and try to stay there."

Assistant Coach James Walden suggests the biggest problem may be to keep the Huskers from getting too emotionally charged for the game. On the other hand, Devaney says he would not like his team to be as relaxed as was the 1968 team, which went to Norman, Okla., and was blanked 47-0.

"We want to go down there as ready to play as we were in 1969," he said, referring to a game won by Nebraska 44-14. "We were ready to play that day."

ALI WINS DECISION

. . . Mathis Defeated At Houston Astrodome

Houston (UPI) — Utterly weary Buster Mathis, who climbed off the canvas four tortuous times in his 12-round defeat by Muhammad Ali, offered a simple explanation Wednesday night why he wanted so much to finish on his feet against the former heavyweight king.

"You guys," Mathis told reporters, "You guys have been saying I was a yellow dog — that I had no heart, that I was a pussycat."

Mathis was the picture of weariness as he sat on a chair on a raised platform in his dressing room to answer the questions of newsmen at the end of the Astrodome fight in which he made an unsuccessful return to the ring after an absence of 2½ years.

Big Buster made two points in his answer — that Ali never hurt him, but also that Ali is a "better fighter than Joe Frazier."

Mathis moved forward during most of the early fight, trying to get inside Ali's stabbing left. Then, at one point in the middle rounds, when Ali taunted him by going into a fit of fancy footwork (the double clutch shuffle), Mathis responded by imitating him. Virtually the same thing happened in the next round.

"I let my feelings run away from me. I don't know why. I was worried about getting tired than anything. I gave it all I got."

Ali said he deliberately toyed with the staggering Mathis "Because he obviously was out and I didn't want to kill him."

Ali, who denied he was slow at his career-high weight of 227 said he hit his hulking opponent with a "linger-on-punch — just like I did with (Jimmy) Ellis."

Ali announced he would fight Jurgen Blin of Germany Dec. 18 in Zurich He said he was ready anytime, anywhere to fight heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, who won a 15-round decision over Ali last March.

Jordan scored the fight 116-105 for Ali on the point system used in Texas, which awards 10 points to the winner of a round. Judge Ernie Taylor agreed 118-104 and Judge Earl Keel saw it 119-108. UPI scored it 120-108 for Ali.

In another bout carried by closed circuit TV overseas, Joe Bugner, 220½ of England, scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Mike Boswell, 196, Youngstown, Ohio.

In a second 10-rounder, George Chuvalo, 227, Toronto, gained a unanimous decision over Cleveland Williams, 229½, Houston.

CONGRATULATIONS ON GOOD JOB

Bob Reynolds, left, offers his congratulations to Husker freshman player Bob Nelson as Jeff Schneider, Charles Simmons, between Reynolds and Nelson and Bus Whitehead, seated, watch. The Nebraska yearlings were honored at a banquet Wednesday night at the Lincoln Country Club.

AP Says Irish Nix Bowl Bids

New York (AP) — The Notre Dame football team has decided not to play in a post-season bowl game this year and the announcement will be made Thursday, The Associated Press learned Wednesday night.

The feeling of the team was that there is no sense in going to a bowl unless they could play a team ranked higher in the polls. Notre Dame is ranked seventh this week.

Huskers Seek Way To Stop Wishbone

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Arkansas football coach Frank Broyles claimed earlier in the season there's no scheme that can be devised to stop the wishbone-T offense and Nebraska coach Bob Devaney agrees that "perhaps no one has yet come up with the most effective way of stopping it."

But the Husker coach also believes, "Some day they'll come up with the most effective way of stopping it." And he and his coaching staff are working nights this week trying to do just that.

"The formation certainly presents a defense with problems," he admits "One of the things about it is that it lets a team spend a lot of time working on its running game because they never get in a long yardage situation where they're forced to pass.

"But Oklahoma has been able to pass when it wanted to and that's made them even tougher to defense. One of the big things in their success is that they've passed in situations where you didn't know if they would run or pass."

Devaney cited the Colorado game as an example. "Against Colorado, they ran for their first score and they got their second to go ahead by 14-0 by passing on first down," he pointed out.

Another part of the problem for the Husker defense is that Oklahoma is the first team they've faced this year to use the wishbone-T offense.

"We haven't seen it since we played Oklahoma a year ago," Devaney noted. "And we didn't do a very good job of defensing it then."

In trying to defense it better this year the Husker coaches are spending countless hours looking at films of OU games against Southern Cal, Pittsburgh, Kansas State, Colorado and Missouri.

The team that defensed the Sooners the best this season was Missouri and Devaney admits, "There have been a lot of times when I would have liked to have played the Missouri defense.

"But you have to play it all the time to be effective. And just to pattern yourself exactly after someone else generally doesn't work.

"One of the things you can't do is change too radically from what you've been doing."

The Husker coach said it was the Missouri ends, who made the Tiger defense work against the Sooners.

"Missouri's ends did a great job," he said. "They knocked over the blocker and still made the tackle. Oklahoma doesn't think anyone can do that, but Missouri did it."

But aside from trying to stop the wishbone-T, Devaney points out. "We've got to score some points ourselves. I think both the Oklahoma defense and our offense are being underrated."

And another thought on the wishbone. "There are a lot of teams running the wishbone that are losing," Devaney points out.

SI Gives Edge To OU

Sports Illustrated, featuring Nebraska and Oklahoma on its cover this week, gives the edge to the Sooners in the Thanksgiving Day game.

Writer Dan Jenkins says, "The answer to the enigma lies in faster, more deceptive Oklahoma's ability to operate the most devastating attack in football today.

"Nobody really stops the triple option, because it has the enemy outnumbered. It stops itself

"If the Sooners do not stop themselves, then they will win something that might be called —hey, gang, why not call it the Game of the Decade?"

Signing For Library

The Nebraska football team will lend itself on Dec. 13 to the drive to make the University's Love Library No. 1.

The Husker footballers will gather at the NU Coliseum at 4 p.m. that day for an autograph session. Admission to the Coliseum will be $2 with proceeds going to the Love Library Fund.

Champs Tangle

By RANDY EICKHOFF

A clash of defending champions had the crowd sitting on the edge of their seats Wednesday night during the second Lincoln Golden Gloves Boxing Smoker as Mike Wilson stepped up a class to fight John Brown in the seventh bout.

Wilson, the 1971 Southeast District and Midwest Golden Gloves champion at 132 lbs., scored a TKO victory over John Brown, 1971 Southeast champion at 139 lbs.

Wilson, fighting for Branding Iron, boxing club knocked Brown down in the second round once before connecting with a hard right to daze the heavier fighter and force referee Larry Emory to stop the fight.

"He's won most of his fights by KO's," Wilson said about Brown following his victory. "I knew it would be a good fight.

"When I first went in, I knew that I had to move on him. I didn't want to stand and slug it out. He has a real hard right."

Wilson said he didn't try to rush it in the second as he thought he had it won on points.

"I just tried to move real slow and when he tried to come in, I threw up a good offense." He paused then added: "The best defense is a good offense. It's hard to get through a maze of punches."

Wilson opened the fight by carrying the attack to Brown, forcing the heavier fighter back into the ropes, slipping punches and throwing salvos at Brown's face and stomach. Only once did Brown connect with his patented overhand right that has chilled many previous opponents, but that punch before 348 fans was partially cushioned by Wilson's shoulder.

"I felt one of his punches when he had me in a corner," Wilson said. "That one had me hurt for a second, but I got away."

The ex-Marine indicated that he really wanted the fight to help sharpen him up for the Golden Gloves.

"You don't gain anything by fighting guys who've only had one or two fights. Since I knew that he was strong, I thought there would be a knockout. And since I've never been knocked out, I thought it would be him," Wilson explained.

Another Southeast District Golden lovesG champion, Randy Nelsen, scored a third round TKO in :45 over Eloy Honojosa, 163.

Nelsen, boxing-coach of the Saylor Boxing Club, entered the ring five pounds heavier than the Fairbury fighter and proved to any doubters that he can take a punch when Hinojosa forced Nelsen to abandon his boxing style for a brawling, slugging fight.

Four Juniors Make All-State Class D Eleven

. . . GUARDS, TACKLES AVERAGE MORE THAN 217 POUNDS PER MAN

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Four juniors and a quartet of guards and tackles who average over 217 pounds highlight the 1971 Lincoln Star Class D high school all-state football team.

The results of the ballot tabulation, after each coach in the state was invited to vote, placed end Stan Eilers of Nelson, Callaway tackle Gene McCleary and backs Scott Albrecht of Davenport and Sumner's Dave Jones on the dream team despite the fact that each has another year of competition remaining.

McCleary is also one of the mammouth interior linemen. At 215 pounds he's matched by senior guard Mike Essay of Alliance St. Agnes.

The king of the group is Clay Center tackle Jim Kounovsky at 235 pounds, while the lightweight of the foursome is Niobrara guard David Theirolf at "just" 205.

Alliance St. Agnes, which captured the No. 1 place in the Class D ratings this fall, was the only school to grab more than one spot on the mythical eleven Crusader quarterback Pat Powers joins Albrecht, Jones and hard-charging Falls City Sacred Heart fullback Bill Simon to form the backfield.

The all-star aggregation is completed by Dix center Roy Wurdeman and Lexington St. Ann back Barry Schuckman, who is shifted to end because of his pass catching abilities, to team with Eilers.

The Class D all-state backfield has everything. Powers completed 68 passes this fall for 1,066 yards, including ten touchdowns and six double extra points.

But the impressive figure is the fact that each and every one of his completions averaged a 15.8 yard gain.

The junior halfbacks are elusive yet powerful runners. Jones handled the ball 171 times this fall — punt and kickoff returns, pass receptions and scrimmage carries — and came up with a total yardage figure of 1,454.

That meant eight and a half yards every time the Sumner scooter touched the ball. In a game that allows four downs to make ten yards, that's bad news for the opposition.

Albrecht was another 1,000 plus yardage gainer for the season as he zipped for 11 touchdowns. The shortest player on the team at 5-8, Albrecht would be hard to find behind that big line, and even harder to bring down.

Simon is the perfect fullback for this all-state club. If Powers' passing or the running of Jones and Albrecht hadn't already gained the first down, just give it to the Falls City Sacred Heart bruiser.

Though his five-yard average attests to the fact that he also broke some long ones, Simon was good for three yards when everybody in the place knew he was going to carry.

As all of the interior linemen piled up the votes from opposing coaches, there was one phrase that came out over and over again. "He's quick off the ball and a great blocker. When they needed yardage, he cleared the path."

The quotes apply to all five of the unsung heroes in the line who were also cited for their outstanding defensive play. "Big and strong," the coaches kept saying in reference to the entire group.

And the all-state team adds another offensive weapon with a pair of fine ends.

Eilers, a standout on both offense and defense, snared 34 passes this fall, including seven TD grabs and seven more for extra points.

That made him the leading scorer on a team that averaged 26 points a game. The "good hands" required of an end belong to the Nelson flanker. He nabbed two deflected passes for crucial TD's this season.

Schuckman, though a fine halfback, is recruited to play end on the all-state team because of his speed and pass catching abilities.

For St. Ann's this fall he averaged over 16 yards on each aerial reception while tallying 11 touchdowns.

Blue Becomes Youngest, First A's Player Ever To Win AL's MVP

Mansfield, La. (AP) — Vida Blue's selection as the American League's Most Valuable Player Wednesday came at an opportune time for the Oakland Star—just as the wage-price freeze expired.

The 22-year-old lefthander from this tiny northwest Louisiana town is acknowledged as one of baseball's most underpaid stars and he's capitalized on the fact by mentioning it in a television commercial.

In addition, at the White House last summer, President Nixon called Blue "the most underpaid player in baseball." Blue earned an estimated $14,000 this year.

In an interview at his home Wednesday, Blue said he had more television commercials lined up and expected to huddle with the Oakland Athletics soon to sign a contract for the next baseball season.

He observed that the Most Valuable Player award coming close on the heels of the Cy Young Award for being the league's outstanding pitcher would not hurt his bargaining position.

"Now that the wage-price freeze is over, I think it's just a matter of time," said Blue. "I'm not saying that we're going to sign within the next day or two, but now that the freeze is over it makes it legal for everyone to negotiate to get a raise or a new contract or whatever they're negotiating for."

It was suggested the Federal Pay Board probably would be willing to exempt Blue from the 5.5 per cent pay raise ceiling.

"They're going to have to," Blue said with a grin. "Because I'm going to be begging, man."

Blue earned 14 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 268 points from the Baseball Writers Association of America committee.

Sal Bando, Blue's Oakland teammate, drew four first place votes and 182 points to finish second.

"I thought either Reggie Jackson or Bando would get it from our team," said Blue.

"They really helped our team. It wasn't a super year for either one of them compared to other years they've had in the majors, but they were really valuable to us."

Underclassmen Top State College Statistics

If the 1971 state college football season is any indication, 1972 should be even better.

Eight of the top 10 passers and rushers from this season's state college ranks are underclassmen.

Additionally, eight of the top 12 pass receivers and nine of the top 13 scorers are underclassmen.

So if the same players produce as well or better next season, battles for individual honors should become even more intense than they already appear to be this season

Doane's Floyd Guillory and Charlie McWorther of the University of Nebraska at Omaha, however, were the only underclassmen to win one of the four individual categories, based on state-wide competition among Nebraska's 12 football-playing schools.

Nebraska Wesleyan's John McLaughlin from the scoring leadership for the first time this season by scoring eight points Saturday in the Tigers' 24-14 loss at Dana.

The effort gave him 53 points, five ahead of McLaughlin and Chadron's Mike Dority.

Hastings' Gary Bendinger and McLaughlin, both seniors, held their leads from last week to win respective 1971 passing and pass receiving titles.

Bendinger finished with 1,353 yards for a 169.1 per game average. McLaughlin, although not the leader in total pass reception yardage, snagged 41 tosses for 520 yards and eight touchdowns

The top three pass receivers were seniors. Peru junior John Winkle was fourth and finished with a season-high 637 reception yards.

Only graduate-bound players to crack final tabulations included: passing — Bendinger and Dave McGrane, Neb. Wesleyan; rushing — Phil Allen, Fairbury Junior College and Mel Tarpley, Wayne; pass receiving — McLaughlin; Dan Danielcyzk, Concordia; George Watson, Hastings and Phil Whitworth, Fairbury; scoring — McLaughlin; Greg Cheng, Kearney; and Allen and Ken Hudson, Fairbury.

Husker, Sooner Stars Dominate Big 8 Stats

. . . LEAD IN ALL BUT TWO CATEGORIES

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The skilled positions on the Nebraska and Oklahoma football teams are well-manned.

So dominant have the two teams been in the Big Eight Conference that either a Cornhusker or Sooner leads every individual statistical category except two.

Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt and John Carroll and Nebraska's Jerry Tagge and Johnny Rodgers are the pace-setters. Pruitt leads in rushing, Carroll in kick scoring, Tagge in passing and total offense and Rodgers in pass receiving, punt and kickoff returning.

Pruitt and Rodgers are tied for the scoring lead with 90 points, each scoring 15 touchdowns.

Pruitt, though he played less than a half last week, has rushed for 1,423 yards on 150 carries for 9.5 yards per try. He has a 158.1-yard per game average.

Tagge has completed 61.9 per cent of his passes for 1,706 yards and 14 touchdowns. He needs only four more to equal the Big Eight record of 18 set by Terry McMillan of Missouri in 1969. Running and passing, Tagge has 1,926 yards.

Rodgers has caught 10 touchdown passes, a Big Eight record. For the season, he has 45 receptions for 729 yards. The shifty junior is averaging 15.9 yards per punt return and 32.6 yards per kickoff return.

Carroll has kicked for 63 points. He's converted 42 of 50 points after touchdowns and hit 7 of 10 field goal attempts.

Only categories not dominated by players on the nation's No. 1 and 2-ranked teams are punting and pass interceptions and Oklahoma's John Shelley is one of five players tied for the pass interception lead with five.

Oklahoma State's Jim Benien is far and away the league's best punter. He averaging 46.5 yards on 66 kicks.

The league's statistics make it obvious the Big Eight's most skilled players will be on the field Thanksgiving Day in Norman.

Douglas Defeats Adams For Title At Peru State

Peru (UPI) — Douglas High School defeated Adams High 15-8 and 14-7 Wednesday night to win the championship in the 26th annual Peru State College High School Girls Invitational Volleyball Tournament.

Johnson-Brock downed Dawson-Verdon 9-12, 15-5 and 15-7 to take consolation honors. In earlier semi-final play Wednesday, Adams defeated Dawson-Verdon 13-15, 15-10 and 15-6, while Douglas topped Johnson-Brock 15-10 and 15-12.

The All-Tourney Team: Sue Schulze, Dawson-Verdon; Diane Rapp, Adams, Mary Steinkuhler, Syracuse; Rita Steinkuhler, Douglas; Barb Haack, Johnson-Brock, Carol Spitznogle, Odell. The Second Team: Janice Schmidt, Adams; Vanee Hinderks, Anselmo-Merna, Susan Remmers, Filley, Vicky Seeba, Nemaha Valley; Glenda Dejonge, Dawson-Verdon, Amy Barr, Barneston.

Kirshen Elected New President

Omaha (AP) — Cal Kirshen of KMTV was elected president of the Omaha Sportscasters Wednesday.

Fred Girardi, sports information director at the University of Nebraska at Omaha, was elected vice president at the groups's session here.

Walt Gibbs of KRCB-Radio, Council Bluffs, Iowa, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

The new officers will be installed at the annual meeting Jan. 19 at Peony Park.

Pinder Regains Title

Hunting Clock

The following applies to any point in Nebraska that is due north or due south of each of the cities and towns. For each 9 miles west of any designated city, add one minute. For each 9 miles east, subtract one minute. All times listed are Central Daylight Time, except for Scottsbluff, which is on Mountain Daylight Time.

Shooting hours are one-half hour before sunrise to one-half hour after sunset for big-game, sunrise to sunset for wild turkey, and one-half hour before sunrise for all other species.

Sabin Quits As Coach

Denver (UPI) — When Lou Saban signed a 10-year contract in December of 1966 as head coach and general manager of the Denver Broncos, he said he would "develop a winning football team." On Wednesday, four losing seasons later, Saban quit as head coach.

He will remain general manager. The resignation is effective immediately and offensive line coach Jerry Smith was named acting head coach for the Broncos.

Kmart FISK TIRE GUARANTEE

Tread Wearout Guarantee

All Fisk tires are guaranteed against tread wearout for the number of months specified on the sales invoice. If the tread is less than 2/32" deep before the end of the specified period of use, Kmart will make an allowance* on the purchase of a new tire proportionate to the number of months remaining in the time guarantee. (Number of months will be computed from date of purchase.

Tread Life Guarantee

If a Fisk tire fails due to defects in workmanship or material or as a result of road hazard (except in cases of abuse or repairable puncture, as determined by Kmart) at any time while 2/32" or more of the original tread remains, Kmart will, at its option, either repair the tire or make an allowance* on the purchase of a new tire proportionate to the amount of original tread remaining

*Grade, line, level or quality representation relates to private standard of marketers. No industry standard exists.

Kmart BATTERY GUARANTEE

Free replacement within 90 days of purchase if battery proves defective. After 90 days, we will replace the battery and charge you only for the period of ownership based on the regular selling price at the time of return, pro-rated over specified number of months.

Vigil Wants Plea Withdrawn

Antonio S. Vigil, 28, of Lincoln has asked the Lancaster District Court for permission to withdraw his plea of guilty to a charge of first-degree murder.

Vigil had pleaded guilty in connection with the slaying last December of his wife, Carol, 23.

In his motion, Vigil said he felt he was guilty of murder, but not in the first degree and contended he should not be punished for first-degree murder.

Sentencing of Vigil has been deferred by Judge William Hastings pending a presentence investigation. There was no immediate ruling on Vigil's request.

Mrs. Vigil's decapitated body was discovered New Year's Eve in a gully about 10 miles west of Lincoln and an autopsy indicated she died of multiple stab wounds.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

Night comes early now in Paris. The boulevards light up. At the end of the broad Champs Elysees, the Arc de Triomphe glows in floodlights.

The posh restaurants make window squares of golden light. The white cloths The silver gleaming on the tables. The waiters starched into snowy shirts framed in black tuxedoes.

It's an expensive city: A fairly simple lunch for three nudged us $45. French wine in France costs about the same as in the U.S.

The elegant night clubs are out of sight. The house expects you to pop a $20 bottle of champagne before you unfold the napkin.

The famed bare brisket shows no longer makes the tourist eyes pop

(How you gonna keep 'em down in Paree, when they can see the same thing down on the farm?)

Gay Paree! The black and white couples strolling the boulevards hardly raise an eye from the tourists parked at the sidewalk cafe.

France has been the most relaxed country in Europe to mixed relationships. Black students from French Africa dated freely with French students. Paris drew a lot of American blacks who found the climate more relaxed.

They used to cause a little flurry when they passed the crowded tables of the Cafe de la Paix. No more. Peace, brother.

☆ ☆ ☆

A paddy wagon went rushing down the street, playing the French siren that goes "oom-pah, oom-pah" (The "salad basket" the French call them.)

The police sign and get out their white batons. "Into the wagon, you stupid cow."

The Parisian gendarme is a dapper chap. Pill box cap. Blue uniform. A small pistol in a polished leather holster. Often a trimmed moustache.

He wears a cape. The skirt is weighted with lead. And if he slaps you across the chops with this, you become ready, willing and disabled.

The French slang for them is "flic". But if he is looking you over for a parking ticket, you should address him as "M'sieu l'Agent."

☆ ☆ ☆

Paris at night. The taxis park in the middle of the boulevards. The Paris hackie is an individual as the philosopher hackies of New York.

You approach him at his parking station. Immediately he puts a protective hand over the back door so you can't jump in.

"Which way are you going?"

No matter which way you say, he usually says: "I am going in the other direction."

☆ ☆ ☆

If the gendarme on the corner sees this (and is feeling surly himself) he comes over and gives the taxi driver a little hell.

"Who do you think you are: Take this gentleman where he wants to go."

The driver will then take you sullenly. Muttering in the front seat about "fascists."

You must tip him. No matter how surly and sullen. A 10% tip is considered a right, not a reward. An untipped taxi driver followed me right into the lobby of the George V to point out I hadn't tipped him.

The doorman translated. He agreed completely. (So I tipped him. No courage.)

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska Medical Association:

Approximately 12,000 Nebraskans have diabetes and do not know it.

Diabetes is most likely to develop in someone who is overweight, who is over 45, or who has a family history of diabetes. When someone meets two or all three of these conditions, the chances of developing diabetes become even greater

The earlier diabetes is detected, the easier it usually is to control Essentially, diabetes is a condition in which the body cannot make use of some foods, primarily sugars and starches.

Men and women with diabetes can be found working in every profession and business, in government, industry, and in the highest ranks in the arts and sports. The key to "life as usual" is early detection, followed by proper treatment and control of the condition.

AAUP, AFT Agree To Cooperate On Studies

Two organizations representing faculty members at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln have agreed to cooperate to study a number of campus issues, their presidents said Wednesday.

The statements came after a meeting of officers of the local chapters of both the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) and the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).

"We found we had a lot of common interests," said Geology Prof. Sam Treves, AAUP president. And he added that the officers found they shared "basically the same" attitudes on a number of issues.

Agree To Cooperate

Treves and Economics Prof. George Rejda, local AFT president, said the executives of both groups had "agreed to cooperate" by forming joint committees to study academic due process, salary inequities and fringe benefits, and employment discrimination against women.

The apparently cordial meeting, called at the request of Treves, lasted about 1½ hours.

Participants included members of the local AAUP executive committee and AFT's executive council. Also attending the meeting the NU Law Prof. James Lake, state AAUP president and president of the faculty senate on the Lincoln campuses.

The local AAUP chapter is part of a long-established association which has relied largely on persuasion over the years in attempts to protect faculty interests.

The local AFT chapter, affiliated with the AFL-CIO national federation, has said it believes the UNL faculty should organize to bargain collectively with the Board of Regents.

The local chapter, known as the University of Nebraska Federation of Teachers, was formed last spring, largely in response to concerns over the regents' decision not to rehire former Prof. Stephen Rozman.

Contract Not Renewed

The board voted in February not to renew Rozman's contract, citing alleged inappropriate actions in May 1970 antiwar activities.

A ruling on a federal civil rights suit brought by Rozman is expected this week from the U.S. District Court in Lincoln.

The case brought on a good deal of discussion on academic due process, one of the issues which both organizations said they had agreed to study.

Another, salary inequities and fringe benefits, has long been a concern of faculty members.

The third issue mentioned, sexual discrimination, has come to the fore more recently.

Blue Chips Drift Back And Forth

New York (AP)—Bluechip stock prices traced a zig-zag pattern in Wednesday's moderate trading, finally closing higher after drifting back and forth throughout the session.

The 3:30 p.m. EST Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks gained 3.43 to 822.14. It opened somewhat higher but at one point had lost about 3½ points.

However, declines led advances 730 out of 1,689 issues traded on the Big Board.

"The stock market is confused by the lack of authoritative announcements as to the progress being made in the worldwide monetary area and the state of Phase 2 economic policy, especially labor's part in it," said John Smith, an analyst at Fahnestock & Co.

Smith noted Tuesday the market rose on the basis of rumors and anticipation of some possible settlement of international monetary problems.

"Today the market is churning with confusion because it doesn't know if these rumors have any basis," he added.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,500 common stocks rose .04 to 51.17.

The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced .3 to 300.7 with industrials up 1.4, rails off .2, and utilities off .2.

Big Board volume was 12.84 million shares compared with 13.29 million shares Tuesday. The market had 4 new yearly highs and 87 new yearly lows.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index climbed .14 to 92.85.

Ninety-six big blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the New York Stock Exchange, compared with 94 Tuesday. The biggest was 200,000 shares of American General Insurance at 25⅜ up ¼.

Volume leader on the Big Board was Texaco, off ⅛ at 30⅞.

American Stock Exchange prices slipped. The Amex price-change index fell .02 to 2410. Volume was 2.84 million shares compared with 3.00 million shares Tuesday. There were 351 advances and 497 declines out of 1,130 issues traded.

Corporate bonds were mixed, and governments were lower.

Beef Steers, Heifers Up

Omaha, Neb. (AP) —A scramble for numbers kept the fed cattle price pot boiling on the front burner Wednesday.

Beef steers shot 25-50 cents higher, and heifers advanced fully 25 cents in active trading.

Heifers hit the highest level since June. 1969, with some two loads of high choice TV prime 1,000-1,051 lb. offerings at 34.35.

Hog prices tended mixed. Butchers under 240 lb. rated a steady to weak not. some 25 lower; heavier weights sold steady to 25 higher, advance on 240-270 lb. offerings generally. Sows sold steady to instances 25 higher.

A limited run of fed lambs sold little changed.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

Here's How to Work It

One letter simply stands for another in this example. A is used for the three L's X for the two O's etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is six or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
